New Jersey Will Vote Today

Pennsylvania and Maryland Also Will Line Up for President Today

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Hiram Johnson is due for another setback tomorrow by Calvin Coolidge in the Republican Presidential nominations at Cleveland in June, according to all the information available here all of the political strength shown in New Jersey by Johnson has been dissipated and the entire delegation of forty-one will swing solidly into the present acompanent of the White House.

Added to the accumulated delegates already announced as favoring Coolidge nomination in June, further statement in Pennsylvania this week will bring the total of Coolidge votes close to the 501 mark when only 455 are required to name the successful candidate. Practically all of the anti-Coolidge New Jersey Republicans friendly to Johnson have deserted him and the race is a full Johnson delegation, unopposed, only a noted wet and opponent of liberal laws relating to amendments is now regarded as head of the Johnson organization. Reports reaching Washington indicate that Johnson will carry every single district and probably every county, leaving him politically as well as in name only which he was given in Michigan or Illinois.

PENNSYLVANIA TOO

Pennsylvania is also to be a red letter day for Coolidge in Pennsylvania, where the predictions are that Pinchot will be defeated by a big majority on the delegation because of his humorous thrusts at the Coolidge administration, particularly his animosity toward Secretary Mellon and his influence in the employment of Owen J. Roberts as prosecutor in the Internal Revenue investigations. According to word that has reached the capital on the eve of the primary, Ralph Straumann, financial angel for Johnson in New York and his advocate up to the minute ago, is now lined up for Coolidge and has been fighting hard for delegates to Cleveland and has now been joined by Congressman Vare of Philadelphia, one of the biggest vote-getters in the State.

Returns tomorrow will also indicate to the Coolidge population whether they will join the

JAPAN LOOKS TO MEXICO

Seeks Land for Colonizing

Matsui to Continue Fight to Get Reconsideration of American Ban

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—The Mexican Consul in Tokio has advised the Foreign Office here that the government of Japan has a project to divert the Japanese emigration to Central and South America, and requests plans of lands on which it is possible to settle colonies in Mexico.

A member of the Japanese Department of Industry will make a visit to Mexico to study conditions for Japanese immigration.

The government has sent a special train to Juares to bring back Mexican laborers who are trying to enter the United States, to the cotton fields at Torreon where farm hands are needed.

The government is trying in other ways to prevent emigration to the United States.

MATSUI STILL HOPES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, April 21.—Foreign Minister Matsui in an interview today announced the intention of the Japanese government to continue its efforts to secure reconsideration by the American Congress of its Japanese exclusion legislation.

He asserted that Japan would "use every friendly means from the standpoint of international morality" to accomplish this.

By force of circumstances the immigration bill may become not merely a domestic question but a matter with a grave bearing on trans-Pacific relations, Mr. Matsui asserted. The Congressional action is threatening to wreck the friendship of generations between Japan and America.

It is most grievous that there should occur a rift in the mutual trust as it had been expected that America and Japan would work together for the cause of world peace, he added. Such a risk must not be allowed to run unchecked.

WOODS PLEDGES AID

Mr. Matsui said he had conferred with Cyrus E. Woods, the American Ambassador, who promised to do his utmost to preserve friendly relations. It is the duty of everyone to feel the necessity of removing the dark shadow casting itself between the two nations, the Foreign Minister went on. The best means to accomplish this is through an appeal for a friendly sentiment in Congress.

Mr. Matsui pointed out that

MEXICO CITY ALARMED BY BAD QUAKE

Center Traced to Yankee Mining Region; Damage is Reported

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—The severest earthquake since January 3, 1920, when many villages around Vera Cruz were destroyed, was felt in Mexico today. The tremor, starting at 1 p.m., lasted two and one-half minutes. The seismographic apparatus at Tacubaya Station, was damaged by the intensity of the tremor.

The center of the quake was located 140 miles south of Mexico City in the Balsas mining district, State of Guerrero, where many American silver mines are located.

Brief reports received here indicate destruction was wrought at Chilpancingo, Chilapa and other towns in Guerrero.

Severe seismic movements were felt at Toluca, fifty miles from Mexico City. Church bells rung by the quake threw the city into a panic. General alarm exists here and in nearby towns. It is feared a stronger quake is likely to follow. Milder shocks were felt here during the morning.

Although the quake was plainly felt here, and the alarm spread fast, people kneeling in the streets, no damage or loss of life has been reported.

FIVE WOMEN FACE COURT AS SLAYERS

Six Others Confined in Cook County Jail Under Similar Charges

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 21.—This was "ladies' day" in Judge Lindsay's court in the Criminal Court Building and five of the eleven women in the County Jail on charges of murder were in attendance. Those present included Beulah Annan, the Kentucky woman who slew Harry Kalstedt in her apartment recently, and Mrs. Belva Gaertner, who, the State charges, murdered Walter R. Law, an automobile salesman, at the end of a hectic gin carousal. Also present was Mrs. Sabelle Nitti Crudelle, sentenced to hang and recently saved from the gallows by a Supreme Court decision granting her and Peter Crudelle, her latest husband, a new trial on charges of murdering her first husband.

In contrast to these were Mrs. Rosina Montana and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Madeline Montana, who with two of their male relatives are accused of slaying Policeman Lawrence Hartnett during a raid on their "grocery," which the police say was a "fence" for stolen goods and a distributing point of illicit booze.

Out of the assortment, Judge Lindsay picked the Montana case as the first to be tried and ordered a jury called immediately. Mrs. Annan and Mrs. Gaertner were taken back to jail and the court took under advisement a motion to try Mrs. Nitti Crudelle and Peter Crudelle separately.

GRAVE IN ITALY FOR DUSE

Body of Supreme Tragedienne to be Sent Home May 1; Greatest Tour Was Ended by Death

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 21.—The body of Eleonora Duse, Italian actress, who died in Pittsburg today, will be brought to New York tomorrow and will be sent to Italy on the liner Duilio, which sails for Genoa May 1, it is announced here by Fortune Gallo, who had charge of her tour.

Twenty members of Mme. Duse's company will go with the casket.

Paying tribute to Duse's genius, Gallo said:

"Undoubtedly this woman, although 64 years of age, was the greatest actress the stage of Europe or America had today. On the same plane with Bernhardt and Rejane, she typified all that the stage considered its finest art.

"While Mme. Duse had been acknowledged one of the world's greatest artists for twenty years, she had reached the pinnacle of her success during the present tour."

WAS ON THIRD TOUR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Eleonora Duse's death in Pittsburg today cut short her third tour of the United States which opened in the Metropolitan Operahouse here the night of October 29, 1923, when she appeared in Ibsen's "The Lady of the Sea," and was to have ended in this city within a few weeks.

Her return to public life, after an absence of fifteen years, was hailed as an artistic event and the actress, already 64 years of age, had her audiences at her feet throughout her brief engagement.

"Duse and Bernhardt, the incomparables," wrote the critics, and those who saw and heard her echoed the words.

"La Duse" was almost penniless and ailing, and thoughts of the travel hardships that would confront her made her waver in her decision on the tour, but in July, 1923, she finally determined to essay the trip. She had, in the meantime, appeared in a half dozen London performances and London had acclaimed her.

Ten weeks was the limit she had set for her third American tour but after she had achieved such a conspicuous success, her itinerary was extended to include cities of the Middle West and Pacific Coast.

The body of Mme. Duse lay tonight in an undertaker's chapel pending arrangements for its removal to New York for transfer to the liner Duilio.

The twenty members of the Duse company visited the chapel late today and grouped about the body, knelt in prayer. "La Duse," in death as in life, was shielded from the public and none but the members of the company were permitted to view the body. They will remain in Pittsburg until the body is removed and will act as an escort until the arrival in Italy.

PUBLISHERS CONVENING

Flock to New York City for Press Association Meetings; Coolidge Speaks Today

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Newspaper editors and publishers from all parts of the United States and Canada, were gathering here tonight for a series of meetings which will be inaugurated tomorrow with the annual luncheon of the Associated Press at which President Coolidge will speak.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the executive committee of the Morning Newspaper Publishers' Association, and the North American Newspaper Alliance will hold conventions later in the week.

President Coolidge's address, the second he has made in New York this year, will be broadcast from the Waldorf-Astoria by radio arrangements even more elaborate than obtained at the Lincoln Day dinner here on February 12. Eleven large broadcasting stations east of the Rockies will receive the speech over nearly 7000 miles of telephone wires and will relay it to their respective communities. The broadcasting will start at 1:45 p.m., New York time.

COOLIDGE LEAVES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Coolidge in leaving Washington tonight for New York, where tomorrow he will address the members of the Associated Press at their annual luncheon, undertook his second trip away from the capital since he entered the White House, and the last trip he probably will make before the meeting of the Republican national convention.

Mr. Coolidge recently abandoned a proposed trip to Indiana and in doing so announced that the engagement to go to New York for the Associated Press luncheon probably was the only out-of-town one that he would be able to fill prior to the adjournment of Congress.

TEN HOURS IN NEW YORK

Less than ten hours will be spent by the President in New York.

The luncheon at which he will speak is at 1 o'clock and soon thereafter he will board his train for the return trip to Washington.

House Approves Veteran Pension Bill by Bursum

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Without a record vote the House today passed the Bursum bill already approved by the Senate, carrying pension increases for veterans of the Civil, Spanish, Mexican and Indian wars and the War of 1812.

The House approved the bill without amendment and it now goes to the President. A measure on the same subject was vetoed by President Harding but supporters of the bill passed today said the features objected to by Mr. Harding had been eliminated.

ARIZONA TO WIDEN BAN

Rail Passengers to be Checked

State Conference Calls for Barring of All Without Health Certificates

Extension of Quarantine Line Into California Zone Also Recommended

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 21.—Action to regulate railroad passenger traffic from California into Arizona to persons holding health certificates was urged today at a State conference of industrial representatives who recommended that the State's present foot-and-mouth quarantine against California be rigidly enforced.

Resolutions embracing the recommendations of the conference were presented to Gov. Hunt tonight and it was announced that a proclamation embodying the extension of the quarantine to require rail passengers to obtain certificates would be issued tomorrow.

The conference going on record as deeming it "impossible to adequately fumigate or disinfect a human being" asked Gov. Hunt in the resolutions "to require passengers for Arizona points to obtain certificates from representatives of the Arizona Board of Health to be located at strategic points in California."

The resolutions also urged that "through passengers" crossing the State from California "be not permitted to leave trains while in this State."

Re-establishment of the Federal quarantine against California on the Yuma Indian Reservation between Yuma, Ariz., and Knob Siding, Cal., making the "west line of the reservation the west line of the Arizona quarantine" also was asked in a resolution adopted at the conference.

The resolution concerning certificates to passengers stated that "we believe the contagion of the foot-and-mouth disease to be nonresistent to sunlight, drying and exposure to air for a period of twenty-one days," and it was indicated the representatives who may be sent to California would be guided by this theory in the issuance of certificates to persons who have lived in any of the diseased areas.

Railroads would be instructed not to sell tickets to persons not having certificates if the Governor approves this recommendation in the resolution.

INDIANS EXEMPTED FROM ARIZONA RULES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

YUMA (Ariz.) April 21.—Arizona's foot-and-mouth embargo on eastbound vehicular traffic over the Colorado River bridge here will remain "airtight," according to a message received here tonight from J. N. Franklin, one of a delegation of Yuma citizens who conferred with Gov. Hunt at Phoenix today on the quarantine situation.

An agreement was reached with the Governor, however, according to Franklin's message, whereby truck gardeners on the Indian reservation across the river from here will be permitted to cross from California into Arizona at will, and school children living on the reservation will be allowed to enter the State daily in order to attend classes in Yuma.

Dr. Edward L. Stam, Arizona quarantine supervisor here, announced that the new arrangement would be carried out by furnishing vegetable growers and others special passes which will distinguish them from travelers outward bound from California points.

TOURISTS BARRED

Knob Siding fumigation station, about which nine motor parties were congregated tonight, hoping for fumigation and swift passage over the State line, is on the Indian reservation and is frequented by the same persons who will be allowed to cross the river under permit.

Tourists' automobiles, however, will find the bridge as impregnable as it was last Friday night, when a mob rush of infuriated motorists failed to penetrate the barricade of tractors blocking the east end of the structure.

Four automobile loads of travelers arrived during the day from Imperial Valley, and joined forces at the desert fumigation plant at Knob Siding with the occupants of five other cars that arrived yesterday after 9 a.m., the hour Arizona re-established a ban against cars from California.

COME PREPARED

Unlike many of those who comprised the first group of stranded tourists, today's arrivals appeared to have come prepared for several days' siege upon the desert. They spent the day under the meager shelter afforded by the fumigation plant in an effort to escape the intense heat of the desert sun.

In Yuma, the only outward appearance of the border blockade was evidenced in militiamen still patrolling the State bridge across

GEN. CAVAZOS AND MOST OF STAFF PUT TO DEATH

Captured After Terrific Battle With Federal Army; Virtually Last of Rebel Chiefs

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—The death of the famous rebel general, Marcial Cavazos, together with most of his staff, following a terrific battle that lasted from 3 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at Pozuelos, State of Hidalgo, was officially announced here today.

Cavazos was reported to have been trapped by Gen. Rios Zertuche, of the Federal forces, following his daring attack last Saturday on the important American-British mining camp of Pachuca, fifty miles distant from Mexico City. More than 300 of the rebels were either killed, wounded or captured by the Federals. More than 100 prisoners have arrived here from the scene of the battle.

EXECUTION CONFIRMED

The Presidential offices here confirmed the capture and execution, following summary court-martial, of the rebel general together with ex-Governor of Oaxaca, Manuel Garcia Vigil, and Gen. Manuel M. Dieguez. The latter was right-hand man to Enrique Estrada. Thus, with the exception of De la Huerta, Guadalupe Sanchez and Estrada Moreo, all of the initiators of the present revolt have been accounted for.

The death of Cavazos, on whom the "mantle of Villa" had fallen during the present uprising, virtually exterminates all of the anti-Obregon movement in the central section of the republic and ends the career of the most daring and picturesque of the rebels. Cavazos was a true pupil of the notorious Pancho Villa. His men were most active in the present revolt, having given the government more trouble than has any other single group.

Cavazos distinguished himself as a raider of passenger trains along the main line from Mexico City to Laredo. His biggest military coup came when he held up a Laredo train carrying Federal ammunition and carried away 50,000 pesos in the early days of the revolt. Some of his men spoke a little English, their stock expression when they entered the Pullman cars being, "Don't be afraid, we will not harm you."

ATTACKED PACHUCA

The rebel general attacked Pachuca first during the blackest days of the revolt, thus menacing Mexico City. However, following a full day of the bloodiest hand-to-hand street fighting during which one English woman was accidently killed, the rebels were routed. Since then nearly 5000 Federal soldiers have combed the State of Hidalgo for the rebel leader. He eluded capture only by the most incredible of forced marches, sometimes as much as 100 miles at a stretch, made possible only because each of his men was furnished with an extra horse, much after the Villa method.

Cavazos was a native of Monterey, of good family and education. He was a born leader and was a rebel ever since 1910. He joined Carranza against Victoriano Huerta.

Among others who died with Cavazos, late reports indicate, were his generals, Nicholas Flores and Otilio Villegas.

NAVY REPORTS ORDER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Navy Department was informed today by Capt. W. B. Wells, commanding the cruiser Cleveland at Progreso, Mexico, that the possibilities of further disorders by revolutionists in Yucatan were considered slight. Capt. Wells added that rebel troops numbering 300 had evacuated Merida and Progreso and that about 3000 Federal troops had been landed at Progreso and Sisal.

BONUS VOTE DUE TODAY

Cash Option Is Battle Crux

Senate First Will Consider That Point, Then Turn to Insurance Plan

Prospect of Coolidge Veto Cause of Speculation; Stand is Mystery

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A showdown on the proposal for a cash option in the pending straight insurance soldier bonus bill was demanded in the Senate today by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, after his party leaders earlier in the day formally had withdrawn such a substitute measure.

Agreement was reached to vote on the cash option proposal tomorrow afternoon and Senator Curtis, Republican, Kansas, in charge of the measure, announced he will seek a final vote on the bonus bill by tomorrow night.

Senator Copeland offered the cash option amendment which was drawn up by the minority members of the Finance Committee and which Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, its author, just previously had announced would not be pressed.

DANGER IS SHOWN

When Senators Copeland, Dill, Democrats, Washington, and Norris, Republican, Nebraska, earlier had requested Mr. Walsh to put the proposal forward "now and let blame for its defeat fall where it may," the Massachusetts Senator was defended in his course by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader. Senator Robinson and Senator Walsh insisted that to put the cash option in the bill now probably would work to defeat any bonus legislation.

The pending insurance bill has received the indorsement of the American Legion.

In view of this, Republican leaders were confident tonight that the cash option would not be voted in, pointing out that advocates of the pending measure probably will be joined by all opponents of a bonus bill. Senator Norris said a cash and insurance bill could be passed over a Presidential veto in the House and, he believed, also in the Senate.

VETO IS QUESTION

Senator Walsh said the open declarations of Senators Watson, Indiana, Lodge, Massachusetts, Curtis, Kansas, and Willis, Ohio, Republicans, that they would vote to sustain a Presidential veto of such a bill but would vote to override a veto of the straight insurance measure showed that it would

GIRL "BANDIT" STILL SMILES

Bobbed-Hair Girl-Mother Accused of Many Gotham Crimes Goes Home Under Guard; Mate Shaken

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) April 21.—Celia Cooney, 20 years of age, smiled a demure good-by as she boarded a train here today for New York in the custody of two detectives to face charges of highway robbery and assault with intent to kill in connection with a long series of daring hold-ups credited to the "bobbed-hair girl bandit."

Her husband, Edward Cooney, 25, also charged with the hold-ups and shooting, was visibly shaken as he began the trip back to New York.

Mrs. Cooney maintained the alternate air of calm indifference and vivaciousness which she displayed from the time of her arrest early today, when she greeted the leveled revolvers of the police with a smile and an automatic pistol.

"I won't shoot if you won't," she offered when the police broke in the door of the room in which they were staying, and a threatened gun fight was averted. Cooney, who faced the police with a revolver in each hand, wanted to kill her and then commit suicide rather than be captured, Mrs. Cooney said. Cooney, according to Detective F. S. Gray of New York, confessed to taking part in a number of the New York hold-ups credited to the couple, including one in which an employer was shot and seriously wounded. Cooney and his wife, according to detectives, each attempted to take the blame for the shooting.

Mrs. Cooney, a slender brunette, about five feet two inches tall, with black eyes, wore her hair under a net when she left today and it did not have the appearance of being bobbed. She told police that her hair had been blonde but that she had dyed it.

It was the birth and subsequent death of their child that led to the apprehension of the Cooneys. The child, a girl, was born here on the 11th inst., and died eight days later. It was born just ten days after the hold-up of the National Biscuit Company plant on the 1st inst., which Mrs. Cooney said was her twentieth birthday.

The trail led through thirteen States, according to detectives from New York. It was through the undertaker who had charge of funeral arrangements for the child that the couple's address was obtained.

Mrs. Cooney ceased to smile for a few minutes today when she discussed the death of her baby.

"We named her Katherine," she said.

New York police said they obtained the "tip" that the Cooneys were in Jacksonville through a message for money that Cooney was said to have sent his mother in New York.

The money, it was said, was used to pay the hospital bill.

Wallace Agrees Embargoes Are Unwarranted

Further Conferences Today to Tackle Problem

Plight of Cattle Barred from Ranges Discussed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Secretary Wallace and other officials of the Department of Agriculture today discussed with a committee sent by Gov. Richardson of California the situation in Western States brought about by the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle in certain counties in California.

The committee is composed of C. C. Teague, president of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, as chairman; A. T. Spencer, president of the California Wool Growers' Association; J. F. Sartori, a Los Angeles banker; Sam H. Greene, secretary of the Dairy Council, and F. W. Kiesel Sacramento banker and land owner, told the Federal officials California felt the drastic restrictions imposed by some of the Western States against the movement of California commodities through their territory were unwarranted in view of the assurance given by the Federal authorities as to the effectiveness of the Federal and State quarantines. In this attitude they were upheld by Secretary Wallace and officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

NOT HOPEFUD

Federal officials are not hopeful that the Western States concerned will accept President Coolidge's proposal for a conference to consider whether the various State quarantines can be made more reasonable and still provide adequate protection.

One phase of the situation discussed today was the question of transferring cattle to the national forest ranges of California from that State and adjoining States for summer feeding which is not now possible under the State quarantine regulations. The Californians pointed out that continued drought in that section made it imperative that the cattle be moved on the ranges as early as possible.

CONFERENCES CONTINUED

Secretary Wallace discussed again various phases of the situation with the California committee for some time late today; but no definite decisions were reached and the conferences will continue tomorrow.

An extra appropriation of $1,500,000 to combat the foot-and-mouth disease in California was approved today by the Senate. The House acted favorably on the bill Saturday and it now goes to the President for signing.

OREGON GOVERNOR APPOINTS COMMISSION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SALEM (Or.) April 21.—Following a conference here today participated in by Gov. W. M. Pierce, the State Live Stock Sanitary Board and a special delegation from California appointed by Gov. Richardson, a commission was appointed by Gov. Pierce to go to California and make first-hand observation of the foot-and-mouth disease, and efforts that are being made to stop it.

The Oregon commission includes members of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board and Fred Faulkner of Pendleton.

WASHINGTON BAN NOT TO BE RELAXED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OLYMPIA (Wash.) April 21.—With receipt here of a report from Gov. L. F. Hart at Sacramento that the foot-and-mouth disease in California has not yet been brought under control, Acting Gov. Coyle stated that quarantine regulations now in effect would not be lessened.

HAWAIIAN ADVISER EASING OF EMBARGO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 21.—C. C. Pittam, special agent representing the Board of Agriculture and Forestry of the Territory of Hawaii, who has been in California for almost two weeks investigating the foot-and-mouth disease, has recommended to the Board of Agriculture of the Territory that its present severe quarantine restrictions be modified.

Pittam, in a statement issued here today, said he believed that control measures now in force are effective and "I am confident that the movement of farm products, fruits, etc., is handled in such a manner that there is no danger of these articles spreading infection of the foot-and-mouth disease."

STOCK DISEASE IN SAN BERNARDINO

The foot-and-mouth disease was yesterday reported to have broken out in San Bernardino county, the infection being found in a herd of 1000 head of hogs four miles from Colton. In addition, two more cases were reported for Los Angeles county, one being in a herd of fifty-eight head of dairy cattle at Van Nuys, and the other being a herd of fifty head of cows in the Lamanda Park section.

Information has been received from the Supervisors of Ventura county that no motor travel will be allowed to pass the Ventura county line unless for very urgent business reasons. This will be effective until the quarantine is lifted. Other counties are maintaining disinfection squads which will disinfect every car leaving this county.

Packing-houses were opened for business yesterday under strict Federal and State supervision. All live stock received at these plants must be slaughtered within forty-eight hours. Shipments can go through the stockyards or direct to packers, but in all cases ante-mortem inspection is required. Shipments of live stock will be subject to issuance of permit before being accepted by the railroads. No live stock will be permitted to move except that going to the packing-plants of Los Angeles and Vernon.

The Finance Committee of the City Council yesterday voted the Health Depaftment's request for an addition $2000 to be expended in disinfecting dairy workers in the foot-and-mouth campaign. The request followed the exhaustion of $1000 previously turned over to the Chamber of Commerce.

Orange county quarantine officials yesterday isolated a herd of eighty cattle on the Sam Talbert ranch near Talbert suspecting an infection of the disease.

Deputy Labor Commissioner Steineck in charge of the local office yesterday notified employment agencies in Southern California of the ruling that required all dairy workers to be disinfected and receive a permit before starting to work. They will be required to report to the City Health Department, 156 North Spring street.

SACRAMENTO, April 21.—State Director of Agriculture Hecke is preparing to place a small section of San Bernardino county under quarantine, following the Fontana outbreak. There is no necessity for closing the entire county, it was announced. The infected herd had been fed garbage from a Los Angeles stock yard, it was declared.

MERCED, April 21.—Two more small herds were found today to be infected and were killed. The situation here looks more encouraging, but the quarantine is still rigidly enforced, according to Federal Inspector Grafke.

LONG BEACH, April 21.—Suspecting an outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease at the city hog farm Federal officials today placed guards around the farm and made preparations for a test of the suspected swine.

the Colorado River, and in small groups of Chamber of Commerce officials gathered about the business district, anxiously awaiting word from the conference being conducted at Phoenix.

STATEMENT DISCREDITED

A statement purported to have been made today at Phoenix by Indian Agent I. L. Ode that Departments of Justice agents were in charge of the border situation was discredited here tonight by the fact that there were no Department of Justice agents here, the only two who were sent to investigate conditions having left for San Diego Sunday night.

A Red Cross representative arrived during the day from Sawtelle, Cal., expecting to give aid, but found that there was none needed.

The last of the stranded travelers, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McKenzie of New York City, resumed their eastward journey early today.

NEEDLES TOURISTS RELAX COUNTER-EMBARGO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEEDLES, April 21.—Irate eastbound motorists who yesterday expressed their opinion of Arizona's foot-and-mouth embargo on traffic into that State over the Colorado River bridge at Topock, southeast of here, by placing an embargo of their own on westbound traffic, late today relaxed their grip on the State line and let the westbound travelers break through into California.

Forty-five cars delayed on the Arizona side by the retaliatory blockade lost no time scurrying across the bridge, while a number of the eastbound motorists settled their difficulties by loading their automobiles on freight cars and crossing the State line by train. Rail traffic through Arizona is not prohibited.

PLEA FOR FEDERAL TROOPS TURNED DOWN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Use of Federal troops in the enforcement of the foot-and-mouth embargo on traffic between California and Arizona is illegal and requests that troops be made available for that work were denied today by Secretary Weeks.

The Secretary acted after he had obtained an opinion from Maj.-Gen Bethel, Judge-Advocate-General of the Army.

A request for an Army airplane to patrol the Arizona-California border also was denied. Money appropriated by Congress for aircraft operations, it was held, could not be expended for such work.

The trial date was set for the 30th inst.

Only ten minutes was required by the grand jury to return the indictment after the last witness was heard.

Knutson and Hull were arrested by county officers while out automobile riding. They were held on $3000 bail each after a preliminary hearing several weeks ago and these bonds were continued today.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

Relieving the President of the necessity of reviewing minor cases of infractions of regulations.

Authorizing equal subsistence and other allowances for the Philippine Scouts as now made by the Regular Army.

Protecting government employees from loss of pay when called for training as reservists.

Authorizing payment of nearly $1,000,000 in admiralty claims against the War Department.

Authorizing the sale of militia equipment to the Cuban government.

Authorizing the detail of officers on request of South and Central American governments as instructors.

Giving Philippine Scouts all retirement rights after thirty years' service at three-quarters of the base pay, plus $10.50 for allowances.

JAPANESE MAY TURN TO MEXICO

both America and Japan are facing national elections, under which circumstances neither Washington nor Tokio could disclose their final intentions lightly. However, he insisted that the question was one affecting the whole of mankind and therefore he felt persuaded that the right would conquer eventually.

The Foreign Minister asserted he did not believe that the world is so retrogressing as to return to the days of when might made right.

Fifteen Tokio newspapers today are cabling the American State Department urging reconsideration of the "unjust and iniquitous" legislation. "We cannot bear the thought that the bridge thrown across the Pacific is being destroyed despite the strengthening it received from the Washington conference and the most generous sympathy extended to Japan in the days of the earthquake disaster," the papers say.

The cable says the Tokio newspapers see a majority of the American press voicing the wishes of a majority of the American people fighting for the elimination of the "unjust" exclusion.

"Should the bill be signed," the message continues, "it must be taken to represent the mind of the American nation and it is feared that the consequences will be a great blow to the traditional friendship and set back the glorious co-operation contributing toward the happiness of all peoples."

CITE TRADE RESULTS

The American Merchants' Association of Tokio and the American Association are cabling the State Department pointing out that serious trade consequences are possible. Three labor meetings yesterday, two at Tokio and one at Osaka, discussed the exclusion legislation.

Typographical union delegates throughout Japan adopted a resolution designed to secure the sympathy of American labor, whereby their members declare a boycott on California until the I.W.W.'s are released at Centralia. The Osaka General League of Workers has decided to cable the American Federation of Labor, the I.W.W. and the California Labor Federation urging action against exclusion in "pursuance with the spirit of proletarian internationalism."

CONFEREES TO MEET ON FRIDAY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—House and Senate conferees on the immigration bill will hold their first session next Friday and they expect to complete their work within a few days as there are few points of disagreement.

Since the Japanese exclusion provision was written into the bill by both the House and the Senate, it was said today that conferees could not eliminate it, if they desired, without exceeding their authority.

The bill was discussed by President Coolidge today with Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, who had charge of the legislation in the Senate. The Pennsylvania Senator declined to say whether the President had indicated his attitude toward the exclusion provision.

WILKES IS FIRM FOR OPEN SHOP

Takes Unequivocal Stand in Stage Controversy

Western Producer Admits Right to Organize

Unequivocal opposition to the "Equity shop" as advocated by the Actors' Equity Association was voiced here yesterday by Thomas Wilkes, one of the most influential theatrical producers in the West, a short six weeks in advance of the date set by the association for a strike of its membership in the event that the present controversy with producers is not settled by that time.

"Just what step I will take in this matter I do not feel at liberty to say at this time, but I will say with all emphasis that I will not submit to the 'Equity-shop' attitude by the Actors' Equity Association," declared Mr. Wilkes. "I have always advocated equity to my companies and have always been 100 per cent equity and I feel sure that I have the sympathy and co-operation of the players I am associated with in the stand I have taken."

WILKES'S INTERESTS

Mr. Wilkes's interests are engaged in the Majestic Theater in this city, the Wilkes-Alcazar Theater in San Francisco; the Denham Theater in Denver, and the Sam H. Harris Theater in New York, in addition to the "Nervous Wreck" and the "Topsy and Eva" companies, both of which are now playing in Chicago, and the latter of which includes in its cast the Duncan Sisters.

"Speaking for myself as a producer," continued the theatrical magnate, "I am unequivocally opposed to the 'Equity shop' as advocated by the association and equally as strong for 'open shop.' Personally I have no objections to the players organizing for their own benefit. Certainly labor has the right to organize; I do not question that, but I do question its right to dictate to employers who should or should not work for them.

"Somehow I cannot regard actors and actresses as a laboring class. Rather, I look upon them as artists and should they be too closely bound by the ties of an organization, then they are limiting themselves in scope and thereby retarding the growth and uplifting of the legitimate stage.

SAYS STARS OPPOSED

"I am convinced that the leading players of the legitimate stage —the stars as they are known to the public—are not in sympathy with this hard and fast rule as the Equity is laying it down for the producing managers to abide by, and in this respect they have my undivided support."

Pending the settlement of the controversy, Mr. Wilkes has canceled the production of "The Trouble Hound," which was to go into rehearsals in New York on the 28th inst.

At the present time settlement of the controversy between producers and the associations over the "Equity shop" question seems farther from a settlement than ever before, according to the producer, but what actual effect the strike, set for June 1, will have upon the local theatrical situation he declares to be a matter that can only be determined with the arrival of the walkout.

McADOO PROMISES TO DRIVE OUT GRAFTERS

APPEALS FOR DELEGATION PLEDGE IN TALK AT SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—Promising that if he were elected President, he would "drive all the grafters and corruptionists out of Washington and into the jails of the United States," William G. McAdoo in an address here tonight asked support for a delegation to the Democratic National Convention pledged to seek his nomination.

In addition to discussing the "oil scandal," which he said "was exclusively Republican," Mr. McAdoo criticised the Veterans' Bureau and "the prohibition enforcement scandals," charging that they "permeate the government at Washington, which must be cleaned out."

Mr. McAdoo promised that if he should be elected, he "would call as quickly as possible a special session of Congress to consider the agricultural questions" and would take up international co-operation to reopen European markets, seek reduced rates and efficient service from the railroads and attempt to have repealed the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, particularly the labor and rate-making sections.

Mr. McAdoo arrived in Oakland this morning and at noon addressed the Democratic Women's Club of Alameda county in Oakland. Tomorrow he will speak in Vallejo.

be impossible for a cash and insurance measure to become law now. He thought it wise, therefore, he said, first to get a bonus law and then seek to amend it.

Defending the pending bill, Senator Curtis pointed out the measure is practically the same as the bill passed last session.

Senator Norris said he did not object to the insurance provision but thought the beneficiaries ought to be given the right to choose whether they receive cash or insurance.

OPPOSITION CITED

The proposal offered by Senator Copeland provides for issuance of $1,500,000,000 in additional Second Liberty Loan bonds to provide funds for those choosing cash. First payments would not be made until nine months after the bill became a law.

Senator Harris, Democrat, Mississippi, again asked Republican leaders to determine the attitude of President Coolidge on the pending measure, asserting that if the President intends to sign the straight insurance proposition and veto a cash and insurance bill, the Senate ought to know it.

Senator Walsh insisted the "rumors" that the President would sign the pending measure must be "groundless" in the light of the statement in his message to Congress that he did not favor a bonus.

COOLIDGE DUE TO WIN AGAIN

procession Wednesday with twenty-three additional delegates, while Massachusetts and Missouri will both fall into line a week from tomorrow. That cleans up the greater portion of the voting power of the nation and assures President Coolidge of over 700 votes without counting the stragglers.

Indiana and California conduct their primaries on May 6; Wyoming acts through a convention on May 12; Utah on May 9, and Montana and West Virginia, May 27.

All these States are slated to be solid for Coolidge—even California—and the issue in each one is not important to the Coolidge victory, for it is already won. California and the other States must determine whether they will ride on the bandwagon with a winner or slap a winning ticket in the face by a refusal to stand up and be counted.

The fact that Hiram Johnson has refused to go to California to make a personal fight in his home State is believed here to be an alibi precaution so that his loss of the State can be placed on his followers there, relieving him of all personal responsibility.

Politically the week opens with the loosening of a number of minor booms of candidates for the Vice-Presidential nomination. This is the natural sequence of the fact that Coolidge already has more than enough delegates at Cleveland to secure his nomination for the Presidency.

Projected into the list of possibilities for Vice-President today are the names of Gen. John J. Pershing and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. Both have engaging personalities and can command support from various elements that would help the ticket, but the fact is that neither is considered available by the leading factors in the Republican party.

Football Injury Is Fatal to Girl After Four Years

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) April 21.—Miss Ellen May Carr, 18 years of age, of this city, died today from heart disease and complications due to injuries received while playing football with other girl students more than four years ago.

Miss Carr and some of her companions preferred playing football to watching school-boy teams engage in the rough-and-tumble sport. She suffered a displacement of one hip when she was thrown to the ground in a scrimmage in the park of Slide school, Clay, where she was a pupil at the time, and never fully recovered from the injury.

END COMES TO CORELLI IN ENGLAND

Noted Woman Novelist is Dead of Heart Disease at Stratford Home

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON (England) April 21.—Marie Corelli, English novelist and author of a score of popular romantic tales, died from heart disease at her home here. She had been ailing for some weeks, but apparently was recovered when the fatal seizure occurred.

Born in 1864, the daughter of an Italian father and Scottish mother, Mrs. Corelli was adopted in infancy by Charles Mackay, journalist and song writer. She was educated in a French convent and much of her early training was with the idea that she should take up the musical profession, but her penchant for writing prevailed, being encouraged by the publication of a number of poems.

Her first book, "A Romance of Two Worlds," was published in 1886 and was closely followed by "Vendetta," "Thelma," and others. Her works, which were mostly tinged with the melodramatic, enjoyed popularity and a wide sale from the start.

Her style was far from flawless and her literary lapses drew sarcastic references from the reviewers, but her reply to them was that no books of hers were sent to the press for criticism.

She was an opponent of woman suffrage, declaring the members of her sex unfit to exercise the franchise.

Gary Comments Bring New Lows to Many Stocks

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Sixty-six separate stocks established new low prices for the year in an active selling movement in today's stock market which was based on the pessimistic interpretation placed on Chairman Gary's remarks at the annual stockholders meeting of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and unfavorable reports relative to the oil industry.

Among the issues which sold at their lowest prices of the year were Baldwin, American Can, Gulf States Steel, American Sugar Refining, American Woolen, Dupont, Baltimore and Ohio, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Pacific, Cosden, Houston, Producers and Refiners and Atlantic Refining.

English Labor Premier Tells of Steps Made

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

YORK (Eng.) April 21.—Prime Minister MacDonald told the Independent Labor party conference here today that the labor government was doing its best, but would not necessarily always come up to the expectations of the party he was addressing.

Mr. MacDonald said he did not know how long the labor Cabinet was going to be in office.

"And I don't very much care," he added, "so long as we do good work. We are helping the world to a new frame of mind and getting people to see that a different viewpoint may be to their benefit, and so long as we do that we are perfectly willing to go on."

GALE KEEPS FLYER CHIEF AT KANATAK

[BY RADIO AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ON BOARD THE UNITED STATES COAST GUARD CUTTER ALGONQUIN (Kanatak) April 21.—Unfavorable weather conditions did not permit Maj. Frederick Martin, commanding a squadron of the Army round-the-world flight of five navy seaplanes to leave today for the 550-mile flight to Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, where his three companions arrived Saturday.

Maj. Martin's plane, which received a new engine installed at Kodiak after being forced down during a storm at Sewart-to-Chignik, Alaska, was securely moored and weathered the gale remarkably well.

The wind was from the northwest. The temperature remained throughout the day at 18 degrees above zero with the barometer registering 30.02.

BODY FOUND IN SURF IDENTIFIED

Foul Play Indicated by Fractured Bones

Absence of Valuables

Identification of the body floating in the surf of Bonita Canyon Sunday as that of Joseph Farnum, 43 years of age, butcher formerly employed in Los Angeles packing houses, was made yesterday at the office of C. McClintock, who conducted a rooming-house at Ocean Park.

Discovery at the autopsy performed yesterday that the supposedly drowned man had suffered a broken neck, a fractured skull and a broken ankle caused police to bend their efforts to trace the recent movements of Farnum in the belief he had met with foul play. No money or valuables were found on the body, indicating, it is said, a possible robbery.

An inquest probably will be conducted today. The body is being held at the Pisch undertaking rooms at Sawtelle.

HOPES TO REALIZE DREAM OF GREAT RIVER BRIDGE

Noted Engineer Says Giant Span to Connect New York and Jersey Soon Will Be Realized

BY RAYMOND G. CARROLL
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Gustav Lindenthal, formerly Commissioner of Bridges of New York City, who is the originator, chief engineer and architect of the $250,000,000 North River Bridge project connecting New Jersey with Manhattan Island at Fifty-seventh street—estimated to accommodate at least 40,000,000 vehicles, 400,000,000 passengers and 25,000,000 tons of freight per year—had his first job in this country as a stone mason with trowel, hammer and crowbar at $2.50 a day on the grounds of the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition.

Mr. Lindenthal will be 74 years of age next month. He is nearly six feet tall, erect and weights 165 pounds. He is every inch an athlete, and "Billy" McLean, the veteran pugilist, taught him boxing.

"Yes, it is going to be," said the bridge-builder, who is also a planner of tunnels and railroads, speaking of the proposed Hudson River bridge, which is to have a single span of 3240 feet. His office is in the Pennsylvania Terminal. He added:

"To one who knew the New York of fifty years ago and has watched the engineering progress of the city, almost anything is probable. The necessity for a great bridge across the Hudson is so urgent as to require no discussion. The bridge will relieve and transfer a great part of the congestion of traffic in Manhattan to the Jersey side, where there is ample room for expansion. I can see the bridge built, a construction that will require fifteen years, for I expect to live to walk over it."

LANDED IN NEW YORK

Upon a scorchingly hot day the middle of July, 1874, young Lindenthal landed from a steamer in New York. He had resigned a good position as division engineer in the construction of one of the Swiss railroad approaches to the St. Gothard Tunnel through the Alps.

He had pursued scientific studies at Brunn, his birthplace, and Vienna, working his vacations as a carpenter, an apprentice at forging in a machine shop and as a mason. His father, Dominick Lindenthal, third of that name and a cabinet manufacturer, demanded that he combine practical experience with book-learning.

Brunn, then the capital of Moravia, now in Czecho-Slovakia, shares with Manchester, Eng., the weaving of the fabric from which men's evening dress is made.

The elder Lindenthal had visited the Paris Exposition in 1867, taking young Gustav, who was impressed by the showing of cannon used in the American Civil War, also the Krupp breech-loading steel forged guns with 1000-pound projectiles.

In 1873 he visited the International Exhibition at Vienna, at which he decided that the Philadelphia Centennial was the place for his talents as a draftsman.

JOBS WERE SCARCE

"But I had not counted upon the unemployment in the United States resulting from the panic of '73," said Mr. Lindenthal, "and the American cities were filled with idle men when I arrived. In Europe I had been warned not to tarry in New York for fear that I would be robbed, and that even if the thief was arrested he would be bailed out, and I, being a stranger, would have to go to jail.

"With my shawl on my arm, dressed in a linen suit and wearing a broad-brimmed hat, I hastened to my banker's, cashed the $200 draft which represented my worldly possessions, and without even buying a sandwich, took the ferry to Jersey City and boarded a train for Philadelphia. I recall that the ticket agent had to stop playing baseball in front of the station to sell me the ticket."

On the way from the station in West Philadelphia to the Merchants Hotel, in Third street, he saw his first fire engine and passed the City Hall site, the excavations for the foundations then being in progress. The clerk who roomed him smiled and spoke Pennsylvania Dutch. The rate was $2 a day, meals included.

"I did not have a letter to anybody, which I soon found was my mistake," said Mr. Lindenthal, "for I tramped from office to office, and although they treated me kindly, not an architect nor an engineer would have me. Days passed, and my funds dwindling, I invested 19 in a kit of second-hand mason's tools. They would not hire me at the City Hall, so I went out to the exposition grounds, where I found a foreman standing over a hole in the ground who also spoke Pennsylvania Dutch.

"'You stand over there,' he said, pointing to a group of waiting stone masons, 'and when I raise my hand you come.' On the fourth day, when the digging had been finished, he lifted his hand, and in the rush I managed to be among the first into the ditch, the site of the Memorial Hall, which was a permanent structure of the exposition and, with Horticultural Hall, still remains in Fairmount Park."

STRUGGLES NUMEROUS

The struggles of Lindenthal in Philadelphia would fill a book. His hands still carry the scars of his not knowing that he needed gloves to handle stones weighing 200 and 300 pounds. He had to lay off a week to let his hands heal. He moved from his hotel to a boarding house in Eleventh street near Vine, where he paid $3 a week, and after washing up and putting on his Sunday clothes, was received as a social equal by nice people who did not mind that he was a mechanic working ten hours a day at stone-masoning.

He put an advertisement in the paper offering to trade conversational German for conversational English. Louis Conrad, a Quaker coal merchant, responded, and in two months Lindenthal spoke as good English as a man in America ten years.

One day the engineer in charge of the foundation work came along the work at Memorial Hall, and after watching Lindenthal, said: "What are you doing here? You are an engineer, are you not?" Lindenthal said he was, and the inquirer, who was Alexander Barry, later a multimillionaire and developer of the Russian oil district in the Caucasus region, took him to Harriman Schwartzmann, chief engineer and architect of the permanent exposition buildings, who, in addition, was both a scholar and musician.

MADE DRAFTSMAN

Schwartzmann first gave Lindenthal a draftsman post on the wrought-iron work, but soon promoted him to chief of the designing office for all of the wrought-iron work. After that, while Lindenthal did not exactly "build the whole darn exposition," he helped mightily.

Thereafter he became consulting engineer in the construction of western railroads, specializing in bridges and tunnels. He came to New York in 1892 and prepared plans for the reconstruction of the Brooklyn Bridge, and it was he who first dreamed of a great monumental bridge terminal and Municipal Building combined, now realized.

He was one of the board of six consulting engineers which planned the tunnels and terminals of the Pennsylvania Railroad under the North and East Rivers, and was the architect of the Hell Gate Bridge over the East River, said to be the boldest and longest steel-arch bridge in the world. One of his bridges was awarded the Rowland prize.

In New York, when Commissioner of Bridges, he completed the Williamsburg Bridge and made plans for the Blackwell's Island (Queensboro) and Manhattan bridges.

BAY AREA FOR INDUSTRY PLAN

Santa Monica Lines Up for Greater City Idea

Citizens Pledge Support at First of Banquets

Los Angeles Association is Given High Praise

Heralding the program of the Greater Los Angeles Association as infinitely important to the bay district, representative citizens of Santa Monica voiced their hearty approval of the plan to "keep the white spot white" at banquet last night at the Miramar Hotel, Santa Monica. The meeting was the first of a series of gatherings planned in the bay section to place the aims of the association before the citizens and to gain their support in the undertaking outlined. More than 200 business and professional men, civic and club leaders were present.

Mayor Steele of Santa Monica welcomed the officials of the association and introduced H. M. Gorham, director of the Greater Santa Monica Association, who in turn introduced Carl F. Schader of the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce.

Harry H. Merrick, president of the Greater Los Angeles Association, acknowledged the tribute to the association made by Mr. Schader and outlined briefly the program of the organization. He told of the necessity of insuring the future growth of Los Angeles by bringing new industries. This, he said, is necesary if new citizens are to be employed and are to remain and become a part of the district.

TELLS OF CAMPAIGN

He told of the campaign to obtain 25,000 members and a revolving fund of $50,000,000 with which to invite outside industries to locate in the greater Los Angeles district.

Other talks stressing the support which Santa Monica and the district are eager to give the association were made by Willis Owen, industrial expert; Walter Thornton, Fullerton; George M. Franklin, president of the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce; L. M. Ford, president of the Santa Monica Realty Board; Dr. J. M. Kelsey, president of the Santa Monica Athletic Club; Neal Nettleship, president of the Santa Monica Merchants' Association; S. D. Koch, president of the Greater Santa Monica Club; F. W. Shapeligh, president of the Kiwanis Club; K. C. Olds, president of the Lions; H. Brown, president of the Orioles, and Carroll J. Daly, president of the Venice Zoning and Planning Commission. Rex B. Goodcell, United States Collector of Internal Revenue, was another speaker.

WOOL PLANT PLAN

Herman Beinssen, one of the largest wool buyers in the world, who annually purchases three-quarters of the wool output in Australia, after a thorough survey of wool production in the area tributary to Los Angeles and of the market Los Angeles may be expected to develop for manufactured woolen goods, yesterday broached to the officers of the Greater Los Angeles Association the proposition of establishing here a great textile manufacturing plant for woolen cloths.

Beinssen explained the project to S. H. Woodruff, a director of the association, explaining that he proposed to take the matter before a group of English and German textile manufacturers with the idea of interesting them in establishing such a plant in this area.

Mr. Beinssen said he is struck with the absurdity of shipping raw wool from California to the Atlantic seaboard or elsewhere to be sent back in the for mof manufactured goods for distribution.

Mr. Woodruff arranged an interview between Beinssen and A. G. Arnoll, head of the industrial department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

As a result of the publicity already given the Greater Los Angeles Association and its industrial financing program, inquiries are beginning to pour into association headquarters from all parts of the United States from manufacturers who are desirous of moving their plants to Greater Los Angeles. Seventeen such inquiries were received yesterday from Salt Lake City, El Paso, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Peoria, Rock Island, Cleveland, Brooklyn and San Antonio.

Until the Industrial Finance Corporation has been organized and is functioning, these inquiries will be distributed to the various Chambers of Commerce in Greater Los Angeles, effort being made to divert the inquiries to the community the advantages of which are best suited to the requirements of each particular manufacturer.

VALLEY BEHIND PLAN

At a luncheon at the Broadway Department Store yesterday, the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Gabriel Valley heard the objects and purposes of the association and the finance corporation outlined by Rex B. Goodcell and John H. Blair, association directors. A resolution was presented and adopted indorsing the association and pledging the support of the business men of the San Gabriel Valley to the program that has been planned. A membership drive for the association will be started immediately in the valley.

The following attended the luncheon: Karl Keeler, Alhambra; R. H. Schwartzkoff, Arcadia; C. A. Griffith, Azusa; D. J. Shutles, Baldwin Park; Frank Wheeler, Claremont; J. L. Matthews, Covina; M. L. Clark, Duarte; F. H. Lambert, El Monte; E. N. Bushnell, La Verne; J. E. Killian, Riverside; H. J. Evans, Monrovia; Charles R. Henderson, Monterey Park; J. M. Paige, Pomona; George E. Cross, Puente; W. G. Fields, San Dimas; George M. Dake, San Gabriel; Mayor Mitchell, Sierra Madre; Robert B. Neely, West Covina, and R. B. Kennedy, chairman, Whittier.

SENATE FOR MT. RAINIER NAME SHIFT

Joint Resolution Passes to Substitute Old Indian Term of Mt. Tacoma

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
WASHINGTON, April 21.—A joint resolution was adopted by the Senate today authorizing changing the name of Mt. Rainier, Wash., to Mt. Tacoma.

The resolution recited that whereas it was "the universal practice" to perpetuate Indian names in the geographical nomenclature of the country, Mt. Rainier now bears the name of "the commander of a British ship engaged in depredations along the Atlantic Coast."

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, asked if a majority of the people of Washington desired the change, adding that he had received several letters protesting against it.

"The Legislature passed a resolution favoring the new name," explained Senator Dill, Democrat Washington. "I think the opposition there centers mainly in a few old-timers."

LETTER LINK IN WHEELER CASE

Note Evidence is Written by Montana Republican

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Dr. O. M. Lanstrom, newly-elected Republican National Committeeman from Montana, and Charles Rellenrath, manager of the Helena Record, are to be subpoenaed by the special Senate committee investigating the indictment of Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, by a Federal grand jury in his home State.

They are to be questioned on the basis of information contained in a letter which has come into the possession of the committee, and which is described by Senator Wheeler as tending to support his charge that the indictment is a "frame-up" and the result of his activities as prosecutor of the Daugherty committee.

The text of the letter which was written by S. C. Ford, a Republican, former Attorney-General for Montana, to former Representative Tom Stout, of that State, is withheld, at least for the present. Senator Wheeler and his advisers take the position that the facts should be developed before the committee.

Subpoenas have been issued for a number of other Montana men, including three members of the grand jury which voted the indictment.

Because of the failure of other witnesses to reach Washington, the meeting of the committee scheduled for today was postponed.

THIRTEEN PIONEERS ON ROLLS

Cornelius Cole, Oldest Surviving Member of Society of 1850

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 21.—Only thirteen members of the band of pioneers who formed the Society of California Pioneers in 1850 remain on the rolls of the organization, according to a report filed today with Miss Eudora Garoutte, head of the California department of the State Library. The society had an original roll of 3111 members and was formed in San Francisco in 1850, membership being limited to persons coming to California prior to January 1 of that year or their descendants.

Of the surviving members Cornelius Cole, former Senator of Los Angeles, is the oldest, being 101 years of age. Frederick Russ of Piedmont, who came to California in 1847, is given in the report as the member having longest residence in California. Other surviving members of the original organization are as follows:

H. G. Gibson, Washington, D. C.; Titus Hale, Piedmont; A. A. Louderback, San Francisco; James A. Taylor, Oakland; Jules Auradon, Healdsburg; Sam Brown, San Diego; Joseph Brown, Los Angeles; Henry L. Byrne, San Francisco; Alfred Chaigneau, San Francisco; J. H. P. Gedge, San Rafael, and H. S. Tibbey, Seattle.

CALIFORNIA OIL DEAL QUIZ NEXT

Separate Inquiry Scheduled for Honolulu Company

Start May be Deferred by Senate for Some Time

General Investigation to be Wound Up Next Week

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A separate investigation into the leases granted to the Honolulu Oil Company on land within naval reserve No. 2 in California is to be made by the Senate oil committee, it was disclosed today by Senator Walsh, prosecutor for the committee.

A resolution proposing such an inquiry recently was offered by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and adopted by the Senate. No date has been fixed for the opening of this investigation and it may be deferred for some time. The general oil inquiry is to be wound up next week to await final decision by the court as to whether Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, is to be required to testify.

Upon the resuming of its public hearings Wednesday the coming will take up leases in naval reserve No. 2 other than those to the Honolulu Oil Company. It will hear Assistant Secretary Finney of the Interior Department and Dr. H. Foster Baine, director of the Bureau of Mines.

Senator Walsh said this inquiry probably will be brief, as he has no information that there was anything irregular about the transactions.

The committee prosecutor had hoped to wind up the present inquiry this week, but he was advised today that Mrs. Georgia Hamon Rohrer, widow of the late Jake Hamon, Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, probably will be unable to arrive in Washington before next week. She has yet to go to Oklahoma to obtain the books and papers left by Hamon which the committee desires to examine in connection with gossip of oil "deals" at the Republican National Convention in 1920.

JURY TODAY WILL DECIDE THAW FATE

"I'll be Free," Confident Forecast of Slayer of Stanford White

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Whether Harry K. Thaw is a sane man or a lunatic, will be decided by a jury here tomorrow, testimony in his trial and the addresses of opposing counsel virtually having been completed today before Judge Monaghan.

"I'll be free tomorrow!" was Thaw's confident assertion to his counsel as court adjourned.

Admission by two alienists, called to the stand by counsel opposing his release, that during Thaw's confinement at the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, he had shown no indications of insanity, was taken by his lawyers as a strong point to their client's favor although both alienists stated he was suffering from "moral insanity."

During today's proceedings Thaw evinced active interest, making numerous remarks to his attorneys. Former Judge Patterson, chief counsel for Thaw, in his address to the jury, attacked the opposition for their failure to cross-examine Thaw when he was on the stand, asserting that had they done so "the result would have thrown their case out of court."

Neither Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, 32-year-old mother of the slayer of Stanford White, nor Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's divorced wife, appeared on the witness stand.

National Baby Week Program Now Under Way

National Baby Week opened yesterday at the Plymouth Congregational Church under the direction of the Mothers' Educational Center.

Many of the babies expressed their disapproval in no uncertain terms but a goodly number treated the measuring, weighing, thumbprinting and all the rest of the experience as rather a novel performance arranged for their entertainment. Cataloguing of infants will be continued every day this week by trained experts.

President Coolidge has announced May 1 as Child Health Day and the center will publish the scores made by the babies here at that time.

Thursday night a public meeting will be held at which Dr. Guy Cochran will speak on "Children's Surgery;" Dr. Henry Dietrich on "The Importance of Breast Feeding," and Dr. Ralph Truitt on "The Child Guidance Clinic."

AVORITES WIN HANDBALL PLAY

Upsets in Opening Games of National Tourney

Murray Eliminates Ad Schaumer at L.A.A.C.

Lawell Cops First Round Tilt With Ease

BY BILL HENRY

Monday's applecart was rudely upset in the opening day's play in the national handball championship at the L.A.A.C. yesterday, when Murray of the Olympic Club, Ad Schaumer, and Maynard Lansdale of the L.A.A.C., respectively, former and runner-up in the 1923 contest, earned a couple of victories while their opponents got nothing but a pair of goose eggs. Murray looked particularly good against Ad Schaumer, who appears to be suffering from an inferiority complex, missing shot after shot that ought to have been a sure point. Murray ran Schaumer out, 21-4, 21-12, Schaumer showing a lot of improvement in the second game, but not enough to make any particular difference as to Mr. Murray was concerned.

The defending champion, with wonderful physique to start on, and a condition to step twenty flights of stairs will Tommy Gibbons or any other slug. He plants himself square in the middle of the floor and attacks everything with fierce accuracy and either hand and cuts over awfully fast ball to get action. Manifestly, if somebody were to remove the diadem from Lansdale's head, he is going to have a big job to do so.

The draw for the singles is very easy, practically all of the championship contenders being in the lower half. The top quarter finds Ritter; George Klawitter and Ed Caley of the L.A.A.C. in the second with Gus Bruns of the South End Rowing Club of Venice as chief contender. Ad Schaumer, one of the contenders for the title, has the secondary task of the L.A.A.C.; Red Murray, 1923 champion; J. Dent of Salt Lake City, and Bill "Murray" Ranft, are all gathered. Ad Schaumer was there also until fate at the hands of Mr. Murray yesterday. Mr. Red will tangle with Dr. Driscoll at noon today and both promises to be a red-hot affair.

The final quarter finds Dr. Fried-

STAGE TWIN MAIN EVENT

McLean and Morgan Meet at Vernon Tonight; Dillon Faces Young Nationalista

With a double main event scheduled the weekly boxing show will be staged at Jack Doyle's Vernon coliseum tonight.

Stewart McLean and Tod Morgan, 126-pounders, will hold down the windup position, with Young Nationalista and Jockey Joe Dillon, 113-pounders, boxing in the sixth spot.

MORGAN A FAVORITE

Morgan has appeared at Vernon before but most of his recent appearances in local rings have been at the Hollywood stadium where he is a great card. A few months ago Morgan was considered the best boy of his weight on the Coast but with the arrival of McLean and the return of Frankie Garcia his claim to the title is not at all clear. If he can beat McLean he can again claim the honors as the Coast's best 126-pounder for he will have beaten the boy who beat Eddie Anderson decisively who in turn walloped Garcia.

McLean has proved a great card locally. He has done everything asked of him in the way of ring performances and the fans like his agressiveness. McLean is one of Mike Collins's stable and the Minneapolis manager is not carrying any dead ones on his list.

Nationalista and Dillon should put up a slashing bout. The Filipino has yet to lose a four-round bout but Dillon is confident he can take him into camp. Dillon is a willing little mixer and a fair puncher. A win for Dillon would be a big upset in the dope but he figures to make it a good fight.

VILLAMORE MEETS FARRELL

Felix Villamore will take on Young Farrell in the feature preliminary. Both are fast boxers and should put up a slashing contest. Farrell is still one of the toughest little trial horses among the local 118-pounders.

Practically all the weight on the card is down in the preliminary lists. The fourth bout on the card will be between Jimmy Darrah and Mickey Rockson at 158 pounds. Darrah looked great in his first bout but has since had a tough time getting over. In Rockson he is meeting a tough and willing boxer.

Lefty Cooper and Red Williams, 145-pounders, are third on the card and the other bouts are: Jack Thompson vs. Young Terry, 150 pounds, and Scotty Diest vs. Roy Moore, 145 pounds.

San Francisco Nine Here for Vernon Series

Manager Bert Ellison and his troupe of trained Seals from San Francisco arrived in Los Angeles today all primed for their big series with Bill Essick and his equally notorious outfit of battling Bengals which starts this afternoon at the local ball farm. The Seals are out in front in the official standings, having lost only three games, during which time they have garnered eleven victories. By virtue of losing the last three games to Marty Krug's ambitious Angels the Tigers are in fourth place.

Good pitching has been largely responsible for the success of the Seals to date. Oliver Mitchell, Shovel Hodge, Pat Shea, George Barger and that old veteran, Geary, have turned in some pretty fine performances during the last two weeks and the Tigers are apt to find difficulty in swatting the onion.

Several old favorites will be in the San Francisco line-up. Pete Kilduff, former Cub player, will be back at his old stand at second base, with Manager Ellison, who has been hitting the agate at a rapid rate, on first. Gene Valla, Kelly and Hendryx all showed here last season, in the outfield. Hal Rhyne, touted as the best shortstop in the league, has been playing great ball. Eddie Mulligan, the fighting infielder, will be on third.

The Angels are in Oakland today where they will clash with Ivan Howard's crew. Elmer Myers was scheduled to do the heaving for the Seraphs.

TILDEN RESIGNS AS MEMBER OF THE AMERICAN DAVIS CUP AND OLYMPIC TENNIS TEAMS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, April 21. William T. Tilden II, national tennis champion, today announced his resignation as a member of the American Davis Cup and Olympic teams.

In doing so, Tilden said that as his amateur status had been questioned, he wished to relieve the Davis Cup committee, which had named him for both teams of any embarrassment that might arise over his position as an amateur player.

Tilden said he would play as an individual in such American tournaments as he might enter and would defend his title in the national championship next August.

Along with his announcement Tilden made public a letter he sent today to Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis Cup committee, in which he refers to the report of the amateur rules committee made public last Saturday. "I learn with astonishment," said Tilden in the letter, "that the player-writer in general, and I in particular, am regarded by the committee as not only no longer an amateur, but as an evil influence in the game."

The letter is as follows:

"From the report of the amateur rules committee of March 15, 1924, made public on Saturday last, a copy of which was mailed to me, I learn with astonishment that the player-writer in general, and I in particular, am regarded by the committee as not only no longer an amateur, but as 'evil influences' in the game.

"As my name is used in the report, there can be no doubt that I am regarded by the committee as such an 'evil influence.'

"Since it is inconceivable that the association would desire the presence on the Olympic or Davis Cup squads for 1924 of such an 'evil influence' I, although I do not for a moment concede either the fairness or correctness of the committee's interpretation of the amateur rule or of my standing thereunder, tender to you my resignation as a member of both squads.

"I do this to relieve the association of the embarrassment and to save them from the criticism which will be theirs if they take the initiative in the matter.

"I do not regard myself as violating either the spirit or letter of the amateur rule, and I certainly do not consider myself an 'evil influence' in the game, but your report clearly states that is the opinion of the committee I am.

"Since the executive committee has already unofficially expressed itself in favor of professionalizing me next year, should the present conditions continue, they must clearly regard me as a professional now.

"I resign with regret, but self-respect compels me to do so. I wish you and the committee to know that my services are at your disposal when my amateur status is clearly recognized.

"Trusting that the cup will long remain on our shores and wishing the committee and the team all success in 1924 challenge rounds, I am,

"Very sincerely,

"WILLIAM T. TILDEN II."

NEW YORK, April 21.—William T. Tilden's announcement in Philadelphia of his withdrawal as a member of the 1924 American Olympic and Davis Cup teams, created a sensation in tennis circles here today, but officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association declined to comment on the champion's unexpected decision.

It was pointed out, however, by a member of the Davis Cup committee, which selected Tilden for this year's international contests, that the committee felt no embarrassment over the situation caused by Tilden's status as a player-writer, which the champion gave as the reason for his step. Had such been the case, it was said, Tilden would have been advised of it without hesitancy.

Tilden, it was emphasized, is in good amateur standing this year, so far as the United States Lawn Tennis Association is concerned, although recently he was informed that under the player-writer rule, which goes into effect next January, he would be ineligible for amateur play in 1925, if he continued newspaper writing on his present scale.

At a conference of the tennis officials on this point recently, however, Tilden, it was understood, came to an amicable understanding with the United States Lawn Tennis Association after a thorough discussion of his case.

Mrs. Potter Medalist in Golf Tourney

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21. Mrs. Brent Potter of the Lincoln Park Golf Club came through for first honors with flying colors in the qualifying round of the Northern California Women's Golf tournament which opened today on the Burlingame Country Club course. Mrs. Potter negotiated the eighteen holes in eighty-five. This performance looks like a real comeback and was to be expected from the medalist as she was high in honors in the same tournament last year.

Mrs. W. C. Van Antwerp of the Burlingame Country Club came a close second with a score of eighty-eight. Mrs. Van Antwerp, the former State champion is expected to better her performance. Mrs. Robert A. Roos, present champion was badly off form, as she drove out of bonds five times on the short seventh hole, taking a ten for the hole.

Joe McGinnity, known as the "Iron Man" of the diamond, has pitched more than 1500 games during his thirty years of service in professional baseball.

FISHING SEASON TO OPEN LATER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

RIVERSIDE, April 21.—An emergency ordinance postponing the opening of the fishing season in Riverside county from May 1 to July 1 was passed by the Board of Supervisors here today.

The ordinance also calls for the closing of all mountain roads in the county to all persons except those bearing special permits.

POETS AWAIT GRIZZLIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WHITTIER, April 21.—Coach "Rube" Ellis's enterprising baseball club is preparing a refulgent reception for the Grizzly nine from Southern Branch, on Hadley Field, Whittier College, tomorrow afternoon, when the Poets play their second game in the Southern California College Conference baseball schedule of the prevailing season, the game having been postponed from last Saturday on account of the S.B.U.C. vacation.

Dope may mean anything or nothing, but at present the Poets are easy to look at, having won their first conference tilt with Occidental and later holding the loud-lauded Los Angeles Athletic Club nine to a 5-5 score in a ten-inning game. In the meantime the Grizzlies have defeated Caltech and Caltech passed the defeat right on to Pomona.

S.B.U.C. promoters claim that they have the best pitcher in the conference. As a counter-irritant be it known that the Quakers nicked the L.A.A.C. pitcher for thirteen — unlucky number — of hits. Jessup, the Poet mound man, may yet prove to be the Jonah of the conference and ruin the hopes of aspiring championship contenders. Ellis "discovered" him last year and proceeded to develop him. The coach was compelled to make a new catcher this year, Woodward, the veteran receiver, having passed out of the picture via graduation last year. The masked man is Ashton. The remainder of the infield will be composed of Shaffer, Denny, Johns and Bonnett. Denny is a freshman find and is credited with being so fast that he could rob the entire chain of Woolworth stores in one night.

In the L.A.A.C. game Ranzona at center fielded 1000, accepting three difficult chances against the sun. Other outer garden men may be Hanna and Williams. Johns, Ranzona and Williams played S.B.U.C. in the final frantic and famous game to decide the championship of the 1924 basketball season.

How they stand in conference:

Local U. C.	1	0	1.000
Whittier	1	0	1.000
Caltech	1	1	.500
Occidental	1	1	.500
Pomona	0	1	.000

ALLEN GOING FINE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—Bennie Allen, Kansas City, increased his lead in the play-off for the world's pocket billiard championship here this afternoon to four games won and one lost by defeating Frank T. Taberski, former title holder, 125 to 107.

GEORGES IN DIFFICULTY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Legal proceedings to prevent Georges Carpentier, French light-heavyweight, from meeting Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, in Michigan City, Ind., on May 31, will be started in the courts of Indiana immediately upon Carpentier's arrival in the United States, Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, announced today.

Gibson said he would base his application for an injunction on his contract with Descamps, the Frenchman's manager, for a Carpentier-Tunney match. This, he asserted, contains a clause prohibiting Carpentier from engaging in any other match in the United States before meeting Tunney.

A report that Carpentier would be brought into this country through Canada in an attempt to escape possible litigation in New York, prompted Gibson's plan to seek his injunction in Indiana, the manager declared.

Descamps today cabled Gibson from Vienna, that Carpentier would fulfill his agreement to fight Tunney after the Gibbons match. He predicted that the Frenchman would knock out Gibbons.

WILLIE HUNTER LOSES, 2 AND 1

Defending Champ in Lead at Noon by One Hole

Superior Putting Gives Paul Hunter Match

Huge Crowd Sees Golf Title Change Hands

BY CHARLES WEST

Accomplishing the he-man's job of defeating Willie Hunter, Dr. Paul Hunter won his fourth Southern California golf championship yesterday by vanquishing the defending title holder 2 and 1 over 36 holes at the Annandale Golf Club. In triumphing over the sturdy Briton, Dr. Hunter brought to a climax a week of sensational golf, in which he defeated strong players one after another until he reached the finals in company with Willie Hunter, and after a hard uphill battle finally eliminated his adversary on the thirty-fifth green. He was one down after the first eighteen holes.

The match was witnessed by over 3000 rabid fans, who swarmed over the links behind a system of ropes whose evident purpose was to keep everybody from seeing anything but under the direction of Professional Jack Malley and a few assistants the mob was shooed about in an efficient manner after the first few holes.

SUPERIOR PUTTING

Dr. Hunter did it with his little putter. Like many another important match, yesterday's contest was won and lost on the greens. Willie's putting was timid after the first hole, which he won by sinking a thirty-footer, and while his work on the greens was far from poor, he lost several excellent chances to win holes, while Dr. Hunter was sinking putts from everywhere all day, and gave the gallery numerous thrills by the efficient manner in which he nudged his approach putts.

At the start of the match Willie jumped into the lead with the aforementioned birdie, and the "I-told-you-so's" began to function. However, Dr. Paul matched this birdie with another on the short fourth, duplicating the feat on the par three-eighth after Willie had won the seventh, and the golfers were even at the turn.

By the end of the first eighteen holes Willie held a one-hole advantage, but the match was squared on the ninth green of the afternoon round, and it was the final trip around the second nine which settled the 1924 Southern California championship.

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF

Both finalists played golf worthy of the title they were seeking, the afternoon round being a series of sensational recovery shots, while in the morning they kept pretty well out of trouble. It was the kind of a match in which

Browne, who is entering the Indianapolis 500-mile national speedway event May 30, intends to display his laurels on the way East from Los Angeles. Preliminary Heats of Southern California Prep Meet Tomorrow

MANY STARS IN HEATED ACTION

Hundred-Yard Dash Attracts a Lot of Interest

Klein and Woodyard All Set for Speedy Heats

Finals to be Staged Next Saturday Afternoon

Promptly, let us hope, at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the preliminary heats in the annual Southern California high school track and field meet will be run off at the Coliseum. Saturday the finals are to be staged on the same track and, although tomorrow's turnout won't break any records, it seems likely that the largest crowd to see a local track meet will be on hand for the week-end festivities.

Heats are to be put on in both dashes, the hurdle races, the quarter-mile, the relay and possibly the half-mile, the first three winners in each heat to qualify for the finals. Class C heats will also be staged, the little fellows doing their stuff in the three dashes and the seventy-yard high hurdles.

No favorites are expected to be left out after tomorrow's events, as most of the stars will appear in separate heats. In one or two cases several good men will get together, as will be indicated when the lists of those in each heat are published tomorrow morning.

The entries closed yesterday afternoon with hundreds of athletes signed up. Following are the lads entered in all of the track events, the athletes' names following their schools:

HOLE-IN-ONE AT SAN GABRIEL

W. C. LaTournette, a member of the San Gabriel Country Club, entered the hole in one club with distinction yesterday when he holed out his brassie shot on par-three sixteenth of the Mission links. The hole, which measures 200 yards from tee to cup, will be remembered as extremely tricky, the green being sunk out of sight, while out of bounds stakes menace the golfer on the right.

GOLFERS TO TEE OFF AT FLINTRIDGE

Annual Invitational Golf Tournament Opens Today; Star Field Entered

Practically the same field which competed in the Southern California amateur championships at Annandale in the tournament just completed will be seen today at Flintridge when the first day of medal play in the annual invitational tournament is scheduled. Willie Hunt, runner-up in the titular event, and George Von Elm are expected to give Fred Wright a hard battle for low gross honors. Wright is a Flintridge member and knows his course exceptionally well.

Flights of sixteen each will be drawn for all who care to qualify, according to an announcement by the tournament committee yesterday. In addition to two prizes for gross scores in the medal round and two for net, trophies will be awarded the winners and runners-up in every flight, while winners of the defeated eights will also be presented with silverware.

Players will be permitted to qualify either today or tomorrow, entries being made at the tee. The first round of match play will take place Thursday, two rounds Friday, and the finals Saturday. The championship flight finals will be played over 36 holes.

AMERICAN OLYMPIC RUGGERS VICTORIOUS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PLYMOUTH (Eng.) April 21. The American Olympic Rugby football team today defeated the Davenport Services 25 points to 3.

In their first game on English soil, played before 6000 spectators, the Americans made an excellent showing. Hyland scored three tries, the rugby equivalent for the American touchdown; Williams two and Rogers and Dixon one each. The home team was awarded a penalty try for infringement of a rule by the visitors a few minutes after the start. Patrick converted two tries for the visitors.

The Davenport Service team was without nine of its regular players, who were assisting the navy team in France.

RIPPEY BATTING STAR IN VARSITY BALL GAME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE (Corvallis, Or.) April 21.—Thresher Rippey of Los Angeles was one of the batting stars of the baseball game with Pacific University, in four trips to the plate Rippey made two hits, one of them a home run. In the sixth inning four O.A.C. batsmen drove out home runs in succession. Pacific was defeated 16 to 1. More than thirty games are scheduled for this season and so far the home team has not been defeated. Rippey is a junior in agriculture and a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity. He is playing his third year on the team.

ANGLERS BRING BACK LIMITS OF TROUT

Several parties of "Ike Waltons" have returned from angling trips to the Rainbow Angling Club, all bringing back limits of fine looking fish. The fishermen report the stream is clear and cool and the trout biting at anything.

SPOKANE (Wash.) April 21.—The Gonzaga University baseball team today defeated Meiji University of Japan, 9 to 8.

WOULD KNOW, ANYHOW

Two men were angling. For some time they sat in silence smoking their pipes and watching their lines. Suddenly one of them uttered an excited exclamation and dropped his rod into the river.

"Did you see that fellow fall off that cliff over there into the river?" he shouted.

"Don't get excited, Tom," answered his companion, soothingly. "It may be a cinema actor doing one of his stunts. They often make films in these parts."

"But," said the other, "supposing it isn't, and that the man is really in danger?"

"Well," replied the other, philosophically, "if he drowns he isn't."—[Unidentified.

Culver City Boxing Club Opens in June

Culver City's new boxing organization will be rated as one of the biggest that Southern California has ever boasted. The new club has several workmen busy on the construction of the arena and hopes to have it ready early in June. M. E. Saenz, manager of the new club, has not yet decided on what night the set-tos will be staged. The American Legion Community Post, No. 46, is behind the new project, which is also backed by several Culver City business men, headed by Harry Culver. Tom Jones, one of the best-known managers of boxers in America, has been appointed as matchmaker.

The arena will be the last word in construction. It will run 144 by 144 feet and will be octagonal in shape. Last-minute rushes of fans will not congest any of the entrances, as there will be five large exits. The seating capacity will be more than 6000, with added space in the aisles and standing room. It is the opinion of boxing fans that one more club in Southern California will not be too many in the local field.

Special accommodations will be made for ladies that wish to witness the bouts. A parking space of five acres will be reserved for autos. Earl Mohan, well-known moving-picture actor of Culver City, or Tommy Ryan, ex-middleweight champion, will be chosen as referee. Matchmaker Jones says that the best talent obtainable will be used for his set-tos.

OXY STARS IN CHILLY WORKOUT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 21.—Wintry weather didn't keep the sensational Occidental College track team from a workout at Stagg Field this morning. The Pacific Coast phenoms, fresh from their triumph at the Kansas relays, left this afternoon for the Pennsylvania relays. They will reach Princeton University tomorrow and will be guests of that institution for three days, working out tomorrow afternoon at New York University. Trainer Johnson of the University of Chicago assisted Pete Poole in taking care of the muscles of the athletes.

Local sporting authorities who witnessed the performance of the Occidental athletes in winning all five entered at which they were entered at Kansas, says that they are the most remarkable lot of athletes ever seen in the Middle West. Coach Joseph A. Pipal said here today that the wind kept his team from making better time than they did, although they broke four records.

The sprinters, Argue, Buckman and Nash, attracted much interest here today as each won his heat in the 100-yard dash at Kansas in 10s. flat. They were beaten in the final by Erwin of Kansas but all said they got off to a bad start. All the athletes are in good shape, including Spangler, a big muscular quarter-miler, who loafed Saturday to prevent injury to a pulled muscle sustained some time ago.

GERBAULT CAPTURES FRENCH CHAMPIONSHIP

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, April 21.—Alain Gerbault, the young Frenchman who last year crossed the Atlantic in a forty-foot sailboat, the Fire Crest, has rounded into his former tennis stride. He has just captured the eastern covered-court tennis championship of France, winning the final match from Albert Guillemant, 6-4, 6-4, 0-6, 6-3.

Gerbault's performance was somewhat tempered by the fact that none of the "big three," Cochet, Borotra and LaCoste, competed, but he remarked that it was good training for his coming trip from New York to San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal, which he intends to start next month, as soon as the Fire Crest is released from the Brooklyn yard, where she now is under repair.

From San Francisco he will head for Honolulu. After that he plans the five-year voyage among the South Sea Islands, finally landing in Australia.

HAUGDAHL TO COLUMBUS

Norwegian Speed Champ Leaving This Week to Take on a Few Drivers in Ohio May 11

BY PAUL LOWRY

Unless present plans are altered Sig Haugdahl, the Norwegian speed champ, will leave Los Angeles this week for Columbus, O., where he is scheduled to make an exhibition with his Wisconsin special and drive in competition on May 11. For wheeling the Wisconsin flyer about the track for one circuit Haugdahl draws down 1000 smacks, he said, with a crack at about $3000 in competitive races.

Haugdahl said nothing would tickle him better than to meet Ralph De Palma in another match race, but he has a couple of weeks' work on his big car to get it in shape and he wants to take advantage of shipping east this week with Horey and Lecklider, who are planning to leave for an eastern campaign, he said. By pooling their cars Haugdahl said he and the other drivers would get a cheaper rate than by shipping independently.

Numbered in Haugdahl's collection of cars are his Wisconsin special, Miller special and his big Fiat. The Scandinavian plans to use his Fiat in most of his campaigning, sandwiching the Wisconsin in for exhibitions and tooling the Miller when he runs up against particularly fast competition. About ten races with the Miller will be plenty, according to Haugdahl. He wants to return to Los Angeles next winter with the car good for something else than junk, and that is the reason he gives for driving it only when he knows he is going to be pressed.

Despite the fact that he ran away from Duray and made a sucker out of the Frenchman on the turns in Sunday's race Haugdahl says his Miller was a long ways from being right. He claims he can get a lot more speed out of the car, and if he had the time and somebody would make it profitable nothing would please him more than to take Ralph De Palma on for a nothing-barred contest.

De Palma will race next Sunday, it was announced from Ascot headquarters yesterday, the Bozzani sweepstakes being the name of the big event. It was titled in honor of Amerigo Bozzani, a long-time patron of the gasoline racing sport.

It was also announced that Leon Duray's alibi for his poor showing against Haugdahl on Sunday was a slipping clutch and that he has been awarded the "Alibi Helmet" for the most ingenious excuse for being beaten. Further it was stated that the technical committee had barred the No. 45 "death car" from further competition at Ascot.

Paddock Goes to Compete at Drake Relays

Sir Charles Paddock, the well-known Montenegrin nobleman, left yesterday for Des Moines, Iowa, where, on Friday and Saturday, he is to appear in special sprint races. Paddock, who has been through a stiff campaign of conditioning here, said he was in great shape and expects to show fans that he has lost none of his old-time speed.

Friday, Charley will take part in a special 100-yard dash and on the following day he will try to bust the record for the 130-yard sprint.

NATIONAL LEAGUERS EXCEL IN HOME RUNS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
CHICAGO, April 21.—Fifteen National League players knocked out home runs during the first week of the new season, while only eight American League players circled the bases.

Babe Ruth, home-run king, squeezed into the list when he week of the new season, while only fence in the game with Washington.

Harry Heilman, hard-hitting Detroit Tiger, swatted two the first week. Jacobson and McManus, both of St. Louis also had two. In the National, Groh, New York, and Grantham, Chicago, were the only players making two in the first week.

BRING ON THOSE TRAINED SEALS

That's what Bill Essick, Vernon manager, had to say yesterday when informed that the San Francisco club planned to take all seven games of the series which starts here this afternoon. The Tigers are rarin' to go and it is largely the tactics used by Bafflin' Bill that makes 'em that way. Manager Bert Ellison and his Seals are leading the league.

Ned Cutting's Riflemen Win in Cabin Shoot

The Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club filled the air with powder smoke and cheers of excitement at their little log cabin range, Friday night. Fourteen men were present to take part in the shooting, which although it did not break any records was full of thrills for everybody present.

Ned Cutting's skillfully selected team, which was picked by shutting his eyes and drawing the names from a hat, got up on the proverbial "high" horse" and won the match from the Selects. The victory was not due so much to good shooting of the winners as to the worse exhibition of the other squad. Mr. Cutting with a score of 95 walked away with high-point honors for the evening.

On next Sunday, the club stages the E. C. Price match, military and sporting rifles offhand at 200 yards; the Crossman match .22 rimfire rifles, prone at 200 yards, and the second leg of the Ned Cutting match, hunting and military rifles 10 shots prone.

BOWLING PLAY-OFF MATCH POSTPONED

Owing to Ona Gregg being suddenly stricken with pneumonia, the play-off series for the bowling doubles championship of Southern California and the B. H. Dyas Company gold medals, scheduled for Sunday night at the Angelus Academy, was indefinitely postponed.

The eight five-man teams of the Angelus, entered in the Coast championship play which opens next Saturday at Venice, held a sweepstakes play Sunday night, so the large crowd would not be disappointed and also to get in trim for the championship classic. The House of Quality Cigars came out first with 3064 points and the Angelus Academy was second with 2971. Chalmers and Weirr were first in the doubles with 1257.

There are thirty-two leading professional billiardists in the United States. Jiu-jitsu Star to Wrestle at Philharmonic

Hiko Shoji, a graduate of the University of Waseda, one of the highest institutions of learning in Japan, will be one of the featured performers on the big wrestling program carded for a week from tomorrow night at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Shoji, who is as fine a jiu-jitsu artist as there is in Japan, will meet Jack Viley, the Rochester butcher boy.

Jim Londos and Yusif Hussane, two mighty tough bone crushers, are scheduled for the main event, with Bull Montana and Prof. Mulligan of the local Y.M.C.A. also on the evening's bill.

Charlie Deal Big Noise on Bill Essick's Squad

Some of the names which appear high up in the list of Pacific Coast League batters after two weeks of play do not look familiar in such a position. However, Duffy Lewis, who leads the entire circuit, has always been a consistent swatter.

Lewis also leads in home runs with seven. Fredericks, Salt Lake outfielder, has made six circuit swats. Lazerre of Salt Lake and Welch of Seattle are tied for third place in the home-run column with five.

Menosky and Griffin, of Vernon are tied with Kopp of Sacramento in three-base swats with three each. Valla of the San Francisco team which plays against Vernon at Washington Park this week, leads in stolen bases with seven. Mulligan, San Francisco third-baseman, is second with five.

Whaley leads the Los Angeles batters with .400. Beck has batted .391 and Hood .356.

USE KNIFE ON FABER'S RIGHT ARM

Star White Sox Pitcher to Undergo Operation for Chipped Elbow

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
CHICAGO, April 21.—For the second time in the series with the Cleveland Indians rain today prevented the White Sox from engaging in their favorite pastime, of winning ball games.

Word came from Mercy Hospital today that Urban Faber would undergo an operation to have his right pitching arm restored to service. A small sliver of bone was chipped from the elbow in spring training, it is believed, and Faber has not been of service to the staff for two or three weeks. If the operation is successful the cascade spitballer may return to the game in a fortnight, it was said.

Amos A. Strunk, veteran outfielder of the Sox was given his unconditional release today. Strunk, one of the most valuable players the American League has known in years gone by, will probably go to the Coast League to play ball, unless he succeeds in landing another major league berth.

At the same time it was announced that Joe Rabbitt, outfielder, had been returned to the Muskogee club of the Southwestern Association.

TOO MUCH ROMMELL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DRINK ENOUGH WATER
Article LXXXXIV

When prohibition became a national law, there was great excitement throughout the land. One of the universal remarks being, that our personal liberty was being interfered with. Some are still raging about it. If that law had prohibited the drinking of more than one glass of water a day, there might have been some excuse for the excitement; but I doubt that there would have been any thought given to the matter if this had been the case. Yet, if such a law had been passed, there would have been an epidemic throughout our land that would have made the flu epidemic sound like a mere trifle.

The human body being composed of from 75 to 80 per cent water, shows us that we are three-fourths water. If nature created us thus, is it reasonable for us to suppose that we can deprive our bodies of this amount of water and still expect to be healthy? The water of the body is being used continually in the functioning of every part of the body; and a portion is being eliminated continually in various ways, therefore, must be replaced. All foods supply water, some more than others; certain green vegetables contain 95 per cent water, but the majority of people eat only small portions of these foods in comparison to the amount of meat and other foods that contain a smaller proportion of water, and at the same time drink very little water.

HARMFUL RULE

Most people disregard many laws of nature, the drinking of water is one of them, and one of the most harmful when continuously broken.

If people would learn to eat more fruit and vegetables, and less meat and starches, there would be less danger, yet, one should drink several glasses of water every day even thought they are eating the proper foods that contain a greater portion of water. But when one considers that the average person is neither eating the full amount of natural food, nor drinking the proper amount of water, it is no wonder we have as many sick people as we do. And when I say sick people, that does not mean those alone who are confined to their homes, it includes all those who are trying to make a living, and are 50 per cent below normal. There are more sick people walking around and trying to work than there are confined to their beds.

Water possesses remarkable properties, all of which render it most valuable for healing purposes; two of which are: 1. Great power in absorbing and communication heat. 2. Great solvent properties, water being the one universal solvent.

Being a universal solvent, its internal applications materially aid in the elimination of uric and oxalic acids and other abnormal products which, under certain unhealthy conditions, rapidly accumulate in the body to its great injury.

One may eliminate meats of all kinds from one's diet and still live and be healthy, but cannot eliminate water and live any more than one could live without air.

OCCUPATION GOVERNS

One's occupation has a great deal to do with the amount of water that is necessary to drink. If one's work is such that one perspires a great deal, that person needs to drink more than one who is engaged in lighter work that calls for less exertion. Those living in warmer climates need to drink oftener than those living in colder climates. The average person owing to the plan of living, regarding one's diet should drink from six to nine glasses of water each day; especially those living in Southern California. That should be divided throughout the day. Not more than one glass with a meal—and that should not be used for the purpose of washing down the food, but sipped slowly after the food has been well masticated. One glass between meals; two glasses on arising in the morning, one about two hours after dinner at night and still another before retiring. Then by eating the right kind of foods at meal times, combined with a few light stretching exercises, a few deep-breathing exercises preceding the exercise, one should be able to keep himself fit at all time, and would certainly get more out of life.

One should also see to it that one drinks pure water. In many cases apparently pure water is not strictly pure. One cannot be too careful regarding the water one drinks.

Five hundred schools and colleges have entered teams for the Pennsylvania relay carnival on April 25 and 26.

a birdie was necessary to win a hole, while a remarkable number of holes were halved under par.

After Willie had scored his three on the opening hole, they halved the second with par fives. Both laid their tee shots within a few feet of the pin on the third, Willie's putt falling off, while Dr. Paul rolled his in. The defending champ again went into the lead on the seventh hole, reaching the green with two screaming wood shots and running down two putts for a birdie four. His opponent, however, evened matters with a two on the eighth, and the ninth was halved, leaving the match all square.

Both players hooked into a trap at the tenth, Willie making a beautiful out, but missing a short putt for a birdie, and the hole was halved. On the eleventh Dr. Paul got a half after being in a dangerous trap and pitching too strong when he holed a nice rainbow putt, but was one down after the twelfth, which Willie took with a par. The canyon hole was halved when Willie's putt rimmed the cup, and although Dr. Paul pitched within twelve inches of the cup on the fourteenth, he missed his putt and Willie got a half.

LEADS AT NOON

On the next two holes Willie Hunter was in traps, but by his customary excellent approaching he held his lead of one hole by halving the rest of the eighteen with Dr. Hunter, and led by a one-hole margin at the half-way point.

Approximate cards follow:

MORNING ROUND

A pitch within three feet of the pin on the first hole of the afternoon round gave Willie a birdie and a two-hole lead over Dr. Paul, who won back one of them with another two on the fourth, sinking a thirty-five-foot putt to accomplish the feat. The match was all square after the seventh hole of the matinee, Dr. Hunter laying his approach dead to the pin for a birdie four, and the Annandale representative took the lead for the first time during the match when he holed a difficult putt on the eighth for a three, after keeping Willie company short of the green from the tee.

Dr. Hunter sliced his approach shot on the ninth, however, and Willie won the hole with a four and squared the match. Willie had a lot of tough luck on the eleventh. He hit a tremendous drive, which rolled into the trap in the middle of the fairway, some 280 yards from the tee. Dr. Hunter was safely short of the hazard, was well on with an iron, and ran down a short putt for a birdie, one of the few scored on this hole during the tournament. Dr. Paul had his turn in the traps on the next hole, and the match was once more squared when Willie played the hole perfectly. Another long putt on the canyon hole for a birdie put Dr. Hunter into the lead once more, and he maintained his advantage until the end of the match. The short fourteenth was halved in fours, neither player reaching the green from the tee, and Dr. Hunter got a lucky half on the fifteenth when Willie took three putts. The sixteenth went to Dr. Hunter, whose approach resulted in a birdie four, and it was all over on the seventeenth when both Hunters made par threes.

FAVORITES WIN HANDBALL PLAY

enburg of the South End Rowing Club; Jack Donavan of the San Francisco Olympic Club, and Laswell struggling for supremacy. Donavan had a tough match yesterday when he eliminated Art Stern, 21-12, 21-20. The dope has it that Laswell and Murray will meet in the lower semi-final and the winner will beat Frank Garbutt for the title. Dope is usually wrong, so we refuse to accept any liability for debts incurred from betting as above.

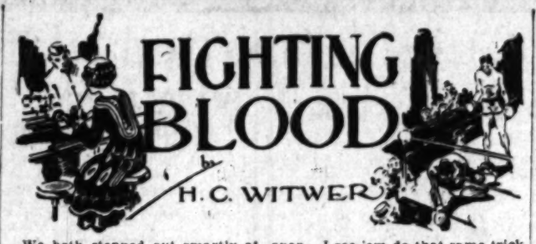
Following are yesterday's results: First round, singles—Klawitter defeated Escobar, 21-11, 21-18; Rick Retzer defeated E. Rosen by default; Bill Ranft defeated O. Todd, 21-4, 21-12; Red Murray defeated Ad Schaumer, 21-4, 21-12; Jack Donavan defeated Art Stern, 21-12, 21-20; Laswell defeated H. Dent, 21-6, 21-10; Spalty defeated J. Burke, 16-21, 21-18, 21-16; Burns defeated James, 21-20, 13-21, 21-10; McMillan defeated Haddock, 21-12, 21-5; Jaffe defeated Carlson, 21-4; 21-1; Orr defeated Hippard, 21-1- 21-11; Paynter defeated Beck 21-17, 21-18; Caley defeated Crockett, 13-21, 21-5, 21-7; Friedenburg defeated Chittenden, 21-3, 21-9.

Todd and Haddock of the San Diego Y. M. C. A. handed Hotchkiss and Leroy Stanton of the University Club a red-hot defeat of 21-5, 19-21, 21-7, after a long drawn-out contest, which was a battle from start to finish. Welton and James, Los Angeles Y. M. C. A., defeated H. Dent and Smith of Salt Lake with the easy-on score of 21-18, 21-17. Rosen and Burke, Southend Rowing Club, San Francisco, came out with the long end of a 21-10, 21-11 score against Reed and F. Stanton, L. A. A. C. McMillan and Donovan, San Francisco Olympic Club, won an easy 21-10, 21-12 victory from Crocket and Beck, Los Angeles Y. M. C. A.

Granfield and Wolf, from the Olympic Club, San Francisco, found the going a trifle stiff when they defeated Escobar and Jaffe of the Los Angeles Y. M. C. A., 21-17, 11-21, 21-18. For the L. A. A. C. Clark and Allen proceeded to trim McPhee and Coleman, San Francisco Olympic Club, 21-16, 21-14. Shanholtzer and Castell, Los Angeles Y. M. C. A. nosed out Carlston and Leaver of Salt Lake in an exciting match, 16-21, 21-7, 21-17. Orr and Haunsman had a comparatively easy time of it in the match with Olney and Davenport of the L. A. A. C., swamping them by a 21-17, 21-11 score.

Play will continue this morning with approximately fourteen singles and twelve doubles on the program. Fast competition is expected in these matches, which start at 11 a.m.

The highest price ever paid for a dog was recently paid by Jacob Francie of Baltimore, Md. He bought MacTyer, an English setter, for $7500. The dog is 3 years old and has already won three stakes of minor importance.



We both stepped out smartly at the bell and I led first to get it over with. My glove socked against Gunner Slade's nose and I nearly fainted with the pain which shot up my arm to the shoulder. It wasn't a stiff punch, either, just a mild left lead, but it was enough to show me that nothing but a miracle could make me knock the Gunner cold with the hands I got with me that night. I then begin to box very cautious, and, the mob which expected to see me sail into Slade and send 'em home early, gets highly indignant and razzes me to a fare-thee-well. The Gunner takes heart from my pacifist tactics and gets down to business (himself). He drove me halfways across the ring with a wicked right to the head which didn't do me a bit of good and when I merely crouched, covered up, and commenced to take it, the crowd goes wild. "Fight, you big stiff!" and "Fake! Fake! Fake!" is just a sample of the choice remarks which greets me on all sides. The least said about the opening frame, the better. I didn't take two punches at Gunner Slade and it must of been fearful to look at!

Round two was a duplicate of the first inning. Gunner Slade made a punching bag of me, and the customers called me names which will never make me stuck on myself. Toward the end of the round the ringside comment got under my skin and I came out of my shell long enough to crash the surprised Gunner against the ropes with a right and left to the jaw. How them two socks felt to Mr. Slade I don't know, but I do know that the pain from that pair of punches with my burned hands brought the water in streams from my eyes and give me a feeling in the pit of my stomach like when you go down a fast elevator. I immediately went back on the defensive again, unable to follow up my advantage and finish him. The crowd had leaped on the seats when I opened up, now they sank back with groans and hisses. When I run to my corner at the bell I get the same kind of reception that puss gives Rover.

Gunner Slade come out for the third round with a rush and sent me back on my heels with a poisonous straight left. He then hooked the same glove to my heart and whoever says them English scrappers can't hit is liars. This baby had a kick like two healthy mules! The mob roars when a right and left uppercut bends my knees and the Gunner commences to swing 'em from the floor, thinking it's all over.

The boys which has laid four and five to one on me to win by a knockout is screaming madly for me to take at least one punch at the Gunner and not act like a sheep in a slaughter house. I'm all at sea from the punishment I'm taking and the razzing, and in dancing away from one of Slade's wild haymakers I slipped to the canvas on my back, hitting my head with enough force to daze me for a second. The attendance thinks I been knocked stiff and you should of heard 'em. Like the steady roar of a record rain on a tin roof! I took "seven" and got up groggy. Nate yells for me to clinch, but the Gunner beat me to it with a terrible right swing to the pit of the stomach which drops me on my haunches for a clean knockdown. I am a very sick young man when the blessed gong stopped hostilities for that round.

Nate is like a wild man as he drenches me with the water bucket. He rushes over to the referee and begins a argument about Gunner Slade's gloves, demanding that they be examined. Nate knows that there ain't a thing in the world the matter with the Englishman's gloves; what he wants to do is give me a few extra seconds to come back to life. I needed a few years, not a few seconds! This Gunner Slade has cuffed and smacked me till I don't know what it's all about. While the referee and Kayo Kelly is examining the smiling Gunner's gloves, Nate slips back to me and begins to unlace my right glove with feverish haste. Before I can stop him, he pulls a hypodermic syringe from his pocket and jabs the needle a mile in the side of my throbbing hand.

"Listen!" he pants in my ear. "'At's cocaine, get me? It'll start to work in a minute and if they cut your arm off you wouldn't feel a thing! Go out there now and swap wallops with this big tramp. I don't think he can take it and if he could hit he'd of stopped you long ago, because he's already slapped you with everything but the hell. Go on now, kid, do your stuff!"

As the gong rung Nate turns and hands the hypodermic syringe down to a newspaper man which has been watching all of this with the greatest of surprise.

Well, I'm a new man when I jump off my stool for the fourth round. With my hand cocained I figure I'm free to tie into Gunner and that's what I done! I ducked his straight left and sunk my right under his heart with everything I got behind it and you never seen such a painfully astonished guy in your life. I think that one punch licked Gunner Slade, because his return, skidding off my ear, felt to me like the cuff of a playful kitten. Another torrid right down below opened him up, and while the crowd is still going nutty over the remarkable change which has suddenly come over me, I hooked him flush on the jaw with the same glove. He staggered back against the ropes, floundering around like a drunken man. His seconds shrieked for him to dive into a clinch and I grinned at 'em over my shoulder, measured Slade with a light left and then shot my right at his bobbing jaw. He went down like a German mark and down is where he stayed!

The Gunner's manager and handlers swarm into my corner, yelling something it's hard to hear over the continual roar of the crowd. We finally find out that one of Gunner Slade's seconds seen Nate give me the hypodermic and they're claiming the fight on a foul. Nate bends down and gets back the syringe from the newspaper guy he give it to. Then he hands it to a doctor which has been boosted into the ring.

"At's plain warm water in that hypo," says Nate carelessly to the interested reporters. "Nothin' else! The doc will tell you as soon as he tests it. If I want to give my man water between rounds, I can do it. I knew if my battler thought he was gettin' cocaine which would soon stop the pain, he'd sail into this Englishman and drop him. 'At's what he done! I kidded him out of it pain. I didn't dope him. I keep my eyes open. I see 'em do that same trick once with a hophead. They tell him he's gettin' morphine and he got water, but it works O. K. on this guy for a couple of minutes. I thought they'd be no harm in tryin' the same gag here—'at's all!"

Kayo Kelly has got my gloves off him until the end of the season.

and Nate holds my hands up. They look like a couple of overripe tomatoes and if you don't think they're painful—just burn your hands once!

"Good Heavens, look at his hands!" gasps the sport writer from the "Sphere." "And he knocked Slade out with 'em," he almost whispers.

"He got 'at in a fire; I'll give you the dope as soon as the doc here fixes up them hands," says Nate. Then he bends over me. "They must hurt like hell, don't they, kid?" he says anxiously.

What do I care if they hurt or not? I'm light-heavyweight champion of the world!

Ford owners can now enjoy the wonderful advantages of balloon tires without any change in rims whatsoever.

Ford-size Michelin Comfort Cords fit right on present Ford Clincher rims. All other balloon tires of this size require change from clincher to straight-side equipment.

Ford-size Michelin Comfort Cords are almost twice as big in air volume as the regular-size Ford cords now in general use. They are inflated to only 20 lbs. on front wheels and 25 lbs. on rear.

They make an almost miraculous difference in the riding qualities of the car. You "float" over obstacles with hardly a jar or jolt. Rattles and squeaks disappear. The strain of driving or of riding long distances is gone.

And, in addition, the life of your car is lengthened 50%. That means a saving of hundreds of dollars that pays for the tires many times over.

It is actually far cheaper to sell your present tires and equip your car with Michelin Comfort Cords than to use up your present tire equipment. Ford-size Michelin Comfort Cords cost no more than oversize cords for the same rims. Your Michelin dealer can make immediate delivery.

Michelin Comfort Cord Balloon Tires are made in a full line of sizes for rims from 30 x 3½ Clincher to 35 x 5 Straight-Side.

PRESIDENT WILL PASS ON BUREAU

Senate Veterans Committee Row is Appealed

Coolidge Withholds Ruling After Interview

Oddie and Reed Disagree as to Plan Needed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A disagreement of long standing between Chairman Reed and Senator Oddie of Nevada, the Republicans on the Senate Veterans Bureau Investigating Committee, as to whether there should be immediate radical and sweeping changes in the organization of the bureau, was taken today to President Coolidge.

After listening to the Senators for some time, the President took the matter under advisement. It is expected that he will confer with Director Hines before reaching any conclusion.

Senator Oddie summed up his criticisms of the bureau in this manner:

"Improper functioning from the start, of the War Risk Insurance and the Veterans Bureau due to wrong policies; improper organization and incompetent personnel in the principal positions."

Senator Reed made this statement:

"I am in agreement with Senator Oddie about the results to be obtained, but I am not in agreement with him on the methods of obtaining them."

Both Senators emphasized that their disagreement was a perfectly friendly one. It is fundamental, however, as Chairman Reed takes the position that Director Hines should be given a free hand.

Senator Oddie holds that the director cannot obtain the best results with his present corps of assistants.

COOLIDGE ASKS CHANGE IN LAW

Requests Congress to Revise Reclamation Statute

Definite Policy of Lasting Relief is Advocated

Tells Plan for Benefit of Arid Land Settlers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Immediate revision of the reclamation law along the lines indicated in the report of Secretary Work's fact-finding commission was recommended to Congress today by President Coolidge.

In a special message the President declared adoption of a "definite policy" toward reclamation projects to be imperative and asked that "permanent relief" for settlers rather than temporary extensions in reclamation payments be authorized by law.

NECESSITY TOLD

The message follows:

"I would respectfully urge on Congress the immediate necessity of revising the present reclamation law.

"The Secretary appointed a special advisory committee of six members to study reclamation and make reports to him. That committee has completed its work and has made its report to the Secretary of Interior and he has transmitted that report to me and I herewith transmit it to you.

"Many occupants of our reclamation project in the West are in financial distress. They are unable to pay the charges assessed against them. In some instances settlers are living on irrigated lands that will not return a livelihood for their families and at the same time pay the money due the government as it falls due.

"Temporary extensions of time and suspension of these charges serve only to increase their debts and add to their hardships. A definite policy is imperative and permanent relief should be applied where indicated. The heretofore adopted repayment plan is erroneous in principle and in many cases impossible of accomplishment. It fixes an annual arbitrary amount that the farmers must pay on the construction costs of projects regardless of their production.

"In its place should be substituted a new policy providing that payments shall be assessed by the government in accordance with the crop-producing quality of the soil.

URGES NO DELAY

"The facts developed by the special advisory committee show that of the government's total investment, $18,851,145 will never be recovered. There will be a probable loss of an additional $8,830,000. These sums represent expenditures in the construction of reservoirs, canals and other work for the irrigation of lands that have proven unproductive.

"I recommend that Congress authorize the charging off of such sums shown to be impossible of collection.

"Because of high rates of interest and other agricultural difficulties existing, farmers are often unable to borrow money for temporary relief. The establishment of a credit fund by the government from which farmers on projects may secure capital to make permanent improvements and buy equipment and live stock should be considered.

"The propable loss and the temporary difficulties of some of the settlers on projects do not mean that reclamation is a failure. The sum total of beneficial results has been large in the building up of towns and agricultural communities and is adding tremendously to the agricultural production and wealth of the country. Whatever legislation is necessary to the advancement of reclamation should be enacted without delay."

LABOR CHIEFS URGE MODIFIED DRY LAW

SAMUEL GOMPERS LEADS IN FIGHT FOR LEGALIZED LIGHT BEER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Another attempt to bring back 2.75 per cent beer by modification of the Volstead Act was made today before the House Judiciary Committee.

Samuel Gompers, president, and other representatives of the American Federation of Labor vigorously urged legislation that would permit once more the sale of beer with this alcoholic content on the ground that it would give the working man a "good, palatable, nourishing drink" that had "warmth" to it.

Matthew T. Woll, president of the Photo - engravers International Union, and also a vice-president of the labor federation, declared the Eighteenth Amendment did not attempt to define what drinks were intoxicating and that Congress had the power to legalize the sale of a 2.75 per cent beverage.

James O'Connell, president of the metal trades department of the federation, declared prohibition enforcement is the "colossal joke of the age," and is creating a "total disregard of respect for law that is appalling." Any law that cannot be enforced by the citizenship, he said, should be modified, especially when it is violated by the "whole citizenship."

All of the labor spokesmen asserted they did not wish to see the return of the saloon and sought only reasonable modification.

FATHER KILLS SON'S SLAYER

Murder in Court Adds to "Taxi War" List

Chicago Parent is Frantic Over Trial Delay

Crowd in Panic as Avenger Fires Point Blank

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 21.—A 55-year-old father who believed the law faltered shot down and killed today a man who was stepping from a courtroom on the eleventh floor of the County Building after again securing a delay in his trial for the murder of the avenger's son nearly a year ago.

Before the hysterical women in the Courthouse corridor were calmed police marked the murder down as another on the growing roll of the taxi war, for the man who died by the gun today was Jack Rose, a Checker cab driver, who had a long criminal record, and the man for whose murder he paid in kind also was a driver.

BATTLE LAST JUNE

Last June Frank Sexton, a young bridegroom who wore the checker-bordered hat, went out with his gun to gather support for one faction which was fighting for control of the co-operative company. He met Jack Rose and Max Raifman, cab drivers of the opposite faction, and there was a gun battle that ended in Frank's death. That laid the foundation for today's sensational killing.

Rose and Raifman were arrested and indicted while public indignation ran high. Witnesses were rounded up in squads and the machinery of prosecution hummed. Then time passed, other cases claimed interest and the case lagged.

Three times Patrick Sexton, the father of the murdered man, had rounded up the witnesses and gone to court to demand the punishment for the slayer of his son. But each time something came up and the case was continued.

Today the father again went to court with his wife and widowed daughter-in-law to demand justice. He had been sorely tried by the repeated delays and when the case was continued again he became frantic.

WAITS IN CORRIDOR

Leaving in the courtroom his wife and daughter-in-law, who still wear mourning, with Marie Sexton, his 17-year-old daughter, the man stepped into the hall and down the corridor a few steps where the stairs run to the tenth floor of the county building. There, while scores of witnesses in other cases and courtroom fans walked by, he paused and waited with his hand in his pocket.

Pretty soon Rose came along, followed by Raifman. They walked straight toward the father, who stood quietly. When Rose was less than eight steps away the avenger raised his shooting arm. He fired at point-blank range. Two bullets crashed into Rose, who crumpled to the floor while screams went up from the women in the throng.

Raifman stepped back and Sexton's arm started to rise again, but Sergt. Edward Weber and Policemen Roy Steffen and Martin Starkey, who were to have been witnesses in the case, hurled themselves on Sexton. They pinioned him against the marble wall, wrested his revolver from him and a second later the handcuffs clicked on his wrists.

MISS YOUNG IS EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Stricken Actress Over Crisis and Restoration to Health is Forecast

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FORT WAYNE (Ind.) April 21. Hopes for the complete recovery of Miss Clara Kimball Young, stage and screen beauty, who was operated on in a local hospital Saturday night, were expressed tonight by Dr. T. B. Weaver, chief of the staff of physicians and surgeons in attendance after he visited the sick room.

Dr. Weaver said Miss Young was still weak from the influence of the operation which he described as "very serious," but indicated that the stricken actress had safely passed the crisis and would be able to leave the hospital in about three weeks or a month. All this is contingent, he advised, on no complications, which now are not expected.

It is understood that Miss Young will remain here for a little time for further rest after she leaves the hospital and will return to Los Angeles in about six weeks. It is believed, her secretary, Miss Beatrice Fenwick, said, that it will be at least that long before Miss Young will be sufficiently recovered to stand the arduous trip from Fort Wayne to Los Angeles. The members of the "Trimmed in Scarlet" company in which Miss Young was starred have departed for the East the company having been disbanded after Miss Young's physical collapse.

REX INGRAM IS REPORTED ILL IN EAST

Overwork in Direction of Film in Europe Held as Cause by Wife

Rex Ingram has been suffering from ill health ever since his arrival from Europe, where he directed "The Arab," for Metro, according to a wire received last night from New York. He has been seriously ill of late, the wire said, and it contained the further mysterious information that his whereabouts is unknown.

Alice Terry, film star and in private life Mrs. Ingram, who is visiting her mother, said last night that, while Mr. Ingram had been ill, he was much improved, and that she had just received a wire to this cheering effect. She stated that he was in Florida, completing scenes for "The Arab," but would return to New York shortly.

"I am going back to New York to join my husband in about two weeks," said Miss Terry. "Rex has been more tired out from strenuous work in the Orient than actually ill. However, his condition was serious enough to warrant his taking a several days' complete rest, and he was suffering from badly overwrought nerves."

Returning to the East with Mrs. Ingram will be the little 8-year-old Arab boy whom the pair adopted in Egypt.

HUNDREDS DRAWN TO BALL OF HIBERNIANS

The forty-eighth annual ball of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which was held last night at the auditorium of the Knights of Columbus, was a success from every standpoint, including that of numbers. More than 500 members of the Knights of Columbus, Young Men's Institute, Catholic Order of Foresters and other organizations joined with the Hibernians in giving the ball, which was also a benefit for Joseph Mannix, one of the knights. The program committee arranged for a number of old-fashioned dances, including the Irish reel and the Virginia reel.

SQUARE AND BUILDER CLUBS JOIN IN MEET

A joint meeting of the Square Club and Builders' Club, both of the police department, was held last night at the Eagles Hall, for members and invited guests. More than 400 persons were present. The program included addresses and various forms of entertainment. Harry Raymond of the District-Attorney's office served as chairman and was presented with a diamond-studded gold star by his fellow-workers. Dist.-Atty. Keyes was presented with a gold certificate of honorary membership in both organizations.

MINISTERS HEAR BOND DEBATERS

Criswell Badly Tangled on Power Issue in Meet With Luckenbach

Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church listened to an animated debate between Charles A. Luckenbach vice-president of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, and Councilman Ralph Criswell yesterday at the ministers' meeting in the First Methodist Church. For twenty-five minutes Criswell tried to show the pastors that they should urge the taxpayers to vote for the $21,000,000 Power Bureau bond issue on May 6.

G. Bromley Oxnam tried to trip the gas-company official, but his questions only brought out from Councilman Criswell the admission that the plan of the Bureau of Power and Light is to "eventually take over the electric arm of the Los Angeles corporation and thus form another municipal monopoly."

FAR TOO HIGH

Challenging the statement of Criswell that "eminent engineers had advised the bond issue," Mr. Luckenbach said:

"First, the eminent engineers estimated that the Bureau of Power and Light needed $24,000,000, and then overnight such eminent engineers as Dr. John R. Haynes and R. F. Del Valle decided that $21,000,000 was enough. With $3,000,000 depreciation in twenty-four hours I'll show you that the $21,000,000 is at least $11,000,000 more than is needed.

"This is not a question of municipal ownership. You already have that. It is a question as to whether the taxpayer is to have municipal monopoly. We are fortunate that the Bureau of Power and Light has specified what the money is needed for. However, they asked for $3,000,000 to build substations when $1,500,000 would be ample, even allowing them $15 per kilowatt for construction of substations.

RATES ARE HIGHEST

During the many questions from the floor by the ministers, who took a keen interest in the discussion, Mr. Luckenbach said:

"Los Angeles now has a higher rate charge for electricity than any of these outside communities in the State in spite of the fact that we have municipal ownership."

The gas company official then went on to show that the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation is operated more economically than is the Bureau of Power and Light.

He then compared the demand made for bonds by showing that the Turlock Irrigation Company can construct power lines with steel poles, for a little more than $4000 a mile, that his corporation can build power lines in this city for from $6000 to $7000 a mile, while the city asks for twice that sum.

CRISWELL TANGLED

"Even allowing the city $10,000 a mile, the extra $3000 for the higher cost under municipal ownership, the city has asked for more than twice the sum necessary to build its extensions," said Mr. Luckenbach.

"There is a plan on foot to ultimately take over the plant of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation," said Ralph Criswell in answer to a question as to what the bureau proposed to do with its earnings.

Then Criswell tried to explain that the $21,000,000 is not to be used for that purpose, but he failed to get away from the fact that Mr. Luckenbach had shown that $21,000,000 is at least from $9,000,000 to $11,000,000 more than is needed.

He also became tangled when he was asked to explain the Price Waterhouse report. Criswell said the earnings of the Bureau of Power and Light are being used to build up the plant. He said there will be no profits until the plant is enlarged and improved.

GUARD HELD IN DEPUTY ATTACK

Had Been Detailed to Watch Quarantine Workers

Latter Accused of Extortion from Travelers

SANTA ANA, April 21.—Details of the shooting of a deputy sheriff, who was assigned to watch the quarantine guards on the Santa Ana Canyon and to investigate charges of misuse of authority and intimidation made by motorists, were disclosed today with the arrest of M. J. Ward, 30 years of age, formerly employed by Orange county as a guard.

The shooting is declared to have taken place in a hand-to-hand fight between Ward and the wounded deputy, Jack Meek, early Sunday morning. Meek and Leo Croonen, State inspector for Riverside county, had been detailed to keep Ward and another guard, whose name was not disclosed, under observation, after motorists had accused Ward and the guard of taking articles of food, tobacco and liquor from their machines when they passed the quarantine line, according to the officers.

FIGHT BEGINS

The fight between the two men, according to Meek, occurred when Meek and Croonen accidentally revealed their presence.

After Meek was wounded by the bullet which passed through his left arm, he disarmed Ward and placed him under arrest, Meek reported. The other guard was not arrested, it was said.

In Ward's automobile Meek reported he found several bottles of liquor.

WARD ARRAIGNED

Ward was arraigned today on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and his hearing was set for June 15. New guards have been placed at the line by Orange county officials and Ward and the other guard have been discharged, it was announced.

Orange county officials in charge of the quarantine declared that none of the guards was authorized to use fire arms. This ruling followed the shooting some time ago of a Long Beach man by a guard at the Orange county line, it was said.

By boring into the flanks of Mt. Vesuvius, Italy has been able to get steam to generate 10,000 electric horsepower, it is reported.

GILLETT NAILS WHISKY STORY

Speaker Brands Testimony at Inquiry as Outrageous

Committee Hears Two More Discharged Employees

Ex-Saloon-keeper Also Witness Against Daugherty

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Allegations of liquor disappearance at the Department of Justice, of defaults in antitrust law prosecutions and of privileges extended to millionaire convicts at Atlanta Federal penitentiary were made today before the Senate Daugherty investigating committee.

Speaker Gillett of the House was allowed to open the hearing by entering an emphatic denial that any of the liquor seized by the department ever reached him, and Chairman Houston Thompson of the Federal Trade Commission, who will be heard to greater extent later, began an account of that body's endeavor to induce the Department of Justice, under Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, to institute criminal proceedings under the antitrust law.

Speaker Gillett's appearance before the committee was brief, although sparks flew once or twice in his personal exchanges with H. L. Scaife, a former investigator for the Department of Justice, who asserted last week that liquor from seized stocks got into his hands. The only basis for the story, Mr. Gillett said, was that he did recover for a constituent a trunk seized because it contained liquor back in 1919, before the Volstead Act was passed, but only after the liquor was removed.

DISCHARGED CLERK HEARD

F. M. Boucher, a clerk dismissed by W. J. Burns from the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice in 1921, said officials in the department had been accustomed to keep good liquor from seizures in their offices for dispensing to friends, while Alonzo E. Bunch, former saloon-keeper, who got a court order for the restoration of over 100 cases of whisky, told a story of long and fruitless efforts to get it back, and asserted that it had all been "drunk up."

E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, got some of it, Bunch insisted, on the word of a man who hauled it away from the Department of Justice storerooms.

During one brief dip into the situation surrounding the Montana indictment of Senator Wheeler, its prosecutor, the committee was told by Robert S. Glenn of Nashville, Tenn., that a justice agent had asked him for facts as to Wheeler last March, and had endeavored to induce him to arrange a personal conference between the Senator and Mr. Daugherty "to call Wheeler off Daugherty."

FAILED TO PROSECUTE

Chairman Thompson's testimony first dealt with conditions in the tobacco industry in 1920 and ensuing years. The commission had recommended to Mr. Daugherty that criminal prosecutions be instituted on the ground that combinations existed both to hold up prices of manufactured tobacco to the consumer and to hold down prices of the raw material from growers. It was ten months before the commission could get an answer from Mr. Daugherty, the witness said, and the answer did not come until impeachment proceedings had been instituted in the House in 1922 against Mr. Daugherty.

This was the first industry to be taken up, but the Trade Commission member said he had several other cases affecting other industries to present. He declared that no criminal prosecutions had been instituted on the commission's information or recommendations.

DRESS IS REGULATED AT SCHOOL

Fashions Enforced by Student Body

[Don Gillum Photo]

Dorothy Horton and Edith Thornton

MODIFIED dress regulations requiring that dresses be not more than eight inches from the floor and sleeves at least two inches in length are being rigidly enforced at the Los Angeles High School by the girls' senior board and the girls' student body.

"Modified dress does not mean uniform dress," said Miss Edith Thornton, president of the girls' senior board. "Uniform dress consists of a middy and a skirt, whereas the system that we have adopted allows the girls to wear any kind of dress so long as they do not break the rules regarding the sleeves and skirts. We encourage the wearing of sport dresses and sweaters, but not the kind shown in the picture."

The majority of girls in the student body favor the new style of dress. In fact, there was no girl on the campus yesterday wearing a dress that would illustrate the wrong style, so Miss Dorothy Horton, president of the girls' student body, rolled up the sleeves on her sport sweater and was promptly reprimanded by Miss Thornton.

DEATH ENDS ROMANCE OF EARLY DAYS

Mrs. M. C. Crane Wed in Village of Los Angeles in Gold Rush Days

Death yesterday brought to a close the final chapter in a California romance of early days when Mrs. M. C. Crane, 89 years of age, died at her home, 1055 North Kingsley Drive.

Mrs. Crane was the wife of John Newton Crane, pioneer of the gold rush days, whose name is linked with the early history of this State. He died in 1902 after seeing Los Angeles grow from a ragged village of 8000 inhabitants. Mr. Crane is credited with installing the first bay window in Los Angeles.

Crane came to California in 1850 and for a time worked as a miner, later locating in Los Angeles. It was here he was joined by the girl who became his wife, who traveled 3000 miles by rail and stage to join him. They were married here.

Mrs. Crane is survived by a son, E. W. Crane, 214 South Union avenue. Mr. Crane was born here fifty-seven years ago, and is an electrical engineer.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow from the chapel of the W. A. Brown undertaking parlor, 1335 South Flower street.

Conviction in Grand Larceny Case Affirmed

The conviction in Superior Judge Burnell's Court of Joe Gonzales on a charge of grand larceny was affirmed yesterday by the Second District Court of Appeal, Division One. The decision was written by Justice Curtis and concurred in by Justices Conrey and Houser.

Gonzales appealed on the grounds that the trial court allowed a police officer to testify as to how a silk sock found in Gonzales's pocket at the time of his arrest was used as a mask although it had no connection with his alleged crime. In view of Gonzales's conflicting testimony the appellate court concluded that no jury would be prejudiced against him by the admission of any evidence which was not connected with the charge.

Gonzales was accused of stealing a small car on May 17, 1923. He was found driving the machine less than three blocks from where the owner had parked it. At the time of his arrest Gonzales explained that another man whom he had met but once before turned the car over to him while the man went in search of several girls to take riding.

Consul Tells of Shipments From Mexico

Winter vegetables grown in Mexico are being shipped in large quantities into the United States, according to W. E. Chapman, American Consul at Mazatlan, who is here for conferences with local business men and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce. The shipments total as high as seventy-five carloads a day, he reported.

Tomatoes make up the bulk of the shipments, he said, but there are also large quantities of green peas, string beans, cucumbers, cabbages and canteloupes. They are produced chiefly by American farmers in the States of Sinaloa and Layarit, he said.

The winter movement is between December 15 and May 15, he stated. He declared he is glad to see Mexican West Coast products marketed in the United States for it means that more credits will be available in American banks for Mexican merchants to check against. This will facilitate buying more American products, he said.

Mr. Chapman is on a leave of absence, the first in nearly three years. He will remain here all week and will be available for conferences on Mexican trade by appointment with the Chamber of Commerce.

ORIENTAL RUGS

Simple Rules for Distinguishing Various Types are Listed

Constantinople is the greatest rug market in the world, and there is practically no sort of rug which one cannot buy there.

Rugs fall into two broad categories, according to the way they are made. The first is the ordinary rug (in Turkish hali, with the accent on the i,) which is made with a nap or plush-like surface. The second is the smooth-surfaced mat, known in Turkish as a kilim, which is more like tapestry and has no nap but looks as if it were woven. Rugs also fall into three classes, according to the place of their manufacture—they are either Persian, Turkish or Turkoman.

Persian rugs have floral designs, the drawing being usually symmetrical and natural.

Turkish rugs are either prayer rugs (in Turkish sijadeh,) representing the conventional design of a mosque, or have floral designs much more stiffly drawn than in the Persian rugs.

Turkoman rugs have geometrical designs, such as squares and lozenges, with certain curious designs looking like hooks and others again like spiders.

It is no use for the ordinary buyer who is not prepared to spend much money trying to obtain an old rug. By an old rug we mean one made before the nineteenth century and having a collector's value.

The ordinary buyer should aim at buying a good modern rug made, say, forty to fifty years ago, when designs and colors were still quite good in the rug-producing countries. Among modern rugs the best kinds to go for are the Feraghan, Senne and Saraband (Persian); the Ladik, Kula and Panderma (Turkish); and the Shirvan, Bokhara and Beluchi (Turkoman.)—[Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Your Pain May Be Neuritis

Many sufferers who are treating for rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago or sciatica are really afflicted with neuritis. This disease of the nerves causes pains, aches, and soreness in different parts of the body, just like the ailments mentioned above.

The most common sources of neuritis are colds, injuries, bruises infectious diseases or a rundown nervous system. Long-standing cases of rheumatism or sciatica frequently attack the nerves, setting up inflammation and producing neuritis. No matter what its origin, neuritis is always accompanied by sharp, piercing pain, usually in the shoulder, forearm, neck, thigh, leg, or back.

Don't bother with medicines that relieve for today only. Assist Nature to remove the causes of inflammation and pain by taking Eeps Neuritis Tablets—a scientific treatment that has often brought lasting relief after other methods failed. Price, $1.00.

MODERN ARMY IS JAPAN PLAN

Committee to Study Plans of Other Nations

Equipment and Organization Held to Be Ancient

Leaders Deny Possibility of War is Seen

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, April 21.—The study of present day military equipment and the methods of financing its adoption formed the basis of instructions given by Lieut.-Gen. Ugaki, Minister of War, to the special committee of the General Staff Office which has just been appointed to draft recommendations for the thorough modernization of Japan's army.

This committee, of which the chairman is Lieut.-Gen. Tauno, the Vice-Minister of War, is not expected to submit its report before March 31, 1925. During the interval between now and that date this committee will survey conditions at home and abroad.

That there is urgent need for drastic change in the military machine of this country is admitted frankly on all sides. Japan, it is said, has made no serious alteration in her methods of attacks and defense since the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war. She took part in the recent great conflict it is true, but it is explained that her military operations were confined to the very limited area of Tsingato and that, too, before the most modern forms of warfare were put into operation. She has, therefore, general staff members declare, fallen behind, and if she is to take her place beside the great nations of the world, it is imperative that she bring her fighting organization up to date.

WAR NOT IN VIEW

Emphasis, however, is laid on the fact that changes that may be adopted as the result of investigations must not be regarded as being of an aggressive character. Japan merely desires, it is stated, to bring her army, as regards standard of equipment and training, into line with those of the other great powers who learned their lessons at first-hand during the struggle of 1914-1918.

Investigations abroad are to be conducted by special military missions. One mission to be headed by Lieut.-Gen. Kamaizi Wada is to spend six months in Europe and America devoting itself to a study of such organizations as tank corps, motor transport, machine guns and automatic rifles.

Another branch of the army service which will engage the serious attention of the investigators is the air force. Japan's air force at present, according to an official statement, consists of six flying squadrons which army officials say should be at least doubled. Plans are being considered for a five-year program of naval expansion.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the inquiry is the fact that the investigations are to cover methods of financing the charges. It is certain that financial ability to meet the cost of remodelling the army enters largely into the question, and it has been suggested that the modernization process be carried out at the expense of further economies in army expenditure.

Soon after the Washington conference, a popular movement in Japan demanded that the army also be reduced and a decrease in the army personnel by 57,000 officers and men was effected—this being, it is said, a reduction by five divisions on a peace strength.

FURTHER CUT SOUGHT

Now it is hinted that, in order to modernize the army and to obtain necessary funds, further reduction may have to be made, which is a noteworthy change in army policy when it is remembered to what extents the army authorities have gone in their advocacy that twenty-one divisions is the minimum strength of the army this country should have.

Alternative suggestions which the investigating commission will have to consider are: Abolition of the infantry brigade in favor of the French plan of forming a division out of three infantry regiments under one chief of infantry; assignment of two batallions to each regiment.

Another question which the committee is expected to take up is that of the army personnel and the possible increase in pay for privates. The private has hitherto been paid 15 sen (7½ cents gold) a day which has necessitated his relatives aiding him while on service. This has tended to make the army extremely unpopular.

Scootac, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."—Mrs. ROBERT PRICE, Scootac, via Lockhaven, Pa.

Fusilamiento del General Manuel Diégues

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Abril 21. La captura, consejo de guerra, y ejecución del General Manuel Diégues, segundo en ejefe del movimiento revolucionario en el oeste de Méjico, han sido confirmadas hoy por mensajes oficiales al General Obregón. Análoga sentencia fue aplicada al General Manuel García Vigil, ex-Gobernador de Oajaca, que se unió con el del mismo grado, Fortunato Maycotte, el 13 de Diciembre, en el movimiento huertista.

El General Diégues fue aprehendido cuando se disponía a pasar de Chiapas a Guatemala, el sábado último. El General García Vigil fue derrotado y capturado la semana pasada en Lanatepec.

La Muerte del General Marcial Cavazos

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Abril 21. Se ha recibido aviso oficial de la muerte, ocurrida esta mañana, del famoso general rebelde Marcial Cavazos y de la mayor parte de su estado mayor, después de fiero combate en Posuelos, Estado de Hidalgo, que duró desde las tres hasta las once. Cavazos fue atacado por el General Federal Ríos Zertuche, después del audaz ataque de Cavazos, el sábado, a un importante campo minero anglo-americano de Pachuca, a cincuenta millas de la ciudad de Méjico. Los rebeldes perdieron trescientos hombres entre muertos, heridos y prisioneros.

De este modo ha terminado la carrera de uno de los más audaces y pintorescos guerrilleros rebeldes, pues Cavazos era genuino discípulo del famoso Pancho Villa, y sus hombres habían sido de los más activos en la actual revuelta, habiéndole dado al gobierno más quehacer que cualquiera otro de los grupos insurgentes. Cavazos se distinguió como salteador de trenes de pasajeros a lo largo de la línea troncal de Méjico a Laredo. Su mayor hazaña en los primeros días de la revuelta fue la captura de un tren federal de municiones. En el mismo día, se apoderó de cincuenta mil pesos que trasportaba el coche de express del tren de Laredo.

Algunos de sus oficiales hablaban inglés, y su frase obligada al entrar en los coches Pullman en que viajaban americanos, era: "No tengan miedo; no vamos a hacerles ningún daño".

Cavazos atacó a Pachuca durante los días más negros de la revolución, amenazando la ciudad de Méjico; pero tuvo que retirarse después de un sangriento combate en las calles que duró todo un día. A raíz de él, más de cinco mil federales fueron a operar en el Estado de Hidalgo contra Cavazos; pero este había podido eludirlos con marchas forzadas casi increíbles, de cien millas, sólo explicables porque sus hombres iban provistos de caballos de remuda, como lo estuvieron en otra época los de Villa.

Cavazos nació en Monterrey, de buena familia, y recibió buena educación. Era un líder nato, y desde 1910 entró de revolucionario, siguiendo a Villa. Después peleó con Carranza contra el general Huerta.

AS SHE SIZED HIM UP

Ambassador Richard Washburn Child, sailing homeward on the George Washington, told a story about a corpulent statesman.

"This corpulent person," he said, "once made a speech before a Sunday school. He talked about rewards and punishments — the rewards that are the meed of a good life, the punishments that a bad life entails.

"'And now, children,' he yelled dramatically, as he whacked the lectern with his enormous hand—'now, children, what would happen to me after I died if I led a bad life?'

"'The fat would be in the fire for fair!'"—[Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

TO HAVE GOLF COURSE AT VOLCANO'S MOUTH

ONE OF THE HAZARDS WILL BE PIT OF KILAUEA, HAWAII, STILL RUMBLING

Visitors of the boiling, seething volcano of Kilauea will have an opportunity soon to play golf on one of the most remarkable courses known to the sport. The fiery pit of the volcano itself may be one of the hazards of the course. Although the volcano is 4000 feet high the land slopes gently away from it and affords an ideal location for a good golf course.

It will be necessary to clear away the heavy growth of tree ferns upon a part of the tract, while the remainder will comprise the barren old lava bed of the volcano. Besides the thrill of losing a ball in the molten lava, there is always the possibility of an earth tremor adding to the excitement. These seismic disturbances are felt at the volcano with more or less frequency, and sometimes several shocks occur in one day.

For the accommodations of the increasing flow of visitors to the volcano a camp is being established in the National Park, not far from the crater. Improvements are to be made to the highway, which runs from Hilo on the coast to the very rim of the turbulent pit. The road mounts the elevation at such an easy grade that the rise is almost imperceptible, and the volcano has the appearance of being on an almost level plain.—[Hawaii Correspondence, New York World.

FARM BILL CHANGE IS AGREED ON

Committee Accepts Substitute for Rubey Amendment

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A substitute for the Rubey amendment to the McNary-Haugen agricultural export bill which would have eliminated the scrip provision was unanimously agreed upon today by the House Agricultural Committee.

Drafter by Representative Clague, Republican, Minnesota, and Rubey, Democrat, Missouri, the substitute would leave determination of a method of collecting an equalization fee from farmers to the discretion of the Export Corporation, which would be set up under the bill to market surplus farm products abroad.

Committee members said the substitute would permit use of script, or a requirement that farmers be paid entirely in cash for their commodities. The committee, continuing its redrafting of the bill, will take up its tariff provisions tomorrow. A substitute is being worked out designed to give the President authority to declare an emergency justifying readjustment of tariff rates.

A new bill as a substitute for the McNary Haugen bill has been prepared by Secretary McNary, Republican, Oregon, co-author of the measure, informed the Senate today in requesting that action on the original bill be postponed indefinitely.

The new bill was drawn to include the committee amendments.

HALFWAY COUSINS

There is a good story about Sir Nicholas Bacon, the father of Lord Bacon, the philosopher. Nicholas was a judge in the time of Elizabeth. Once a criminal importuned him to spare his life on account of kinship.

"How are we related?" demanded the judge.

"Because my name is Hogg and yours is Bacon; and hog and bacon are so near akin that they cannot be separated."

"Aye," responded the judge dryly, "but you and I cannot yet be kindred, for the hog is not bacon until it be well hanged."—[Youth's Companion.

"Did you feel any business depression last month?"—and 75 per cent of the stores said "No"

AFTER calling upon 100 representative merchants in Los Angeles, a trade investigator for the Weber Showcase & Fixture Co., turned in this report:

"Of the stores called upon, 75% stated that business was good—or better—during March.

"The managers of 25 stores complained bitterly that business was 'rotten.'

"It is significant that these 25 stores were poorly equipped and had unattractive merchandise displays.

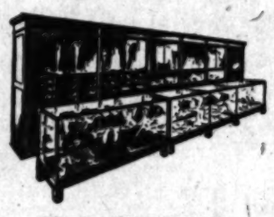
"Yet a few months ago even these unprepossessing stores reported 'good business.'"

What's the Answer?

To put it plainly, buyers are getting more "choosey."

Instead of taking any old article at the handiest store—buyers now shop around a little before they buy. The public purse string has tightened. There will be—not less spending but more careful spending. Which means that stores are now entering an era of keen competition.

To survive this competitive stage successfully, your store must attract buyers. It must lure them inside. And once inside, interesting displays of merchandise must hold your prospect's attention and create desire.

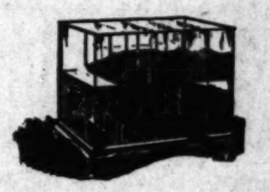


75% Are Weber Equipped

Desire-creating display! That's the reason back of practically every successful store. And it is significant that three out of every four stores in the Southwest use Weber store display equipment. This 75%—the attractive, prosperous stores, will not feel depressions. It is the poorly equipped, unattractive 25% that suffer.

Not long ago, business in Los Angeles was very good. Today, some of the stores say, "It's falling off." Others say, "Business is better.'

The fault lies—not with the buying public but with the stores themselves. You can tell, by the appearance of a store, whether it is successful or not. If goods are well displayed, it is prospering. Weber-equipped, undoubtedly.

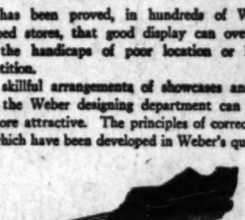


Good Display Pays Steady Profits

It has been proved, in hundreds of Weber-equipped stores, that good display can overcome even the handicaps of poor location or heavy competition.

By skillful arrangements of showcases and fixtures, the Weber designing department can make any store attractive. The principles of correct display which have been developed in Weber's quarter-century experience, can be readily applied to your store and will show these definite results:

1. A more attractive store.
2. More people brought into your store.
3. Greater business in any desired department.
4. Increased sales throughout your store.
5. Greater profits through simplified office and wide-margin lines.



In the West It's Weber

You merchants—in any line—who want to know should make this test.

Ask other merchants about Weber Showcase & Fixtures. Of those you interview, 75% direct Weber store equipment. They will tell you that Weber leads the West in the manufacture of [illegible] grade store display units. And they will tell you how Weber units have increased their sales and brought in new business.

Then for the Proof

LOST "MADONNA" FINALLY FOUND

Thirty Years and Fortune Are Spent in Hunt

Treasure Located in Attic by Accident

Painting Is All Former Rich Man Now Possesses

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BOSTON, April 21.—Buried treasure! Many men, lured by the hope of riches, have dug deep in the sands for pirates' gold.

But here is one man who, lured only by a love of beauty, searched more than a quarter of a century and gave a fortune to find a lost treasure of art. Finally, in an attic, buried under the dust of eighty-one years, he found it.

Thirty years ago, Patrick E. Duffee stood before a picture in a gallery in France. It was a copy of Raphael's "Madonna Gonzaga," the "lost Madonna."

ORIGINAL OBTAINED

There were friends with him. The admiration for the picture was intense. Suddenly Patrick Duffee declared quietly, "Some day I'm going to own the original of that."

Today in a little studio hangs the real "lost Madonna." The man who owns it has nothing in the world but that picture. He gave his youth to find it and his fortune to own it. It is never unguarded. Patrick Duffee, lover of art, lives with his priceless painting.

Thirty years ago Patrick Duffee started his search. Europe had no trace of the treasure, but America still gave clues to its location. Every possible place suggested by rumor or person was investigated.

SAW 150 OTHERS

In twenty-six years 150 copies of the picture were examined by Mr. Duffee. Of that 150, twenty-five were believed by their owners to be genuine.

In poor homes were copies. Some penniless art lover treasured a false picture, believing that within his shabby home was the painting that had hung in the halls of kings.

From Georgia to Ottawa, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, Mr. Duffee searched for the Raphael. At the end of twenty-six years he was undiscouraged and then by accident found "the lost Madonna."

Patrick Duffee was a man of wealth three years ago. A certain member of an old Boston family went to him one day and wanted to borrow money.

"Take a mortgage on my house," he urged.

"Well, I'll go out and see it."

The house was in Boston. As Mr. Duffee entered, he noticed on the wall, a painting by Van Dyke.

"See that picture," he said to the owner. "If you give me that as security, I'll lend you the money."

The owner agreed.

"Well, where there's one good thing, there's often another," Mr. Duffee figured, and he inquired further.

An old lady, mistress of the house, thought a bit. "Why, yes," she said finally. "There's a picture of some kind in the attic but nobody has been in that attic for eighty-one years."

Propped against the wall was a painting. The dust of almost a century concealed all but the mouth and nose of Mary. The dust was scraped from the precious oil.

"That is the picture I've hunted for!" Mr. Duffee was certain.

An old family Bible lying on a table in the attic of buried treasure gave more information. Written in a clear hand on a page yellowed by time was the memorandum, "To Joseph Bonaparte, the loan of $90,000 on 'Mary and the Infant Christ.'"

The picture was taken to Europe. Critics gathered from everywhere. They argued, talked, questioned and finally conceded that this treasure dug up from under eighty-one years of dust in an old American attic was the "Madonna Gonzaga"—Raphael's "lost Madonna."

SOMETHING NEW IN THEFT LINE

Men are Interrupted as They Carry Bathtub From House

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) April 21.—Something novel in the way of burglary is reported from a Seventeenth-street house, where thieves were interrupted at midnight as they were taking a bathtub out of the front door. Investigation developed the fact that all the bathroom fixtures had been unscrewed for removal.

Advocators of Open Shop Hold Coast Meeting

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 21.—The western division of the American open-shop conference with representatives of States west of the Mississippi River present, opened its fifth annual session here today. The convention program includes discussion of plans for a monthly interchange of information as to labor conditions, employment, strikes and general industrial conditions.

SHORT SELLING BACKED BY HEAD OF EXCHANGE

PRACTICE HELD TO BE LEGAL, ECONOMICAL AND ETHICAL BY NEW YORKER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Short selling of stocks was defended by President Seymour Cromwell of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address to 200 members of the Associated Press, who were guests of the exchange at luncheon today.

"Although the subject of short-selling is perhaps a matter of opinion," he said, "I believe that it is proper ethically, legally and economically. After an extensive study of the question I have concluded that the short interest always is largest when the market is high and that it dwindles when the market recedes. Hence it is apparent that the much-talked-of 'raiding' to bring down prices does not present a true picture.

"It is impossible to put down stock permanently unless the economic situation justifies it."

JUDGE HUNT DIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN JOSE, April 21.—Judge John Hunt, 81 years of age, who had served as a Superior judge in San Francisco for forty-one years, died here today. He had resided in San Jose for a year.

COUNTERFEITER SENT TO PRISON

"King" of Bogus Money Men Gets Fourteen Years

Confesses Engraving Plates for Reserve Notes

Composedly Inquires About Chances of Parole

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Philip Lieberman, described by the secret service men as "king of the counterfeiters," was fined $12 and sentenced to fourteen years and nine months in Atlanta penitentiary by Judge Campbell in the Federal Court. He will begin serving his sentence at once, having no appeal because he pleaded guilty to the charges against him on four separate indictments.

Lieberman was arrested on December 13, last, in a raid on a counterfeiters' den in Jamaica. Arrested with him were Paul Adler and Benjamin Podalsky, who also pleaded guilty. Adler is now serving six years in Atlanta, while Podalsky is serving a five-year term.

THREE ARRESTED

The three men were arrested by secret service agents who for months had been searching for the gang which was flooding Brooklyn with counterfeit $20 Federal reserve notes. It was Lieberman who engraved the plates from which the notes were printed. He has served a number of terms in Atlanta for counterfeiting.

Judge Campbell in passing sentence said that he had taken into consideration the service Lieberman had afforded the government in appearing as a material witness in a counterfeiting case which has been on trial in New Jersey. He pointed out that if he had imposed sentence on each count of the various indictments against the counterfeiter his term would run into something close to 200 years in prison.

COURT LENIENT

Lieberman peered at the judge through his silver-rimmed spectacles in a perfectly composed manner while he was being sentenced on twelve counts and fined $1 on each count. It was only when the sentence had been passed that he showed any emotion. He asked the court if there was any possibility of his being released on parole before the expiration of the full term.

"That is something over which I have no control," said Judge Campbell. "The Parole Board must pass upon that matter. I have done as much as I possibly could do for you."

The Parole Board will probably take Lieberman's case into consideration when he has served about one-third of his term.

BANKER OFFICIALS IN SWINDLE SENTENCED

J. Whelan chairman of the board of directors, was told to pay $5000 fine or serve 500 days' imprisonment.

Counsel for the men said they would appeal.

FOREIGN SHIPPING STATUS REVIEWED

LOSSES IN PACIFIC COAST SERVICE PARED DOWN, COMMITTEE TOLD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The House Shipping Board investigating committee spent today in going over with Capt. Inman Sealby, traveling director of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the technical details of foreign shipping conditions.

Prior to last July, Capt. Sealby testified, the West Coast service was losing from $16,000 to $50,000 a month, with the east coast route losing not under $30,000, except during the wool season, when the losses were slightly reduced. Present losses in the Pacific service, the witness continued, have been pared down to from $10,000 to $12,000 a month. No relief has been found, he said, for the New York route. He had recommended, he said, that the service to the Dutch East Indies be discontinued on account of cargo conditions.

ORIENT HAS LIKING FOR CANADIAN FISH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 21.—During the first three months of this year salt and frozen fish exports to the Orient more than trebled the shipments for the same period last year. For the first three months last year shipments amounted to 25,546 boxes, but this year Japan and China took 84,652 cases. Australia also proved a better market, taking 2404 boxes against 475 boxes last year.

No, you do not discard your refrigerator—you simply have the Kelvinator put into the refrigerator you now have. And by so doing you avoid all the care and distress of looking out for the ice supply. Once installed, the Kelvinator provides absolutely dry cold, keeps the refrigerator box at the same even temperature every day in the year, with no melting ice to accumulate dirt—where your food will keep fresh, sound and palatable.

Kelvinator Actually Colder Than Ice

The surface of a cake of melting ice is 33 degrees. The surface of the Kelvinator brine-tank—which takes the place of the ice—is 22 degrees. And as the temperature is kept absolutely even food keeps astonishing lengths of time. The fact is that Kelvinator has kept milk sweet two weeks! Ripe tomatoes were perfect at the end of six weeks! Butter has kept fresh for six months! Oranges were sound at the end of a year! Eggs were till good at the end of two years!

A True Economy

First—the Kelvinator saves ice. You know how much you have been spending for ice each week—this saving is obvious. But far more important is the saving by the prevention of food waste, and the protection of health. When you install a Kelvinator you can do so with the comfortable assurance that it will serve you well and pay for itself over and over again throughout its long life.

With a 1900 CATARACT

It is such a joy to be able to wear the light frocks that are so delightful for warm days—and with no distress over the laundering. No matter how delicate they may be, they can be safely tubbed in the 1900 Cataract.

The cataraction principle on which it is built drives the water through the clothes with no pounding or pulling of the clothes themselves.

The New Small Model Only $135.00

A Cataract especially designed for bungalow homes where space is precious, requires only 25¾x26½ inches of floor space and yet it is a 6-sheet capacity washer.

Built with the same cataraction principle that swings the tub backward and forward and at the same time rocks it up and down. The effect is magical. Instead of merely sliding from one end of the tub to the other, the water takes on life and power. It swirls with tremendous force—not merely back and forth, but it lifts up at the end of each stroke and drives down through the clothes 80 times a minute—with obviously a tremendous cleaning force.

MIDDLE WEST NEWS IN BRIEF

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—"Go to work, or be run out of Kansas City" was the order of I. B. Walston, Chief of Detectives, issued yesterday to North Side youths whom the police believe live by banditry. If the police are unable to catch bandits in the act of banditry, or are unable to convict them when caught, there is only one way left to stop their crimes and that is to arrest them daily, Walston said.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the old Rock Island elevator in Kansas City, Kan. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The elevator was used by the Davidson Mill and Elevator Company and had a handling capacity of 25 cars of grain a day, or a holding capacity of 100,000 bushels of grain.

MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, April 21.—Mrs. Henrietta Brumder, widow of the late George Brumder, founder of the Germania and later publisher of the Milwaukee Herald, died Saturday morning at her residence, at the age of 83 years. She was a resident of Milwaukee for seventy-one years, having come here from Germany when 12 years of age.

"A Wizard of Oz" stunt was enacted in real life at Woodford, near Monroe, when Mr. and Mrs. Homer McCauley are reported to have been picked up and carried a short distance, by a cyclonic wind that bore down upon the settlement. They were uninjured. The Methodist Church at Woodford was blown slightly off its foundation, a garage of John Wells twisted, torn and scattered about and the home of D. Ableman moved several inches on its base.

OMAHA

OMAHA, April 21.—W. E. Flynn, rancher and lawyer of North Platte, has filed suit for $56,000 damages against the Stockyards National Bank of Omaha as a result of Flynn's arrest last fall for the alleged sale of mortgaged property for which the bank had him prosecuted in McPherson county and of which he was acquitted.

Representatives of the Nebraska Good Roads Association and of the Grainland Highway declared for a State gasoline tax, high enough to meet the cost of securing Federal aid, in a conference at Wayne for the purpose of forming plans for the improvement of Northeast Nebraska roads.

Word from Pierre, S. D., says a number of prairie fires are being reported over the State and while none of them have done any great damage, considerable hay has been burned at different places.

With the coming of spring, oil enthusiasts of South Dakota are again getting busy. It is expected work will be resumed on Standing Butte, northwest of Fort Pierre, at an early date. Work has been started on the test well near Isabel, and on the tests in the extreme northwest part of the State. Leases are being taken in Bennett county for a test well, with assurance that work of actual drilling is to be commenced within a few weeks.

DES MOINES

DES MOINES, April 21.—The Iowa State Savings Bank, one of the smaller banks of Sioux City, was closed by the board of directors. Inability to realize quickly on "slow" and "frozen" loans was given as the reason for closing.

Woodbury county lost another pioneer settler in the death of Mrs. Mary Ellen Richardson of Correctionville. She was 83 years of age, and had lived in the county since 1865.

After dedicating himself to the alleviation of pain and the furtherance of public health in Calhoun county for the last fifty-one years, citizens of Manson have conferred upon Dr. Henry Young the highest office in their power, that of Mayor of the city. Dr. Young recently completed fifty-one years of medical and surgical practice in the county.

ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—Carl G. Hinrichs, chemist, claiming that he gave aid to the late William S. Barnickel, in perfecting the oil-reclaiming process which made him wealthy, has filed suit against Barnickel's estate for an accounting of money alleged to be due him. Barnickel died last May. Hinrichs says the total of his claim may reach $500,000.

A new fast train, expected to open new trade territory for St. Louis, to be known as the "Sunflower," will be placed in operation by the Missouri Pacific Railroad between St. Louis and Wichita, Kan., May 4. The service will make St. Louis more accessible to the buying interests of the Kansas wheat belt, railroad officials believe and may divert traffic and business that has been going to Chicago.

A grand jury is being impaneled at Springfield to conduct an investigation into the failure of the Holland Banking Company. The company was a $7,000,000 institution and depositors will receive about 40 per cent of their deposits when the bank is liquidated.

LOUISVILLE, April 21.—Kentucky's hearth that will be lighted for 100,000 exiled sons and daughters in June, set itself yesterday to the task of gathering fagots. Complaint against Northrup was authorized at a special meeting of the City Council. Misappropriation of $603 was the specific charge. Within a few hours of the time when he was to relinquish his office to Treasurer-elect Charles J. Durand has no fire department and a veterinary surgeon is acting as health officer. After the appointment of Fred Anslem, veteran member of the department, as Chief, to succeed A. W. Dennison, all the members tendered their resignations, not as a protest against Anslem, but against the ousting of Dennison, who had been connected with the department for twenty years. The firemen elected their officers, including Dennison, as Chief some weeks ago but the Council refused to let the election stand on the strength of an ordinance recently adopted, giving the Council opportunity to name the Chief. Dr. J. A. Fries, the new health officer, took the job for $300 a year when Dr. A. G. Cowles, who has held the office for several years, refused to stand for a cut from $600 to $300.

ST. PAUL, April 21.—Insanity does not exist to any greater extent in the prison at Stillwater than it does in institutions of similar kinds elsewhere, but if anything it is a little less prevalent, according to a report filed with the State Board of Control by the committee appointed by that State body to investigate the prevalence and causes of insanity at the State penal institution. The committee reported that the hours of confinement in the prisoners' cells and the exacted silence is not a cause of insanity, even though it might be a cause for some discontent.

GARY AIMS WARM SHOT AT QUIZZES

Congress Seen as Worst Thing Facing Country; Coolidge Praised

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HOBOKEN (N. J.) April 21.—Branding Congress as "the worst thing confronting the country" at the present time, E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, sharply attacked the national legislative body for the manner in which it is conducting its investigations, in an address at the stockholders' annual meeting of the corporation today.

"No one can object to investigations decently and honestly conducted, but many of the investigations now in progress are unwarranted and unjustified," Mr. Gary said.

Mr. Gary characterized President Coolidge as a man "as strong and everlasting as the Rock of Gibraltar." The President's purpose is to benefit all the people without injuring any honest man, he asserted.

Referring to the business outlook, Judge Gary said: "Business men who cannot see the sun of prosperity shining ahead are men either of poor judgment or intellect."

For the Bedroom
A simple carpet design in Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum

"Now I like that floor!"

NEARLY every woman has at least one room with a floor that she doesn't like.

How can she like it? Those floors that were laid when the house was built are old and worn and can't be made to look right. They make no end of work. Refinishing costs a lot of money. If you paint them, the paint knocks off. Their brown or yellow color stands always in the way of doing anything really decorative to the room.

You can select a linoleum with a color that will tone up the whole room, a color that will help you work out a tasteful color scheme. You can select one of the modern linoleum designs, a carpet inlaid, a tile inlaid, or perhaps a Jaspé. The new Jaspés are rippling two-tone effects in blue, gray, green, or brown, and make beautiful floors.

See the colorings and designs at your dealer's

Any good furniture or department store can show you a large and interesting array of colors and patterns in Armstrong's Linoleum, which you will enjoy examining when you know that at last the old soft wood floor is to be replaced by one you will be proud to show.

Laying linoleum for permanency

The modern way to lay a fine linoleum floor is to cement it down, not directly to the wood floor, but over a lining of builders' deadening felt, which is pasted to the wood. Then, no matter how much the wood base expands or contracts in summer or winter, the linoleum doesn't crack, doesn't stretch. Waterproof cement used at the edges makes them watertight, with practically no visible seams. Such a floor never needs refinishing or harsh scrubbing.

If thoroughly waxed once or twice a year and gone over on cleaning day with a cloth moistened in liquid wax, your linoleum floor will wear for years and years, and get better-looking all the time. You can spread your rugs on it, fix up your walls and draperies in a color scheme to harmonize with it, and be happy with your floor.

Linoleum permanently cemented in place requires no stretching or retrimming

Write for free sample and booklet

Let us send you a sample of Armstrong's Linoleum and our 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," containing a score of color-plates of attractive linoleum designs you can see at good stores, also information on laying linoleum and how to care for linoleum floors. At any time you may have the advice of our Bureau of Interior Decoration in helping you plan a color scheme for a particular room or for your entire house. This service is entirely free.

...Backache must be a cause. What is it?

...Is it about your kidneys? Have you ...taken any thought? Winter, you know, ...is mighty hard on the kidneys. One ...is rather food, drinks less water and takes less exercise. Add, then, the strain of winter's colds and chills and it's little wonder the kidneys weaken and allow body-poisons to accumulate and upset blood and nerves.

That's why spring is apt to find so many folks feeling tired and worn-out; miserable with constant backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

Don't risk neglect! Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. Los Angeles folk recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

MRS. O. RAY, 1808 E. 37th St., says: "I had kidney trouble and I suffered with dull, bearing down pains. My back hurt so across the small part I felt like one burdened with great weights. I didn't know what to do, such severe dizzy spells came on and I felt as though I were going to faint. My nerves were bad and the irregular action of my kidneys proved that these organs were badly affected. I used Doan's Pills and they benefited me greatly."

Actress Now to Ask for Place in Parliament

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, April 21.—Miss Olga Nethersole, the actress, announced today her intention to stand for Parliament at the earliest opportunity. Whether that would come at some by-election or whether she would have to wait for a general election was not stated. Miss Nethersole was likewise reticent as to which political party she is inclined to support. The chief planks in her platform will be food, housing and education.

"My art is the joy of my life," she exclaimed to an interviewer, "but humanity is my religion."

Miss Nethersole was born in London on January 18, 1870, and made her debut at the Theater Royal, Brighton, in 1887. She has toured the United States several times. During the war she served as a Red Cross nurse.

JEWEL VALUE IS CHAMELEON

Thieves Find Gems Missed by Assessors

Prominent Denver People in Bad Light

City Auditor Follows Up Wild Reports

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DENVER, April 21.—Unwittingly, during the last two or three weeks, jewel thieves have put several prominent Denver residents in an embarrassing predicament, it became known today.

The jewel thieves, it developed, were inconsiderate enough to visit the homes of the residents in question after deputy assessors had already visited the same places.

The burglars, it appears, can find jewels where the deputy assessors can't and something's all wrong in Denmark.

Recently, according to the City Auditor, several jewel robberies have been reported by Denver citizens to the police. In each instance the value of the jewels given the police was staggering compared with the value furnished deputy assessors by these same persons.

KNOWS WHERE TO LOOK

In fifteen minutes, it seems, a burglar can find jewelry that has been overlooked by deputy assessory for five or six years. The second-story worker knows where to look for valuables.

Jewels, the burglar knows from experience, may be found in madam's dresser drawers, usually on the right-hand side, packed neatly away under some flimsy articles rarely seen in public. Jewels may be found underneath the carpet, behind picture frames, under neath mattresses or in the clothes closet.

But the deputy assessor doesn't know this. If he did know it he would have a hard time with his investigation. It is one thing for a second-story worker to handle flimsy garments when the lady of the house is not present, and another thing for the deputy assessor to handle the same articles while several females are indignantly giving him the once-over.

"What is the value of your jewelry?" the assessor asks the housewife.

"Oh, about $500 or $600. We don't go in much for jewels—my husband can't afford it."

"Jewels—$600," the assessor writes down his report, after taking a casual look around the place.

THEN TROUBLE

A few days elapse and along comes the afternoon when madam is downtown shopping and the kids are out in the wide-open spaces. Along comes the second-story worker.

"Merciful heavens! Burglars got into my home this afternoon and stole my jewels—worth $10,000 if they're worth a dime!" the housewife cries into the ears of a patrolman.

And the next day the assessor reads it in the newspapers and sends a deputy on a second visit to the housewife. It's either cough up more dough to the city for personal taxes or tell the police department you told 'em a fib and take a chance on the jewels being gone forever. Which is embarrassing, to say the least, and could be avoided if the deputy assessor took a course in rock-hunting from the second-story worker and then could summon up courage enough to make practical use of his education.

COOLIDGE VISITORS GO HAND SHAKELESS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 21.—"Hand shakeless" receptions by President Coolidge were made to apply to everybody today when more than 1200 persons gathered at the Executive office on the purpose of shaking hands with the President. The plan probably will be continued through the spring tourist season to save the time and strength of the President, although complaints were numerous today from those who, instead of shaking Mr. Coolidge's hand as they expected, had to content themselves with a hurried look at the Executive as they passed through his office while he sat at his desk signing correspondence.

Dollar Liner Completes Globe-Girdling Trip

The President Harrison Arrives

Upper—Capt. K. A. Ahlin, bidding good-by to Phillip S. Teller, who headed San Francisco Chamber of Commerce trade delegation on around-the-world trip. Lower—Globe travelers—Mrs. Eleanor McDonald of New York, Miss Anne Benjamin of San Francisco and Miss Barbara Buckley of Washington, D. C.

NOTABLE SEA RECORD SET

Giant Craft Comes Home on Exact Time to Crown Achievements of Her Veteran Captain

Capt. K. A. Ahlin, who yesterday completed his forty-first year as a sea-faring man, celebrated the event at Los Angeles Harbor by climaxing a career full of notable events. He brought back home the Dollar liner President Harrison, first vessel in history under any flag to circumnavigate the globe in regular passenger service.

The noteworthy feature of the achievement, however, was the fact that although the pathfinder covered 25,792 miles in 110 days, called at twenty-two ports, touched five continents and twelve countries, she was on time to the minute yesterday. Not one minute during the belting of the earth were her engines stopped.

She took out from San Francisco three months ago the personel of the first around-the-world trade tour, sponsored by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and among her passengers yesterday was Phillip S. Teller, chairman of the trade tour, brimfull of enthusiasm for what he says is the greater single agency for the development of America's world trade.

GREAT TRADE HELP

"These seven Dollar liners are putting American commerce and the American merchant marine right out in front for the world to see," said Mr. Teller. "They are belting the world with American enthusiasm and American ideas—awakening commerce itself to the opportunities that are waiting.

"Out in the Orient, particularly, commercial interests displayed great enthusiasm for the American business man. From the old-walled city of Soo-Chow, China, where they lock the gates every night to keep out foreigners, to the bustling port of Marseilles, maintained by a Chamber of Commerce organized in 1512, business welcomed greatly the beginning of this great trade enterprise—universal in its scope as much as it is American."

Passengers of the President Harrison were unanimous in praising the ship and the Dollar service, made more pleasant by the fine weather that the 21,000-ton liner experienced.

NOTABLES ON BOARD

Prominent among the globe travelers she brought back yesterday was B. C. Chatt, local architect, who has been studying styles and methods of European architecture, including a course at the Master School of Art, Vienna and Andros Mirovitch, Russian concert pianist, here from Petrograd for an engagement in Los Angeles.

Others arriving included: Mrs. Eleanor McDonald of New York, Miss Barbara Buckley of Washington, D. C., the Misses Edna and Dorothy Campbell of Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. C. Clark of Spokane, and Miss Anne Benjamin of San Francisco.

The President Harrison will sail for the Orient via San Francisco tonight in the beginning of her second world trip after taking aboard twenty passengers and 2000 tons of freight at this port. She will be followed in a fortnight by the arrival from New York of the President Van Buren, last of the fleet of seven sister ships to enter the service.

FLEES AS SHERIFF EATS

Trustful Officer Trusted Prisoner as Well as Appetite; Fugitive Has Straw Hat

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Sheriff Robert Converse of Cooperstown is a trustful man. He trusts his appetite to let him know when it's time to eat, and the other morning, at the Grand Central station, he placed his faith in it again, notwithstanding that he had with him Ivan S. Pillinghast.

So, Sheriff Converse, who had just arrived with Pillinghast from Florida, from which State the latter had been extradited on a charge of grand larceny, walked into the station restaurant, seated Pillinghast on a couch therein and seated himself at a table, rejoicing in his luck in possessing a faithful appetite.

Finally, Sheriff Converse's trustworthy appetite admonished him it was time to stop eating, whereupon the trustful Sheriff went out to accompany Pillinghast to the train for Cooperstown.

But—Pillinghast was gone. In fact, Pillinghast, whom the trustful Sheriff had trusted to wait for him unhandcuffed while he ate the breakfast his trusty appetite told him it was time to eat, had disappeared. In short, he had beat it.

However, the Sheriff is still a lucky man. In telephoning the police, he said:

"This Pillinghast'll be easy to find. He's about 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs about 135 pounds, has a small black mustache, and—get this—is wearing a flat straw hat. He's just up from Florida, you know. If you see a man wearing a straw hat, arrest him."

Girl Deep-Sea Diver in Near Tragedy Again

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, April 21.—Margaret Naylor, the plucky young deep-sea diver who is trying to recover the treasure from the Spanish galleon Admiral of Florence, which was sunk off the Scottish coast 336 years ago, has had another narrow escape from death according to a message received from Tobermory Bay, where the Armada ship lies.

Miss Naylor, resuming her search, had gone down to observe to what extent the galleon had been covered by silt since her previous work. She was not down long when she found her diving suit leaking. She sent up distress signals to her helpers on the surface, who immediately pulled her up. When her helmet was removed she was found to be in an exhausted condition and her suit was nearly full of icy fater.

Undaunted by her hazardous experience, Miss Naylor said she would continue the quest, which has been prosecuted off and on for more than 300 years for the pieces-of eight running into millions of dollars in value, as well as the Spanish crown jewels said to be aboard the ill-fated ship.

This was but one of many hairbreadth escapes Miss Naylor has had. Once she was caught underneath the waters with her foot held in an obstruction and her telephine line to the surface but of order.

VORONOFF GETS WIFE'S INCOME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, French surgeon and discover of the monkey-gland operation, will receive the income for life from the American estate of his wife, Mrs. Evelyn B. Voronoff, daughter of the late Jabez A. Bostwick, a director of the Standard Oil Company. The doctor was Mrs. Voronoff's fourth husband. The estate will be divided among children of two of these marriages on the death of the surgeon.

The compromise was reached after hearings before Henry N. French, referee on application of Edgerton L. Winthrop, executor of the estate of Mrs. Voronoff. The report of Referee French in favor of the appointed settlement was confirmed by Justice Lyden, it was learned today.

The dispute resulted from the fact that Mrs. Voronoff, a French citizen, tried to dispose of her American property in a manner that was in violation of French laws. One of the questions concerned the ownership of a fund consisting of $773,000 in securities which Mrs. Voronoff, in 1918, when she was Countess Perigny, settled on her daughter, Miss Marien Barbara Carstairs, on her marriage to Jacques Depret, of the French army.

This marriage was annulled in 1921 by the High Court of England, and the other heirs contended that the settlement on the former Miss Carstairs was void and that the securities should be returned to the estate. The decision of the referee was that she would be permitted to retain the fund.

The total estate of Mrs. Voronoff here amounts to $3,439,000 not including the marriage settlement. Under French law Dr. Voronoff would be entitled to slightly less than one quarter of the estate, and the children of Mrs. Voronoff to one quarter each, there being three.

Wrecks Toll Telephone on Losing Nickel

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—"I asked of a number, dropped in the nickel, didn't get my number, and ripped off the telephone box when the operator failed to return my money."

This was the explanation given by William B. Wylie, 40 years of age, when arraigned before Magistrate Holland in Central Police Court on the charge of tearing a coin box telephone from the wall on the sixth-floor corridor in the City Hall.

"There must be something wrong with you," suggested the magistrate. Wylie laughed heartily. "No, there is nothing wrong with my head," he said. "I was just hopping mad, that's all. I lost my temper, I guess."

Magistrate Holland held him under $500 bail.

THIEF RETURNS CASH, ARRESTED

Victim's Heart Touched, But Officer Is Stern

Greeted by Detective as He Gives Money Back

Hungry Burglar Had Been Caught in Home

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—"It's a tough world!"

Probably no other victim of adversity has ever injected the utter sincerity into that time-worn observation that was put into it than George Zager, 20 years of age, Brooklyn, when he was arraigned in the Flatbush Police Court on a charge of burglary. George, who has had an intimate acquaintance for several days with hunger and want, had a moment of weakness in which he extracted the price of a meal from the pocketbook of his landlady, but shortly afterward he was moved to restitution.

Despite this, however, he faced the burglary charge.

FOUND IN HOME

George occupies a furnished room which is conducted by Herman Klein and his wife. The Kleins took their 12-year-old daughter Isabelle, for a walk, and when they returned the girl found Zager in the parlor. When she raised an outcry her father rushed in.

"That's all right," said George, by far the most excited of the three, "I wouldn't hurt a soul. Just to show you I wouldn't, here"——

He handed over a revolver to Klein. Then he casually mentioned that he merely was looking for enough money to arrest starvation. Mrs. Klein moved to pity, handed him a dollar and he left with thanks sticking out all over him.

But after he left, Mrs. Klein found that about a dollar and two theater tickets were gone from her pocket-book. She sent to the police station and Detective Casey arrived just in time to hear a knock on the door. Mrs. Klein opened it, and there was young Zager.

"Here's a letter," he said, "but I don't want you to read it until I leave."

Mrs. Klein took the letter and Detective Casey took Zager. In the letter were found the stolen dollar and the theater tickets, with an explanation that George never would forget the woman's motherly treatment of him and her kindness in giving him a dollar. "If I could only put into words what I feel there would be no need of the letter. God bless you," the letter concluded.

Mrs. Klein's heart was touched, but according to the detective, there was the burglary to consider, so the case was put up to the Magistrate.

FORCE DRIVER TO TAKE PLACE OF HIS HORSE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 21.—James Bates, inspector for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty, forced John Barnes of South Vancouver to get into the shafts of his wagon and pull it through the streets of the city as punishment for driving a horse that Barnes knew was sick.

"Barnes is stronger than the poor horse" said the inspector when a policeman investigated the reason for the crowd that was trailing the man between the shafts.

Bates has issued a general statement that in future cruelty will be punished with cruelty, as the only way to cure people to give them some of their own medicine.

BOARD SHIPS WILL BE PUT TO WORK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NORFOLK (Va.) April 21.—Improved shipping conditions and the outlook for more sailings from Norfolk and Newport News were commented on in marine circles here. The Shipping Board is making preparations to make in readiness at once half a dozen or more ships to be ready for spot service and plans are under way to put more in commission between now and May 1. While in Newport News Admiral Benson announced that all repair work on the idle fleet would be done by private shipyards at Hampton Roads. The board will have a force of men at Fort Eustis, however, painting and scraping the ships in order to maintain them in the best condition possible.

FAKER WORRIES PARENTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 21. Citizens in the west end of the city complained to the police that a fake doctor is visiting their homes during the absence of the adults. In one case the man told the children in the house that he was a school doctor and had to examine their throats. So far no crimes have been committed, but parents have asked for special police protection.

"Never Sweat" is an Apache Indian, officially known at the San Carlos agency as Bill Astor. He has some fame as a medicine man. In sustaining his reputation he tried to pick up a rattlesnake by the back of the neck but was not quick enough.

FIRE AGAIN VISITS JINX RULED FARM

Destruction of House Is Climax to Twenty Years of Calamity

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JERSEYVILLE (Ill.) April 21.—Now that the house and barn have been destroyed at the Thomas Wydler farm, just south of this city, the mysterious hoodoo that has hung over the place for twenty years may have been dispelled, but the neighbors shake their heads doubtfully.

The jinx began its deadly work in 1904, when an unexplained fire swept away a number of buildings on the farm at a cost of thousands of dollars. Then followed a series of accidents, runaways and costly mishaps until 1915, when a tornado struck the farm and demolished all the buildings, entailing very heavy loss. Fences, stacked hay and standing crops were leveled by this same destructive agency.

The "curse," or whatever malign influence was at work, continued to kill off live stock and afflict the fruit trees with blight, but there was no oustanding disaster until last week, when the main barn burned with all its contents, including seven horses, a calf and virtually all farm machinery.

Yesterday morning fire destroyed the farm home, occupied by Alvin Richardson, a tenant, who was warned by a passing neighbor.

There was but $3000 insurance on the house and barn to cover a loss aggregating $15,000.

Kit Carson's Rock Stolen in Colorado

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PUEBLO (Colo.) April 21.—The famous Kit Carson rock, upon which that pioneer carved his initials many years ago, has been stolen. The rock stood in the middle of a stream four miles south of Wetmore, Colo., and was one of the region's most historic landmarks. A forest ranger Thursday crossed the stream and noticed that a huge block bearing the initials "K. C." had been hewn from the slab. A patriotic society planned to move the rock to the main highway as a monument.

PERUVIAN AVIATORS TRAINING IN TEXAS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) April 21. Two lieutenants colonels from the Peruvian army are numbered among the students flyers at Brooks Field, San Antonio. They are Lieut. Cols. Federico Recarvarren Cisneros and Juan E. O'Connor, both of whom are artillery officers. Special arrangements were made with the Air-Service of the United States Army to permit them to take the course of training here. They will pursue the same ground courses and flying training as the officers and cadets of the Primary Flying School, but are classed as foreign officers. When they complete the primary school arrangements will be made for them to take advanced training in tactical work at Kelly Field here.

WAISTLINE BULGE STARTS TROUBLE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—An unnatural bulge about the waistline of Karl Bruggemeh of 509 Clinton street, Brooklyn, attracted Custom Guard Mann as he was watching passengers leaving the liner Stuttgart from Bremen. A search revealed that Bruggemen had tied around his waist seven forks, seven knives, seven large spoons and two dozen teaspoons. The silverware was confiscated. When Bruggemen was told he could recover the lot by paying the domestic value and a penalty of $100 he said he woul think it over. He explained that he had acquired the silverware in Germany for about $40.

TREND OF BUSINESS IS SEEN IN REPORT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, April 21.—The monthly report of the Arizona industrial Congress states that business showed little increased activity during March, but that the general situation compares well with last year. Cotton planting will be nearly finished by the end of the month, with about 50 per cen increase in acreage. Cattle and sheep are in good condition. Banking transactions showed little change. The same is true of the mines, while the price of copper reached slightly during the month.

CUTS THROAT IN AGONY WHEN NO HELP COMES

NEW YORK, April 21.—His shouts for help unheeded for four hours, during which he suffered untold agony from spinal injuries received when he fell from the fifth to the fourth floor of the Terminal powerhouse in Brooklyn, Kuiseppe Cheritic, 34 years of age, slashed his throat from ear to ear. He was rushed to Kings County Hospital, where it was said he could not live.

NEW PIER FOR VANCOUVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 21. Plans have been prepared by the Vancouver Harbor Commission for the construction of another $5,000,000 pier for this port. It was only this spring that the Ballantyne pier, costing nearly $7,000,000, was completed, but as that dock took nearly three years to build the board believes that by the time the dock now contemplated is completed the traffic will have reached a point where such a dock will be a necessity.

Dear Friend

Nearly everyone is won by California! You, too, must feel that here's a State to welcome you, and in which your future must be assured. You have observed the spirit that has made Los Angeles a teeming city, and a population power in the nation's roster. You have marvelled at the countless homes, the auto camps, the winter flowers, the green hills, the gentle sea--as your taste inclined you.

But before you choose your home, or your principal pleasure spot, you will want to see the rest of California. Central California has in common with the southern section delightful climate and wondrous vegetation. Yet they are vastly different. San Francisco is different from Los Angeles, but San Francisco too, is a lovable city. San Francisco Bay is a storied harbor, with memories of the Argonauts of '49 amid the busy commerce of a great modern port.

Central California will show you striking contrasts of rustic, beauteous suburban towns, with aggressive modern cities.

In central California, hills and woods and valleys are much as Nature made them, with homes and towns distributed thoughtfully in order to preserve natural beauty. There are countless home sites on commanding hills, among friendly trees --yet within easy commuting distance of the largest population center west of the Mississippi.

If you come from congested centers, you will be surprised. Congestion will not impress itself upon you. You can find it only as you look for it. California is vast. Central California uses ground space generously for its homes.

About sparkling San Francisco Bay, you can find precisely the kind of home and climate you seek. Mountains, valleys, and rifts to the sea are so related that you can approximate any California climate. You can have cool, delightful weather the year around, with a maximum number of sunny days, as in San Francisco. Or you may choose a site where summers are warmer and winters a bit cooler.

There are not only farm and city opportunities unnumbered in central California, but there are sports and resorts galore. The shaggy mountains of northern California above the Great Central Valley, offer sportsmen a glorious wilderness.

Visit Californians Inc. in San Francisco--a non-profit organization of individuals and institutions interested in the sound development of the State. Californians Inc. will aid you in planning trips, finding temporary quarters, a home to suit your ideal! And the service is gratis. San Francisco will welcome you. Reduced Rates

Reduced fare excursion tickets are on sale between Los Angeles and San Francisco Bay Cities, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, 16-day return privileges. British Flyer on Globe Trip Will Speed Up

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAGDAD, April 21.—Squadron Leader Stuart McLaren, British aviator attempting a round-the-world flight, will start for Basra tomorrow instead of spending the day here as he had formerly planned. He hopes to make up for his previous delay. His early morning start is designed to avoid sandstorms. If he arrives at Basra at 11 a.m. according to schedule he will proceed to Bushire, sleeping there.

McLaren reported that all was well today after his seven and a half hour flight from near Amen to Bagdad.

Heavy Blanket of Snow Covers North Indiana

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FORT WAYNE (Ind.) April 21.—The storm king, en route to his polar citadel, stopped in Northern Indiana today long enough to spread the heaviest blanket of snow ever recorded in that section for the month of April.

It was a heavy wet snow that covered the ground to a depth of 4.7 inches.

GIVES UP COUNTRY POST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HOLBROOK (Ariz.) April 21. W. J. Crozier has resigned as a member of the Board of County Supervisors to join his family in Berkeley. No successor thus far has been appointed.

Aztecs once burned chapropote, today the prospectors' guide to valuable oil wells, on the altars of their gods.

MAY REFUSE COURT HONORS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

LONDON, April 21.—It now seems unlikely that many of the wives or daughters of Labor Ministers will be presented at any of the four courts to take place at Buckingham Palace this spring.

Almost all of them have met the King and Queen at much more intimate affairs, and several of them are represented as not wishing to spend the money necessary for elaborate court costumes.

Viscountess Chelmsford, chatelaine at Admiralty House, would make the presentations, but it is reported that the only inquiry in that direction has come from Mrs. J. H. Thomas, wife of the Colonial Secretary, on behalf of herself and her two daughters. But then, Mrs. Thomas is one of the very few members of the government possessing any means.

It has not even been decided definitely whether Isabel MacDonald, the Prime Minister's daughter, will attend any of the court affairs, but it seems likely she will. Mr. MacDonald dislikes unnecessary splendor, but he is a great believer in tradition.

He maintains that it is not any worse for him to wear full court dress at levees than for some of his more gory-hued detractors to appear with the omnipresent red necktie.

HARNESS WE WORK IN NOT MOST IMPORTANT

It does not make as much difference what kind of a harness you work in as what kind of work you do in your harness.

A young fellow I knew had a good job in one of the departments at Washington. He got his pay twice a month, sometimes in bills that never had been wrinkled and sometimes in gold right from the mint. The hours of work were short and folks said there was a good deal to see around the national capital.

But somehow that young man longed for the pine-clad hills of his native State, and one day he wrote the most important document to which he ever put his hand. It contained just two words, "I resign." And he and his young wife and little boy went back to the old country home. He pulled on a pair of overalls and went to work to make that farm one of the best in all that part of the country. He began to whistle. His home was a little bit of paradise. He was known and loved and respected for miles around. He had begun to live. I had a talk with him one time. This is what he said:

"My harness down there at Washington used to hurt to beat all! My neck was always sore and my heart a lot sorer. Now my harness fits first rate. I like it, and I know I am where God wants me to be. I am doing my best to be happy and to make other folks happy."

Could anything be finer than that?

If ever a man was an honor to his profession, that man is; and that is all there is to success.—[Edgar L. Vincent in Farm Life.

America's First Bathtub

Cincinnati claims the original bathtub, which was constructed by a wealthy citizen in the early '40s. This tub was seven feet long and four feet wide. Upon completion of this tub the owner gave a party for his male friends, and all of them are said to have tried out the new convenience. For many years bathtubs were not popular, and the Boston City Council passed an ordinance prohibiting the use of the bathtub without the advice of a physician.—[Medical Record.

Ambition Proves to Be Downfall for Bootlegger

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DENVER, April 21.—Unlawful combinations, trusts and such things always have caused people trouble, according to John L. Standard, better known as "Jack" to a select Denver clientele. For years he conducted an express business without running afoul of the law. Later, he switched to the more promising field of bootlegging and, though it required exercise of nimble wits, he managed to keep away from trouble in that game, too.

Having made a success of both ventures he took a daring and unfortunate step—he re-established his express stand and tried to care for both customers who wanted trunks hauled and for thirsty ones who craved more refreshment than they could get at the drug-store fountain. He figured, he said, that the stand would supply an excuse for the many friends who approached him daily.

Jack was fined $200 in Police Court, and during the next thirty days he will meditate in the City Jail on the evils of ambition. In addition, his expressman's license was revoked.

Five pints were found cached in an alley near his stand, while several small containers were found on Jack's person. He sold it "off the hip" as well as in bottles, according to the arresting officers.

CHILLY WATER BALKS SUICIDE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—A young woman in a brown suit, wearing no hat over her black bobbed hair, walked past Policeman John Allen toward the Erie ferry house at 6 a.m.

When he saw her turn into Pier 64 instead of the ferry he followed. She jumped from the bulkhead of the pier to a raft, removed her coat and jumped into the river. The cold water and her floating skirts changed her mind about going down and she started to swim out in the North River.

"Come on back here or I'll go after you," ordered the policeman, who had jumped down to the raft and was ready to go overboard. A customs guard ran down from the pier and joined the policeman and the girl turned and swam back, a distance of twenty-five feet.

When she had been pulled back to the raft she took a pocketbook from her dripping skirts, removed a picture of a man and tore it into bits, which she threw to the tide.

In the ferry house Dr. Drake from the New York Hospital treated her for submersion and sent her to Bellevue. There she said she was Roy Carroll, 21 years of age.

"It was more than I could stand," was all she would say of her trouble, whatever it was. When asked for her address she replied: "Mind your own business." That is all they know about her.

No Credit to Government.

A Tartar citizen bought a pood of barley, proffered a large banknote in payment and got back a pack of smaller notes in exchange. These were so neat and trim as to attract his attention. He examined one or two with approval and remarked to the dealer: "Our government is turning out better money."

"No, I printed that myself."

The disastrous blowout of the Shell company's Reese No. 2 in Dominguez field delayed its completion several weeks, it is said by a survey of the situation, according to officials. The well is still cleaning up after the mud-up rampage, and is preparing to start fishing for the three-inch casing, which has been lodged at 1148 feet, about 1000 feet having been cut away during the outbreak. It is supposed that the four-inch casing is in bad shape, and when the tubing is run in the crew will try to take a hitch in the casing. Due to the fact that the four-inch casing was pulled before the shoe, and is likely stuck, Shell officials have little hope of extracting it, and expect to sidetrack it before the hole can be cleaned out ready to drill again.

Shell has no other well in that field near completion, the Reese No. 2 being down 3512 feet, several hundred feet yet to go. The Hellman and Childs wells in the south are deeper. When they hit the pay sand is problematical.

Shell No. 6 Starts

The Union Oil Company yesterday spudded in its Callender No. 6 on the south line of its Callender lease, one location west of Callender No. 5.

Shell No. 2, which blew in some time last week, is reported making 3450 barrels a day, the new production in the Bell field.

Harvey Calvin

The Calvin Oil Company is preparing to cement its wildcat well in Rock tomorrow or Thursday, according to officials. The well is down 4350 feet and will set at 4189 feet.

Ben Rosenheimer

C. Rosenheimer of the Sentinel Oil Company is planning a test on the Sentinel's Joughin lease in the Terranea field Thursday afternoon. Rosenheimer made the statement, when drilling was first started on this lease, that if the well now put five wells on production it would be host at a barbecue. The company now has five wells producing, and one drilling on the Joughin lease.

Shell Hills

The Shell Company's Bryant No. 1, in the Seal Beach district has passed four feet past the old bottom of 4644 feet and is drilling ahead according to official reports. It is said to be in fair shape for a string of trouble due to a cave-in early in its history. Operations are well in this well, and the Fred Bixby No. 1, a few feet southwest of the Bryant, is down 1050 feet.

Santa Fe Springs Course

The University of California is offering two new courses designed for those persons engaged in the oil industry, it is officially reported. The first, a course in petroleum field geology, begins Wednesday, the class to meet from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening in room 613, Hillstreet building. The other course, in petroleum refining technology, begins May 1, from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening, in room 616, Hillstreet building. Siegfried Fischer of the Los Angeles Water Power Company is the instructor. Applications are taken at room 613, Hill street.

Shell Wells

The Shell Oil Company is starting two wells on its Bell lease near Santa Fe Springs field, according to official reports. These wells are the first that have been started by the Union in the field for several months, most of its operating forces being concentrated at the Athens and Rosecrans. The Shell is now drilling in the Torrance oilfields report.

Dividend

At a meeting of the directors of the Associated Oil Company, held yesterday, a cash dividend of 75 cents per share was declared, payable May 10 to all stockholders of record May 10. This rounds out the total for 1924, company officials report.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—The strength of the dried fruit market lies rather in its statistical position than its activity. There is little demand in evidence. The irregularity of medium prunes is confusing. There is no evidence of a consuming interest and the jobbing and chain store trades therefore are negative. Large and small prunes, however, are in good demand and medium sizes are sold in combination with these sizes, except in rare instances. Whereas the demand for Oregon prunes was lax a few days ago, there appears to be a wider interest today and since stocks are short the movement assumes important proportions.

The movement of raisins continues in good volume, the bulk of the business being in box lines. With the elimination of undesirable quality the market is in good condition. Packages are in wider demand also. Independent offerings are exceedingly limited; Sunmaid is in control at sources.

The demand is only fair and stocks and assortments are badly broken in apricots. Wanted lines are hard to find. Choice and extras are practically out of the market.

PEAS AND CORN

Interest in canned goods centered in peas and corn. With tomatoes there is less interest manifested but the demand for No. 2's is notably increased. Stringless beans are especially wanted; likewise string beans, succotash, spinach. Beets and other less popular lines are in fair demand. There has been comparatively little business in futures.

Despite advances canned fruits continue to occupy the attentions of distributors who recognize that stocks are nearing exhaustion. There is a special call for clingpeaches while apricots, pears and cherries are in a strong position. There is a more general buying of futures but the trade is resigned to higher prices on new packs. Pineapple is better placed also.

Salmon is unchanged. Pinks continue to move at $1.35. New York, while reds are quoted at $2.35 to $2.50. Chinooks are weak and quotations range from $2.25 to $2.60. White meat tuna is virtually out of the market. California sardines are scarce and in good demand. There is little shrimp offering. Lobsters and crab meat are still in the discard.

Post-holiday conditions prevailed throughout the sugar markets offerings of Cuban raws from holders on the basis of 4 1-2 cents cost and-freight meeting no buying interest. It was indicated that refiners might show a renewal of buying interest at 4 1-2 cents while operators appeared to show a definite buying interest at 4 3-8 cents; Porto Rico's were being offered at the equivalent of 4 1-2 cents for Cubas and Philippines at a slight concession from this basis. In the late afternoon the Federal entered the market for 10,000 bags of Porto Rican raw for clearance this week, paying 6.15 cents c.i.f. or the equivalent of 4 3-4 cents cost and freight for Cubas.

SUGAR FUTURES

The sugar futures market had an irregular tone. In the afternoon the market was dull for lack of street developments. The day's net variation was 2 to 5 points lower, sales averaging about 26,000 bags.

With business in Brazil suspended on account of general holiday there was but little incentive for expansion of coffee futures operations at the start of business this week. Term markets in Rio and Santos were without feature other than a 50 reis decline in the dollar-buying rate at Rio. There were not enough firm offers on hand to form any accurate idea as to the trend of values. In the last three-quarters of an hour a trader unloaded upwards of 10,000 bags December on the way down from 11.97 to 11.73, which was in turn snapped up by trade buyers bringing the position back to 11.90. The close was irregular at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 10 points.

It was a waiting situation in wholesale tea markets at the start of trading this week. At last accounts the foreign markets were firm in tone, but it is waiting situation abroad, the disposition being to await the passage of the English budget.

Steady buying of all fancy and broken grades of rice is a feature of interest and is lending strength to the market. April distribution is likely to be as large as the March. Foreign markets have been featured by continuance of rather extensive Japanese buying in the principal world markets. Burmah is showing an advancing trend.

BUTTER TONE FIRMER

The tone of the butter market was firmer than was reported at the close of last week but no important changes were made in prices. Extras in the creamery class sold at 36 1-2 cents as an inside rate which practically means that some business could be transacted at higher rates. The call was well attended but only fifteen tubs of creamery extras were sold at 36 1-2 cents.

The egg market shows a slightly firmer tone for fresh eggs but prices of the highest qualities were left unchanged.

Pacific Coast white extras, 35 to 37 cents; extra firsts, 34 cents; firsts, 30 to 33 cents.

The annual struggle to get oil out of the ground with all possible dispatch is now on in earnest. Reports from the large producing areas all over the country show that the drill is being plied with extraordinary vigor. From Pennsylvania to California, Canada to the Gulf, the oil fields are scenes of bustling activity. The increase in operations is already being reflected in the weekly statistics which have shown a steady gain in the country's daily average production.

Western Pennsylvania producers are encouraged over the outlook for higher prices and are drilling actively.

COPPER STANDS STRONG

Copper was unchanged in price although there was a stronger undertone to the market due to some little increase in demand. Electrolytic was still quotable at from 13½ to 13 5-8 cents a pound delivered and while a few sales at the upper limit of this range were reported by far the larger part of the business was transacted at the lower level.

Lead is unchanged at about 7.90 cents New York and 7 3-4 cents or lower in St. Louis, while the leading interest continues to quote 8 1-4 cents New York.

Zinc is a little stronger at from 6.05 to 6.10 cents a pound St. Louis.

After the holidays the tin market opened on this side with a rally that put prices about ⅛ cent higher. London market was closed. All deliveries and positions of straits and straits shipments closed at about 49 cents a pound here. The premium for spot delivery shrunk still further and at the close amounted to about 1-4 cent with that position quoted at 49 1-4 cents a pound.

The resumption of the buying of United States government issues proved the outstanding development in the bond market. No fewer than five issues of Liberties touched new high levels for the year and among them were the first 4s, the second 4s and second 4 1-4s, the fourth 4 1-4s and the Mellon issues. Trading was also active in the fourth 4 1-4s while some activity was noted in the second 4¼s and the Treasury 4 1-4s. French bonds were higher with the government 8s selling around 99 3-4 and the 7½s equaling their best price of the year.

Gilt-edged corporation obligations were generally quiet but values in that department for some time have held pretty firm and were so again today. In fact, the market generally was not very active.

OUTPUT OF IRON MAKES NEW RECORD

United States Produced 62 Per Cent of World's Total Last Year

Announcement that the pig iron production of the United States made a new high record in the calendar year 1923, standing at 40,361,000 tons, lends interest to a compilation made by the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, showing the growth of our production of that important factor in the world's industries and a steady increase in our share in world production.

A century ago, says the Trade Record, we were producing less than 10 per cent of the pig iron of the world. Even in 1850 our share was only 12 per cent, but in 1880 with the opening of the great iron and coal areas by rail and water transportation our share of the world outturn of pig iron advanced to 21 per cent, in 1900 34 per cent, and in the year preceding the war, 1913, was practically 40 per cent (39.7 per cent) of the production of the world. With the temporary fall off in European production during the war and the increase in world demand, our share of the world production advanced to 54 per cent in 1916, 61 per cent in 1918, 62 per cent in 1919, and 62 per cent in 1920, dropping to 54 per cent in 1922, and is estimated at about 62 1-2 per cent in 1923, the year of our biggest production, 40,361,000 tons.

The United States has, according to latest estimates of world experts, about 20 per cent of the "available" iron ore of the world, Brazil 23 per cent, France 16 per cent, Newfoundland 11 per cent, Cuba slightly less than 10 per cent, Great Britain 3 per cent, Germany slightly less than 3 per cent, Russia 2 per cent, and Chile about 1 1-2 per cent. The fact that our supply of coal, necessary for transforming the ore into pig iron, is far greater than that of any other iron producing country gives additional assurance that we are to continue at the head of the list of world producers of pig iron.

BUILDING IN NORTHWEST HELPS STEEL

Blast Furnaces in Utah Will Augment Production of Pig Iron

BY DON PARTRIDGE
(Associate Editor, Iron Trade Review)

In summing up the condition of the Pacific Coast iron and steel markets, Iron Trade Review will say this week: "While distributing interests and mill representatives report some recession in business in the Northwest, due to curtailment in the logging and lumber industries, activity along construction lines more than offsets the dullness in the lumber trade.

"The feature of the Coast pig-iron market is the announcement that the new furnaces of the Columbia Steel Corporation at Provo, Utah, are scheduled to come into blast in two or three weeks. With an output of from 80,000 to 100,000 tons per annum, it is expected that this company will actively enter competition in all the western territory. The best grades of British iron continue to be quoted at from $31 to $32 a ton c.i.f. Coast ports duty paid. Some Korean material has been offered recently but at a price considerably higher than that asked for the continental and Scotch iron.

"Little demand is noted for merchant-bar material, but a fairly satisfactory volume of concrete-bar business is being booked by Coast mills. Twards this week totaled over 600 tons. Pending business is in excess of 7000 tons outstanding among which is 760 tons for the Bradner-Medico Building in Seattle and 573 tons for a drainage system at Los Angeles.

"Plate demand is not heavy and only two projects of any size are up for figures—these involve 1200 tons for a pipe in Los Angeles and 660 tons for a pipe line in San Francisco. Prices are by no means firm and while 2.75 cents represents the minimum on large lots, 2.70 cents has been named for material 3-16 inches and under.

"Activity among fabricators of structural shapes on the Coast is being well maintained and numerous small lots have been awarded. No large tonnages have been reported this week, but pending business is well in excess of 30,000 tons of which 15,000 tons is for the Carquinez Straits Bridge over San Francisco Bay. Prices remain unchanged at 2.75 cents to 2.85 cents c.i.f. Coast ports.

"The bolt, nut and rivet market is far from firm, although a fair demand is in evidence. One interest has named this week, 70 off on large machine bolts."

Annual Report Standard Oil of California

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—The annual report of the Standard Oil Company of California, made public today, shows a net profit of $24,442,439 for 1923, the extension of the company's producing operations in Montana and the bringing in of the company's first producing well in Texas.

Bad weather delayed work on development in the Cold Bay district of the Alaskan Peninsula, the report said, but better progess was being made with development plans in the Argentine, Columbia, Mexico, where the holdings were increased to 61,500 acres, all in the Tehauntepec section, Ecuador and the Philippine Islands. Ambitious plans are under way for the development of the petroleum prospects in that country.

The company controls through lease and fee 226,223 acres within the United States and 465,000 acres in other countries. On December 31 the employees numbered 19,117, while the pay roll for the year was $41,677,643, an average of $170.75 a month for each employee.

The company's gross earnings for the year were $38,320,936. The surplus at the end of 1922 was $63,722,990.

Cash dividends amounted to $18,016,273.

Total stocks of all products on December 31 were 48,039,497 barrels, an increase for the year of 23,985 barrels daily. The gross production of crude oil in Montana leaped from 3134 barrels in 1922 to 57,667 barrels in 1923. The company's holdings in that State were increased to 791557 acres. The

LOS ANGELES CLOSE

CATTLE—With the modification of quarantine restrictions permitting the movement of live stock, suitable for immediate slaughter to move, there was a fairly liberal supply of cattle at hand for the opening session of the week. The nearest source of supply, Imperial Valley, contributed the bulk of the supply. Trade ruled active as packers needed supplies to fill their reunited centers and an early clearance was effected. A top of 9.25 was reached on well conditioned California steers, seventy head, average 1322 pounds, selling at this figure, while several loads, averaging from 1063 to 1208 pounds, sold at 9.05, other sales of less desirable steers closing from 8.75@9.00, with odd head of common grade down to 7.00. A spread of 5.50@7.50 took in medium and good cows and heifers, with several load lots of Imperial Valley cows, averaging slightly over 1050 pounds, at 7.50; also heifers, 682 to 812 pounds at the same figure. Canners and cutters and bulls were in too limited numbers to give basis for quotations.

CALVES—Market ruled strong; eighty-nine head, milk veals, average 126 pounds, sold at 12.00, with ninety-two head, average 160 pounds, at 12.25.

HOGS—Market ruled active at prices strong to higher than when the market closed on account of quarantine. Some fourteen loads cleared; butchers, 179 to 296 pounds, 9.25@9.75, with popular figure at 9.50.

SHEEP—Supply consisted of direct shipments to packers, market nominally steady.

NEW INDUSTRIES NEED OF COAST

Pacific Slope's Huge Deficit in Manufactured Products

Population Keeps Far Ahead of Factory Output

Supply Nearly Two Billion Dollars Under Demand

Corroborative testimony of the industrial opportunities existent in Los Angeles and on the Pacific Slope, as set forth by the recently organized Greater Los Angeles Association, is found in an analysis of the industrial situation on the Pacific Coast published by the Mercantile Trust Company of California in its monthly review. On the basis of the latest study of the nation's manufactures in the census of 1919, this article, assuming that conditions at the beginning of 1924 are relatively the same as in 1919, offers the conclusion that this coast has a manufacturing deficiency of nearly $1,900,000,000 annually, if allowance is made for the character of the finished goods of this region.

"If equal per capita consumption of manufactured products throughout the United States is assumed," the trust company's survey states, "the Pacific Slope, to meet its own requirements and to take its share of the export trade, should have produced 8.4 per cent of the country's manufactures in 1919 instead of 6.5 per cent."

Even though 1919 was an abnormal year when the post-war boom was at its height, the deductions remain unaffected, the Monthly Review argues. The abnormal values of 1919 are offset by the facts that the population of the Pacific Slope has been increasing twice as rapidly as that of the United States, and certain great raw materials, as timber and petroleum, exist in this region in quantities disproportionately large in relation to the population, causing the Pacific States to produce surplus stocks of some manufactures whose value swells the total value of its finished goods. The apparent deficiency is then made considerably less than the actual deficiency.

OUT OF BALANCE

Lumber products, refined products of petroleum, and canned fruits and vegetables together with the now stagnant shipbuilding industry, represented more than one-fourth of the total output of manufactures of the Pacific Slope in 1919. Because of the predominance of the region as a source of supply of the materials required in the three industries first named, the Monthly Review finds that the Pacific Slope's output of these commodities is very much greater than its consumption requirements as indicated by its population.

"Surplus stocks of lumber and canned fruits," the article says, "while they swell the total value of manufactures of the region, do not reduce its need for shoes and clothing. The indicated consumption of manufactured goods on the Pacific Slope in 1919 was $5,243,000,000, and its output was valued at $4,080,000,000. It fell short by $1,163,000,000 of turning out enough finished goods to meet its requirements.

"If the surplus production in the canning and preserving industry, petroleum refining, and lumbering is given proper weight, and if shipbuilding is eliminated from consideration both on the Pacific Slope and in the country as a whole, the Pacific Slope produced in 1919 finished goods valued at $3,221,000,000; should have produced $5,120,000,000, and was short $1,899,000,000."

MARKET IS WAITING

Of the greatest importance to manufacturers is the fact that the Pacific Slope is not a potential market requiring development. It is an actual market, with 9,000,000 inhabitants that buy and wear out shoes, drive automobiles and wear out tires, chew gum, buy furniture, eat breakfast foods, play golf and lose golf balls and buy new ones—just as the men and women and children do in New York, Boston and Chicago. Following out this line of reasoning, the Review says:

"The Pacific Slope bought in 1919 something like $3.40 of finished goods of every $100 worth consumed in the United States. Because its population is increasing more rapidly than that of the rest of the country, its share of the total consumption is becoming greater every year.

"And, as has been shown, the Pacific Slope falls annually $1,900,000,000 short of making enough shoes, clothing, hats, automobiles, furniture, pencils, baseballs, and hundreds of other articles to meet its requirements."

NEBRASKA FARMERS ON "EASY STREET"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OMAHA (Neb.) April 21.—Farmers' troubles have ended in Nebraska with the harvesting of the second largest corn crop in the history of the State, and conditions in all lines have improved according to a statement issued by former Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie, editor of one of Nebraska's leading farm journals.

"In the harvest just past, Nebraska ranked third in corn production with a yield of 282,052,000 bushels valued at $144,188,000. The State marketed 5,777,000 hogs, an increase of 38 per cent over the previous year," McKelvie states. "There has been an increase of 17 per cent in the number of cows in the State since 1921, and the outlook is highly favorable for the cattle industry. Poultry production has grown rapidly. Last year the value of Nebraska poultry products greatly exceeded that of the wheat crop.

"Bankers of the State tell us that money is plentiful, borrowers scarce, and the farmers are meeting their interest payments readily. This year on March 1, when demand for loans is usually heavy, the bankers found themselves with more money than they could loan.

"On the whole, cnoditions in this State are entirely satisfactory. Farmers are proceeding cautiously and conservatively."

DAILY TRADE TALK

International Financier Preaches New Thought in Business; Gossip of the Street

A new spirit has come over the dream of business during the last decade; a spirit which inculcates in its curriculum the policy of live and let live with rather more than a dash of the Golden Rule. This spirit found expression the other day in an address made by Otto H. Kahn of New York, international financier, before the Empire Club of Canada, delivered in Toronto.

Because of the high authority given the preachment by reason of its source as well as in consideration of the note struck it seems worth while, at a period which contains a passing phase of nervous irritation, to quote briefly from Mr. Kahn's creed as laid down for the benefit of his Canadian audience:

"Seek diligently," he said, "to understand one another's views, aims and problems—man and man, calling and calling, section and section. Seek diligently to be fair and helpful to one another. Realize that, inescapably, you are all in the same boat, that all your problems are common problems, that the way to progress and prosperity is not to pull anybody down, but to pull everybody up, that the means toward combating poverty is not to be found in division, but in multiplication.

"While striving to enrich your country by strenuously carrying on the things of material purport, aim to enrich it likewise by cultivating those of the spirit, the things of art, culture, beauty, faith, science.

"Practice economy, both nationally and individually. It is one of the urgent needs of the day. Make every effort to have taxation reduced to the strictly necessary and to have it applied not according to political but to scientifically economic considerations. Unwisely laid or unduly high taxation is one of the most serious handicaps and obstacles to a nation's welfare and development, and all taxation, however laid, is a burden on all the people.

"Beware of the glib talker, encourage the doer. Don't begrudge success or the reward of success, if gained by character and ability. The man of constructive capacity and enterprise is an asset to the community and whatever may be the fruits of his activities for himself, much the greater benefit is bound to accrue to the community."

DECLINE IN BUYING

The credit clearinghouse weekly report shows that the second peak in spring purchasing marking the last spurt of buying for Easter, was completed in the first week in April. This spurt has been followed by a decrease in purchasing equal to 2.6 per cent for the country as a whole.

The most considerable decrease, equal to 4.2 per cent, is recorded by the Pacific Coast, in contrast with very active purchasing at the beginning of April. The north agricultural section shows a decrease of 3.2 per cent. The East section records a decrease in purchasing equal to 2.6 per cent. The middle and south agricultural sections show a decrease of 2.2 per cent. The mountain section records the smallest decrease, equal to 1.4 per cent.

Collections throughout the country continue fair.

SPRING MEETING

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the Commercial Board of Los Angeles, Inc., the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and the Southern California Wholesale Grocers' Association have been invited to send delegates to the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to be held in Cleveland May 6 to 8. More than 1200 organizations, representing all phases of business life are expected to be represented and the delegates from this city are anticipating discussions of an illuminating character on problems which include "Business and Agriculture," "European Readjustment," and the "Responsibility and Integrity of Business."

Another spring meeting of importance to the banking and financial world is that of the executive council of the American Bankers' Association which will be held in Augusta, Ga., April 28 to May 1. Agricultural conditions and credits, State and national legislation affecting banking, taxation, and other leading problems of the day will be considered. An unusually large attendance of bankers from all sections of the country is indicated, including several delegates from Los Angeles.

BURDEN ON SHIPPER

There has been presented to the Railroad Commission an application on behalf of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, Los Angeles and Salt Lake, Pacific Electric, Northwestern Pacific, Southern Pacific and Western Pacific railroads for authority to publish at once a rule in the tariffs of these carriers providing that the actual cost of labor and materials required to clean and disinfect railroad-owned or operated stock yards, stock pens or chutes, shall be borne by the owner of the infected live stock.

This proposed charge has the approval of the Cattlemen's Association and the California Wool Growers' Association. The intent of the rule is to assist in preventing movement of infected live stock by making the live stock owner responsible for the disinfecting costs, and it is an effort to prevent the spread of the hoof-and-mouth disease.

Definite action has not yet been taken by the commission.

WHAT THE WORLD WANTS

Sales openings for the sale of American goods in thirty-one countries are reported by the Department of Commerce this week. The variety of articles wanted is unusually large, ranging from barber chairs to oyster shells and including automobiles, photographic supplies, underwear, bath tubs, jewelry, tools, lumber, textiles, and a large assortment of foodstuffs.

Ireland wants to buy 500 tons of corn and linseed cake in fifty-ton consignments. Belgium wants to purchase pure paraffin for making of matches. Germany is in the market for a diversified list of articles. Palestine inquires for electric tools. Poland wants to buy automobiles and replacement parts.

WEATHER REPORTS DEPRESS COTTON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Cotton futures today declined some $4 a bale. Reports of improved weather conditions in the belt caused the heavy liquidation in which prominent Wall street interests and New Orleans operators participated. Heavy southern hedge selling also was in evidence. The weak tone in the stock market was a factor during the late decline, and the list's failure to display any noticeable resistance in selling pressure also was a factor. Values went sharply lower from the outset, with the near months, of course, showing considerably the greater losses. Prices did not come back much from the low before the close, which found the old crop months off 76 to 81 points and the new crop positions off 63 to 65 points net. Spot cotton closed at 2990, 80 points net lower.

of cutting commercial timber increases the value of remaining forests and emphasizes the importance of an adequate supply of raw material for any company manufacturing lumber and lumber products. The most extensive and valuable tract of high grade Sitka spruce in North America according to experts is the raw material supply of the Los Angeles Lumber Products Company. Low logging costs, cheap transportation, proximity to large markets, modern equipment and a management controlled by some of the most able and best known business men in Los Angeles, are a few of the factors favoring this Company and causing us to recommend Without Water!

What would we do without water? It is a self-evident fact that no town or community could exist even for a short time without this primary requisite.

Because its product is absolutely essential to human life and one for which there is no substitute, a water company is one of the most dependable of business activities. Expenses are light, as the upkeep is small, and this type of plant does not become obsolete.

A record of steadily increasing earnings has been established by the East Bay Water Company, which operates in Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Richmond, and neighboring communities. This Company's gross earnings increased from $2,029,145 in 1919 to $3,202,440 in 1923, each year showing a substantial proportionate advance.

The territory served by the East Bay Water Company has a population in excess of 500,000, and includes the most rapidly growing industrial area of the San Francisco bay region. The Company serves this entire territory without competition, and furthermore, through the ownership of constitutional franchises in all municipalities in which it operates, no competition is possible.

The value of the Company's properties is in excess of $25,000,000, its land ownership of 45,400 acres being estimated at more than $7,000,000.

The East Bay Water Company's 6% Bonds are free from the California Personal Property Tax, and a legal investment for savings banks in this State. May we send you descriptive data?

ST RIDE FOR YELLOW CABS

York Traders Take Big Concern Down the Line

List is Also Under Fire on Chicago Board

Uncle Wm's" Friends See a Colorful Victory

BY GLENN GRISWOLD
(TIMES STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

CHICAGO, April 21.—The most startling and from many points of view the most successful indus-trial in Chicago's history is John D. Hertz's latest of various companies to bear the label of Yellow cabs. Mr. Hertz is particularly in the public eye these days because of battle between the pools and rival groups which has involved $10,000,000 or $40,000,000 of the market price of the stocks in the last fortnight. For many years Chicago has been noted that Hertz is a man, that almost anything he touches by way of expansion in industries. Speculators and in-vestors have maintained prices on stocks that could be justi-fied by discounting the proba-bilities of the far future. Hertz has been sold at five and ten times their book value and on an earning basis that yielded less than 6% on bonds.

Whether or not this theory appears, to have been continuously profitable over a long period of years, Any-one who started with John Hertz to look over the Walden W. Muelbach business, put a few thousand dollars into the business, took his stock dividends and exer-cised his options, is a rich man to-day. The expansion and prosperity of the Hertz companies are scarce-ly short of the miraculous.

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Hertz and his associates determined to list Yel-low Cab stock and Yellow Cab stock on the New York Stock Exchange, and thereby a broader and more active market, although the New York Stock Exchange had given Hertz securities a rather fast mar-ket for several years. There then was a connection between a broker in Chicago who handles the bulk of Yellow Cab business and some who were friendly and near that busi-ness. There was opposition to the listing of the stocks in New York. Finally a delegation went East and carried the issue and the stocks were put on the big board.

RAMPANT PROCESS

A pool was organized in New York to fight the stocks and they were materially assisted in the drop by virtue of the fact that the speculators have no such business with or confidence in Hertz as he enjoys in the city. The result is that Yellow Cab trading has been almost continuous in recent days, has declined from a 1924 high of 60, a loss of 47 points. Yel-low Cab was depressed 19 1-4 points to 40½.

Taking a hint from the East, local speculators attacked other Hertz stocks listed on the Chicago exchange. Chicago Motor Coach was depressed 60 points to 135, the preferred lost 10¼ points while Balaban and Katz, a moving-picture concern dominated by Hertz, fell 10 points to 42.

The outcome of this speculative debate will determine whether Chicago is any longer justified in maintaining extravagant prices for Hertz issues based on confidence that tremendous growth is im-mediately in the future.

The most spectacular example of this capitalization of Mr. Hertz's reputation is to be found in the experience of Chicago Motor Coach. This corporation was formed to operate a Chicago bus concern that was practically de-funct. A corporate structure was erected late in 1922, but it was not until February of 1923, that stock was paid in on the new com-pany. One hundred dollars a share was paid for the preferred and $5 a share for the common. A few months later certificates were is-sued and Motor Coach common stock began to be traded in on the Chicago Stock Exchange at prices ranging from $115 to $120 a share. Remembering that but $5 a share was paid into the company for this stock and having remembered that because of the debts that were as-sumed the stock certainly had a book value of no more than $5 a share, multiplying that price by twenty or twenty-five to deter-mine a market value seems almost unbelievable. Probably there is no parallel for this in the history of local traction financing, and it is practically a local transportation matter since the Chicago Motor Coach Company had no relation whatever to the subsidiary of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Com-pany, which was to manufacture and sell busses.

BOTTOM STAYS PUT

Remarkable as this performance was, it is overshadowed by the fact that by October of 1923, when the company had been in actual op-eration less than nine months, this $5 bar stock sold at $212 a share. It is remarkable enough that af-ter losing 60 points it is still sell-ing at $135.

It is difficult to determine just what is the book value or what would be a fair market value for Chicago Motor Coach, but since $5 a share was paid in for the stock it probably has added in earnings about $4 a share.

Yellow Cab, which even now is selling around 42, has a book value of less than $10 a share and its market yield today is about 7.7 per cent. Yellow Manufacturing, with a book value of less than $25, was quoted at 49 and yields 8.4 per cent in the market.

It may be that if recent market operations do not have any per-manently harmful effects, Mr. Hertz will be able to continue to give his stockholders the bountiful re-turns he has afforded them in the past. Certainly there is nothing in the current record of any of these companies that is any less optimistic than conditions that have prevailed during recent years. In any event, Mr. Hertz will enjoy the reputation of having had his peculiar abilities and good in-tentions capitalized at a higher figure than any American indus-trialist whose name comes to mind at the moment.

Every Mortgage Bond
should have two elements of strength; First: It should be se-cured by mortgage on property having a value far greater than the amount of the total bond issue.
Second: There should be a de-pendable net income from the mortgaged property sufficient to provide a liberal depreciation ac-count and meet all interest and sinking fund payments. If your bond possesses these elements, you have nothing to worry about.

RISING FRANC PRICE HAS TROUBLED WAKE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 21.—Bankers feel that the improved condition of the franc will remain, and that any further attempts of international speculators to again depress the market will meet failure. It is considered that the franc might rise to even a higher level than before the plunge of last fall if let alone, but politics is involved and this will probably keep the currency at about the present mark or close to 7 cents.

Prices, however, have risen as the franc fell but they have not commenced to lower with the bet-tering of the money. To get prices down, bankers say, deflation will be necessary, as well as appre-ciation of the franc abroad. With the demand for ready cash circu-lation at the end of March was greater, with the exception of March 6, than at any date on rec-ord. There were at the end of March 400,000,000 francs less than at the beginning and nearly 4,000,-000,000 less than November, 1920, when the note issue was 39,046,-000,000.

Many suicides have resulted, not only in Paris, but throughout the continent, because of the rapid rise of the franc, throwing thou-sands into bankruptcy and pover-ty. In Vienna it is estimated that 80,000,000 of crowns were lost in the speculators' juggling when the franc was low.

We Are Loaning Money on Real Estate—NOW!

THE future growth of Los Angeles is dependent on two factors—the financing of industries and financing of homes, both of which are equally important. We always have ample funds on hand to loan on well-located residential property, in amounts from $2500 to $10,000. Our loans are based on 75% of a bank appraisal, 35% to 40% of which is represented by a first coupon mortgage, with interest payable quarterly at 7% and 8%.

The balance of the loan is represented by a deed of trust which is payable from 24 to 30 months.

This plan of financing real estate gives a wide margin to protect the buyer of our first coupon mortgages, which have all the legal requirements of those made for savings banks.

It is not necessary to make applications to us for loans through brokers, but applications received from brokers will have prompt and careful attention.

Inquiries are invited from those desiring to borrow money on real estate in high-class districts within the city of Los Angeles and investors who wish to purchase conservative first coupon mortgages. Further information cheerfully given.

BRITISH RUBBER IN OUR CONTROL

Foreign Growers at Mercy of American Buyers

Overproduction is Cause of Vanishing Profits

Curtailed Output May Become Measure of Defense

BY HERBERT N. CASSON
[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

LONDON, April 10.—English rubber growers would like to talk to Secretary Herbert Hoover. They regard his recent suggestion to organize a national purchasing agency for rubber as a joke, at England's expense.

The fact is that the British rubber growers are now at the mercy of the American buyers. They are not making 3 per cent profit on an immense investment of $600,000,000 in rubber plantations. They are on the defensive, fighting to keep their companies alive.

The price of rubber has been steadily falling twelve years. It was $3 a pound in 1910. It was as low as 13½ cents a pound in 1923. Rubber is now selling at one-third of its average price in 1913, while cotton is selling at two and one-half times its prewar price. So, say the English, why make a fuss about the high price of rubber?

To hammer the price below 25 cents a pound means to ruin the plantations and ultimately to create a shortage of rubber.

The rubber business is young. The men who developed it are still alive and active. Sir Henry Wickham, founder of rubber plantations in the East, is still busy. He is at the moment putting a new fiber on the market.

For the last seventeen years there has been a race between producers and consumers. Consumption increased by leaps and bounds. The present consumption of rubber is four times what it was before the war.

But production increased faster still. It went up 29 per cent in 1922; 21 per cent in 1917; 27 per cent in 1916, and 31 per cent in 1915.

GROWERS TOO SANGUINE

If the British growers had spent $150,000,000 less money on their plantations, they would very likely have made three or four times more profit. They were too sanguine. They overshot the mark. They planted rubber, not wisely but too well. They planted 3,400,000 acres of plantations.

All told, there are 531 rubber growers, and they are federated into about fifteen groups, for purposes of efficient management. Fifteen men, meeting near Mincing Lane, represent the entire rubber trade of Great Britain.

Last year, for the first time, the British rubber growers combined to restrict the output. They were forced together against their will by the disaster of 14-cent rubber. This "Stevenson scheme," as it is called, created a sliding scale of production. The lower the price, the lower the output. If rubber remains at its present price, the output will be decreased by 5 per cent this year.

At first this scheme of restriction improved the price up to 36 cents a pound, but the power of American buyers and an increase in the production of rubber by the Dutch have now pulled the price down again.

It is generally believed that the British growers have produced 20 per cent more than they should have done, and the Dutch growers have stubbornly refused to take part in any scheme of restriction.

The Dutch, too, are losing money by the low price of rubber, but they are unable to restrict production, because of the large number of native squatters. The squatters of Sumatra, for instance, have 50,000,000 rubber trees. They were asked to plant these trees by the Dutch government, consequently the government does not see how it can order these squatters to curtail their output.

However, Secretary Hoover's proposal has already alarmed the Dutch government, and there is now a possibility that the Dutch and the English may be forced to co-operate in self-defense.

BUYERS' POSITION

Organized buyers are more likely to control a situation than organized sellers; and in the rubber trade only a certain number of the sellers are organized.

The British growers have no monopoly and are not likely to have one. At the most, they represent only 70 per cent of the rubber growers. There are American firms that have large plantations in the East. The United States Rubber Company, for instance, owns a larger acreage than the Dunlop company—so says a Dunlop director.

Until three or four years ago the British rubber growers fancied that they had a monopoly. They ignored salesmanship and advertising and team play. The management was largely in the hands of bankers and brokers, who were skilled in finance, but not in the new arts of business development and price control. They concentrated on more and more production. They forced production up and up, until last year it reached 4,1,361 tons, but they never gave a thought to price maintenance.

They—the British growers—literally created the rubber trade. They produced ten times as much rubber as Brazil. They made possible the expansion of the motor-car industry and yte they have, up to the present, received a very small share in the new values that they helped to create.

Roughly speaking, England produces 70 per cent of the rubber and the United States buys 70 per cent. On the face of it this would indicate that England and the United States must oppose each other as seller and buyer; but a few of the more progressive English growers would like to see a closer co-operation between sellers and buyers for the benefit of the rubber trade as a whole.

It is certain that if present prices continue there will be a drastic curtailment of production. The plantations will not be kept in good condition, and there will be a shortage and unreasonably high prices in a few years. At least that is the prevalent English opinion.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Apparently under the guardianship of pool operators, Los Angeles Investment performed in a spectacular manner yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. There was nothing in the way of news from the company, but speculative interest was keenly alive to the action of the stock, which fluctuated in a 25 cent range during the day. Starting at 4.51, buyers bid sharply for the shares, and the price ascended to 4.59 as the high for the day, before selling orders were thrown on the market in sufficient volume to break through the buying.

The decline extended to 4.34 and hovered around that point until near the close when prices advanced to final quotations of 4.39, off 14½ cents from the close on Saturday.

Julian Petroleum common and preferred stocks made their initial appearance on the exchange, but failed to excite much interest. The preferred sold at 30 and the common at 18½. Other oil stocks reacted to the severe selling campaign on the bid board, and losses ran as high as 2 3-8 in General Petroleum common. Standard of California fell 1 5-8 to 55 7-8, and U. S. Royalties dropped back 2½ cents to 19½. Globe Petroleum sold at 9 cents and Union Oil Associates at 52, off ½.

Associated Oil 6s of 1925 sold up 1-8 to 98½ and General Petroleum 7s of 1931 the same distance to 105. Edison 5½s of 1944 advanced ⅛ to 95½ and San Joaquin series B 6s of 1952 acquired 1-4 at 98 1-4.

Following are the closing quotations and sales:

Street-Hawking Campaign Under Way; Two Held

A campaign against the practice of some store proprietors in hiring "barkers" to stand in front of their stores and shout out the wares has been started by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association.

As a result of this campaign two men were arrested Friday on a charge of selling in violation of the city ordinances. The two asserted offenders, M. Baron, proprietor of a millinery store at 135 South Broadway, and Jack Seltzer, ar employee, were arraigned before Police Judge Chambers. Baron was fined $25 but the fine was later suspended. Seltzer appealed his case, declaring that he had a legal right to stand in front of the store and shout out the wares because he has a peddler's license.

PASADENAN INJURED IN VENICE ACCIDENT

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 21.—Thomas F. Lee of 294 Fair Oaks avenue, Pasadena, was painfully injured here today in a traffic accident at Dudley avenue and the Speedway. He was riding in a machine driven by W. T. Jenkins of 1349 Fourth street, Santa Monica. Another car driven by an unidentified man struck Jenkins's machine. Jenkins was not hurt but Lee suffered severe cuts and bruises on his face and body.

PUPPY SAVES MAN IN BURNING HOUSE

SHREWSBURY (Mass.) April 21.— Awakened by his Scotch collie puppy pulling at the neckband of his nightshirt, Charles Currin, who lived alone in a small house on the South Quinsigamond avenue, had barely time to escape with his life. The house and contents were destroyed by fire. The origin of the blaze is a mystery.

Johnny's Hard Lesson

A father read over a list of five questions which his small son was called upon to answer in school that day. "Did you miss any of the five?" asked the father. "Yes," replied the boy. "I missed the first two and the last three."

McCARTNEY SEARCH IS FRUITLESS

Officers Comb Towns on Border in Vain; Traces Believed Found

After combing Mexican and border points for five days in search of Grant McCartney, Los Angeles real estate man, charged with trying to frame up evidences against his wife, Mrs. Paule McCartney, Deputy Sheriffs Stensland and Weir of the homicide squad of the Sheriff's office returned to Los Angeles at 9 p.m. yesterday.

While traces of the missing real estate man are believed to have been found at Tia Juana and Mexicali, the officers were unable to locate McCartney at these towns or at Ensenada, San Diego, Calexico or El Centro. The most promising clew was uncovered at Mexicali, where United States customs officials said they recognized a picture of McCartney as that of a man who, they declared, went into Mexico several days ago.

McCartney is charged by his wife with attempting to secure false evidence against her at a roadhouse on the 6th inst., and with striking her with the butt of a revolver. Sidney Blair, former process server, now under arrest at Albuquerque, is said by Mrs. McCartney to have lured her to the roadhouse on the pretense of serving papers on her husband.

LONG-DISTANCE PHONE FOR THE MEXICANS

The Mexican government has recently granted a franchise for long-distance telephone service throughout the country to a new corporation which expects son to begin the erection of an extensive system of trunk telephone lines.

The concession, says an announcement from the Mexican Deportment of Communications and Public Works, reserves for the government a royalty of 20 per cent of the new company's gross receipts, and provides that the whole plant shall revert to the Mexican government after a certain term of years. Commercial telephone stations are to be installed, however, only in towns where there is no telegraph service.

The Mexican telegraph system is operated by the government, but according to the latest figures available, about 43,300 of the 45,400 telephones in the country are owned and operated by private companies. The government runs only a small system of less than 1900 telephones. — [Telephone Press.

Mistook the Signal

The woman was signaling the tram car in the orthodox fashion of her sex, but it did not come to a halt until eight people had shouted "Hi!" and six small boys had had an impromptu competition in shrill whistling.

Then she glared at the conductor indignantly.

"Why didn't you stop the car for me?" she demanded.

"How was I to know you wanted to get on?"

"Didn't you see me swinging my arms and jumping up and down and waving my umbrella?"

"Of course. Could anyone help seeing you? The whole street was looking at you."

"Then why didn't you stop when you saw me?"

"I thought you were dancing to that organ."—[Exchange.

Keyes Appeals to Voters for Police Bonds

Declaring that an adverse vote on the $1,600,000 police bond issue on May 6 will have a harmful effect on the morals of police officers and will encourage crime by letting criminals know the local police department is not adequately equipped, Dist.-Atty. Keyes yesterday issued a statement appealing to voters to write "yes" opposite Bond Issue No. 5.

"Prevention of crime is better economy that the prosecution of criminals," declared Mr. Keyes. "An adequately equipped and efficient police force is one of the best preventives of crime.

"Chief Vollmer cannot be praised too highly for his success in bringing the police department to its present degree of efficiency. But even these efforts must fail eventually if the equipment to be obtained from the pending bond issue is not forthcoming."

Anthony's Mistake

In a book by Trollope we read: "Squash is the pulp of the pumpkin and is much used in the United States." Anthony evidently gave a literal interpretation to the old joke about throwing up a pumpkin and having it come down squash!—[Boston Transcript

WIDE WILSHIRE WAY ADVISED

Traffic Commission Experts Make Report

Widehearted Enlargement is Declared Waste

Road 200 Feet Across Held Essential

Wilshire Boulevard is to rank with boulevards in large cities it should be made 200 feet wide; if it is to remain purely a means of handling traffic without regard for adjacent property, a width of 120 feet is sufficient; a compromise of 150 feet would be wasteful because it would not permit of the beauty of the wider thoroughfare and would cost something for nothing. These observations sum up the findings of three nationally-known experts engaged by the Los Angeles Traffic Commission to make a survey of local traffic conditions. They are Frederick Law Olmsted, Harland Bartholomew and Charles Henry Cheney. Their ideas were solicited in connection with the discussion of the proper width of Wilshire Boulevard.

The opinion of the experts submitted to the Community Development Association follows:

"In connection with the holding of the Sixteenth National Conference on city planning in Los Angeles you have asked us for a brief expression of opinion in regard to an expedient width for Wilshire Boulevard west of Crenshaw.

"The undersigned are familiar with the local physical conditions as mentioned and with its relations to the general system of main thoroughfares of the city, existing and prospective, which have been studying for the purpose on major street plan for Los Angeles. We have taken occasion to discuss the problem briefly with some of our professional colleagues in the National Conference on city planning and are ready to express very definite views as to certain logical limitations and as to the inadvisability of any compromise between them.

"If Wilshire Boulevard is to rank with boulevards and to remain anything more than, and substantially different from, a general traffic thoroughfare of large capacity, such as Olympic boulevard, the hundred-foot width which drains a large territory than Wilshire is likely to become and to remain a most desirable example of the finest monumental boulevard to be found in all the large cities of the world—into the class which Los Angeles is growing—a street which people will want to drive upon and to acquire property upon because of this distinction and dignity; a street of substantially 200 feet is the minimum which could accomplish this purpose effectively.

"Considered purely from the standpoint of moving vehicular traffic, without regard to appearance, a width of approximately 120 feet is highly desirable in order to permit a roadway of adequate width between curbs, including bikeways, and a sufficient number of lanes for the carrying of important crossings with a minimum width of twenty feet, including a sidewalk of adequate width and lamp posts and trees where necessary or desirable, on each side of a main thoroughfare. The width for the outlying portions of Wilshire Boulevard is a little less than the width of Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, in the downtown district, where are no trees and no ornamental features. To adopt a width of less than 139 feet will do away with that element to be done on the

But, he related, her deficiency in the scraping department of the art soon caused her undoing. She had no knack in learning the grain of whiskers, unless it was to cut against it, he said, and the shop's trade was being steadily ruined. Mrs. Saueressig was discharged.

Mr. Saueressig said he was secretly pleased and hoped that his wife would stay home. But, to his horror, she came home one day with a set of clubs and announced that she was going to take up golf.

Of all the movements most calculated to displease Mr. Saueressig the golf movement among housewives was the most so. It was the last straw. William A. Saueressig's back was broken.

Much more of the case, Mrs. Saueressig's side, will be heard today.

YOUNGEST CITY HEAD IN STATE

Mayor C. Gordon Parkhurst

EX-NEWSIE IS MAYOR OF VENICE

Parkhurst, Anderman and Thurlow Are Sworn in as Trustees of City

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 21.—C. Gordon Parkhurst, once a roistering lusty-voiced newsboy selling papers in the Bay District, became Mayor of Venice today. The new Chief Executive of this city is 29 years of age, the youngest Mayor in California.

Parkhurst and his two successful fellows-candidates; H. L. Anderman and T. H. Thurlow, were sworn in as members of the Venice Board of Trustees at the first session of the new board this morning.

Immediately after this ceremony the three new candidates, voting together on all questions, elected Parkhurst Mayor and then proceeded to "get action" on the recall petition against Fred Church and William G. Lutz, the two holdover members of the board who have two years yet to serve. They forced through a motion instructing the City Attorney to draft an ordinance providing for the recall election against Church and Lutz. They and former Mayor Edward A. Gerety, who was defeated in the municipal election about a week ago, are charged in the recall petition with mismanagement and misappropriation of city funds.

The date for the special recall election will be set by the new board tomorrow, it was announced.

A large crowd of men and women were present at the City Hall to witness the swearing in of the three new Trustees and to attend the first session of the new board. City Clerk Thomas Hann and City Treasurer E. H. Racek, both of whom were re-elected, also were sworn into office.

JAMES REID SOUGHT

Disappearance of James Reid, 77 years of age, has brought appeals to law officers in all parts of the country for aid in finding him. He left the home of his son, H. J. Reid, at 908 West Seventy-fifth street, Friday, and was last seen, so far as can be learned, at Gardena on Friday night. He is 5 feet 5 inches in height, weighs 145 pounds, and has gray hair and gray mustache. When he left home he wore a brown hat, blue shirt, dark green sweater coat, khaki trousers and gold-rimmed eyeglasses.

BATTLESHIPS DUE AT NOON

Nine Capital Ships to Steam Into Home Base

Submarines Change Course on Late Order

Given Lay-up for Ten Days at San Diego

Nine battleships of the U. S. Battle Fleet will arrive at Los Angeles Harbor, the home base, at noon today, it was announced last night by Capt. Alfred G. Howe, chief-of-staff of the Train Squadron of the Battle Fleet. The U. S. S. Procyon, flagship of Train Squadron One, accompanied by the repair ship Prometheus and with Rear-Admiral Jehu V. Chase, commanding that force, arrived from southern waters at dawn yesterday.

Official greetings of the city and its environs will be extended the fleet by Mayor Cryer with the freedom of the city and the good will of its citizens included in the greeting. The Mayor will board Cecil B. De Mille's yacht this morning and will sail out to sea and board the flagship California to extend the felicitations. The real home-coming greeting, however, will be that in which the public will participate when the fleet reaches the outer harbor at approximately 2 o'clock.

The Battleship Squadron, in command of Vice-Admiral Henry A. Wiley, will be the only units of the fleet to arrive today, Capt. Howe said. A last-minute change in orders sends the submarine force, consisting of the tender Beaver and ten S-type submarines of Divisions Sixteen and Seventeen, into San Diego for a ten-day stop. They will return to the home base for maneuvers with the battleships shortly after May 1.

RELIEF ALSO STOPS

The hospital ship Relief, originally scheduled to return with the fleet, will also put in at San Diego to disembark a large number of patients to be transferred to the San Diego Naval Base Hospital. She will then proceed to Los Angeles Harbor.

The ships arriving today include the flagship California, in command of Capt. H. H. Cristy, and carrying Admiral Samuel S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet; the New Mexico, in command of Capt. Yates Stirling, Jr.; the Maryland, commanded by Capt. Frank H. Clark; the Tennessee, Capt. Luke McNamee; the Pennsylvania, Capt. John F. Hines; the Mississippi, Capt. William D. Brotherton; the Idaho, Capt. W. S. Crosley; the Arizona, Capt. P. M. Olmstead, and the Nevada, Capt. John M. Luby.

AT BASE UNTIL JUNE

The fleet will remain at this base for gunnery practice and maneuvers until June 25, Capt. Howe announced, when it will proceed north for its annual cruise on Puget Sound, visiting Pacific Coast ports en route.

The California and one division of battleships will remain in San Francisco during the visit there in late June of the British around-the-world squadron of cruisers and battle cruisers.

Various civic and patiotic organizations have planned a ten-day celebration here for the officers and men of the fleet. One of these events is the big theater party planned to witness De Mille's latest picture, "Triumph," at the Million Dollar Theater, on which occasion the fleet will be the special guests of Mr. De Mille and Albert A. Kaufman, managing director of the Grauman theaters.

LONG BEACH WILL WELCOME FLEET HOME

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 21.—A formal welcome back to its home base will be tendered by Long Beach to the Pacific Battle Fleet upon its arrival in Los Angeles Harbor tomorrow. A committee, consisting of Mayor Buffum, T. F. Burmester, representing the Chamber of Commerce, and William Kollender, representing the American Legion here, will wait upon Admiral Robinson and extend on behalf of the city a hearty welcome home. Admiral Robinson and his staff will make their headquarters ashore at the Hotel Virginia as heretofore.

Long Beach today began to take on a festival appearance in anticipation of the return of the fleet. The amusement zone along the beach front is being gayly decorated with bunting in preparation for the Pacific Fleet Long Beach day next Friday. An elaborate decorative plan for Ocean Boulevard from Magnolia to American avenue, is being worked out and other streets in the downtown district will be similarly decorated. A reception and ball to Admiral Robinson and his staff, as well as the captains and staffs of the various fighting ships, will be tendered at the Hotel Virginia Thursday night. The affair will follow the official dinner of welcome to be given the admiral and his staff by the Mayor and City Council. All the amusements and dance halls on the Pike and Silver Spray Pier will be thrown open to the sailors of the fleet on the following evening.

SAN DIEGO READY TO GREET DESTROYERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 21.—Thirty-four ships of the destroyer force, Pacific Fleet, with the several thousand men making up their crews, are scheduled to reach port tomorrow afternoon after an absence of more than three months in Southern waters.

Extensive preparations have been made for welcoming the officers and men. The home-coming will include dances and receptions, the stellar event of which will be a Navy Night celebration in the civic auditorium, tendered by the Chamber of Commerce.

Return of the destroyer force will bring a new commander, Rear Admiral Frank H. Schofield, who has relieved Rear Admiral Summer Kittelle, who has been transferred to New Orleans.

POWER BUREAU BREAKS FAITH

Ignores Chamber Promise in Bond Ordinance

Measure is Passed Without Safeguard for City

Nothing Said About Sinking Fund to Pay Cost

A clear breach of faith by the Municipal Bureau of Power and Light with the Chamber of Commerce was seen yesterday in the passage by the City Council of the Power Bureau's $21,000,000 bond election ordinance without the safeguards the chamber demanded. The ordinance contains no prohibition against using the funds for wasteful paralleling of the electric lines of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, as the Chamber requested, or against using bond-raised money to pay the campaign expenses of the Bureau's political schemes.

The Chamber of Commerce, through its directors individually, had declared that the ordinance should contain provisions that the $21,000,000 could only be spent in extending and bettering of the city's own lines, and the Power Bureau representatives had promised that such provisions would be included. They promised to put in anything that would gain the chamber's support for the ordinance, but the promise was not kept.

No reference to the gas company was made in the ordinance, and the only clause offering any compliance with requests of the chamber is one providing that all of the money be spent within the city limits. This clause was demanded to prevent further gifts to the United States Reclamation Service for work at Boulder Dam on the Colorado River. The Power Bureau has already donated $75,000 for this purpose.

INTEREST RAISED

Los Angeles municipal bond ordinances usually fix the maximum interest rate for city bonds at 5 per cent, and the $21,500,000 power bonds of 1919 established this as the maximum rate. Realizing that the $21,000,000 power bonds, if voted, will practically exhaust the city's unused bonding capacity and, as pointed out by Councilman Mushet, chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee and the man who successfully fought the Power Bureau's attempted secret sale of the $13,-500,000 power bonds to Irving H. Hellman at a discount (Mr. Mushet thereby saving the taxpayers $2,000,000,) the maximum interest rate set in the ordinance for the $21,000,000 power bonds is 6 per cent. This was done so that in case the bonds are voted and the savings banks of New York refuse to accept them as legal investments, then the city will be compelled to peddle the bonds wherever it can and to sell them at high interest rates.

The Power Bureau has in its campaign literature declared that it will pay from power revenues the interest and sinking-fund charges on the $21,000,000 power bonds, but there is nothing in the ordinance adopted yesterday to compel the Public Service Commission to do this. Similar promises were made in the past by the Power Bureau during the power-bonds campaigns, but not kept, and the taxpayers have paid to date from increased taxation more than power bonds.

ASKS FAIR PLAY BY VOTERS

Gas Company Cites Long and Economical Service to City in Grab Ordinance Protest

Pointing out that a "yes" vote at the May 6 election on the two Power Bureau "gas grab" ordinances (Propositions 9 and 10) means the approval of the voters to a future bond issue of at least $20,000,-000 to enable the bureau to take over the electric properties of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, Vice-President Vance of that company yesterday issued an appeal to the voters for fair play for an institution which, he said, has rendered service to the city for the last forty years and which is spending $15,000,000 this year for extensions to its properties.

The statement of Vice-President Vance was as follows:

We are hoping that the people of Los Angeles will vote "No" on Propositions Nos. 9 and 10 at the May 6 election, for these two ordinances, which are on the ballot as the result of a referendum signed by more than 58,000 persons, authorize the first steps by the Power Bureau to drive our company out of the electric business and to set up an unregulated political monopoly of the electric power and light business in this city. The first step is the valuation survey provided for under these ordinances. Then will come the $20,-000,000 or more bond issue to purchase our electric properties. And if these Propositions 9 and 10 carry on May 6, the Power Bureau will say when it asks for the $20,-000,000 or more to pay for our electric properties that the taking over by the bureau of our electric business was authorized by the voters on May 6, 1924. Hence the voters should know now that a "Yes" vote on Propositions Nos. 9 and 10 means, not the spending of $50,000, but of what amounts to an approval of a future bond issue of at least $20,000,000.

BLOW AT INDUSTRY

I believe that at a time like this when our entire city is mobilizing to bring industries here, the people of Los Angeles will not lend themselves to this political scheme to drive out of the electric business one of the city's long-established industries, namely the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation.

We have been in business here for forty years. We have grown up with the city and given gas and electric service to the increased population. We have thousands of stockholders, many of them Los Angeles small home owners with one and two shares of stock. We have 4000 employees. We spent last year for extensions to our gas and electric systems more than $11,000,000 in order to keep pace with the growth of the city and to meet the demands for our service. That was our part in helping make Los Angeles grow. The Power Bureau would punish us for this and take away our business. During the year 1924 we shall spend for extensions and betterments $15,000,000 and this program is no small factor in keep-

GUATEMALA CRISIS PASSED

Monrovia Laundry Bag Incident Believed Closed With Note from Secretary Hughes

Vivan los Guatmaltecos! Vivan los Americanos!

The famous laundry bag argument of Monrovia, which some weeks ago threatened to hang like a dark cloud over the friendly relations of two nations, now appears to be well on the way toward an amicable settlement.

A letter was received yesterday by Dist.-Atty. Keyes, who got it from Gov. Richardson, who got it from Secretary of State Hughes at Washington, to whom the matter was originally referred by the Guatemalan Minister at Washington, who got the primary complaint from Sr. F. Calderon Avila, Guatemalan Consul stationed at Los Angeles. And one readily infers from the letter of the Secretary of State that the matter will pass off quietly to the satisfaction of all concerned.

HOW TROUBLE STARTED

The trouble started over a bundle of laundry at Monrovia some weeks ago. Mrs. Avila, wife of the Consul, who maintains his residence in the "Gem City of the Foothills," had a dispute over a bill with a Monrovia laundry concern. She went to the laundry office to seek an adjustment. Matters there did not pan out, as the American saying is, according to her desires. She picked up a bundle of laundry on the counter and went home with it. She made a mistake. It was somebody's else shirts and collars. Wherefore, the manager of the laundry swore out a complaint against her.

But when the Monrovia police officer went to the Avila residence to serve the warrant he met with difficulty. Mrs. Avila, apparently, was not to be served so easily. The officer retired and returned with reinforcements. It was then that Mrs. Avila dramatically claimed immunity from arrest on the ground that she is the wife of the Guatemalan Consul. The officers debated and then retired, out of deference to international amity. The bundle of laundry apparently found its way back to the counter.

HUSBAND COMPLAINS

The matter, however, did not rest there. Mr. Avila complained to his Minister at Washington. The Minister took it up with the State Department. The department referred it to the Governor, who took it up with Dist.-Atty. Keyes, who ordered an investigation. The findings were sent back over the devious route of officialdom, and now comes a letter from the Secretary of State.

Mr. Hughes said in part in his letter to the Governor:

"In view of the insignificant nature of the complaint against the Consul's wife, and since it appears that the laundry company has obtained possession of the goods for taking of which the complaint was made, it would seem that it might be appropriate to take no further steps in the matter of this warrant. I trust you will find it practicable to convey such a suggestion to the District Attorney."

At the office of the District Attorney it was intimated that the suggestion would be conveyed further to Mayor Dunn of Monrovia. Mr. Dunn announced last night that he and his official family indicated long ago that they were willing to let the matter drop.

HEROINE OF SCREEN TO WED TODAY

Dorothy Dalton of Film Fame to Become Bride of Hammerstein

Dorothy Dalton, heroine of many an impassioned love scene on the motion-picture screen, will have a quiet hotel wedding back in Chicago at noon today when in her apartment at the Drake Hotel, the film star will be married to Arthur Hammerstein, stage impresario and only son of the late Oscar Hammerstein, according to dispatches from the East last night. The news leaked out in spite of the great secrecy with which their plans had been guarded.

The bride-elect and the prospective bridegroom, each of whom has been married before do not like "all this fuss about a wedding ceremony," they said.

Following the wedding ceremony, the newlyweds will leave on the Century for New York and have engaged passage on the Berengaria for May 14.

FOR ANIMAL DEFENSE

The American Animal Defense League yesterday called a meeting for tomorrow night at the Alexandria to protest what it called the "atrocious and needless killing of pet animals on owners' premises as a violation of property rights of citizens." It was declared there had been such killing by foot-and-mouth quarantine officers.

HANDICAP AT LOCAL PORT IS REMOVED

Direct Entry of Chinese in Bond is Permitted in Immigration Order

Los Angeles Harbor is made a direct port of entry for Chinese entering the United States for other countries in bond by orders signed yesterday at Washington by Commissioner-General of Immigration Husband and approved by the Secretary of Labor.

This will remove one of the greatest difficulties in the oriental shipping business at the harbor and will put the local port on a Commissioner-General of Immigration facilities, the business heretofore having gone through other Pacific ports. The new rule is effective May 1.

The ruling is a recognition of the tremendous and unparalleled growth of Los Angeles as a port and is also a fair and just correction of a condition which permitted other ports and shipping lines calling at other Pacific ports to refuse business for Los Angeles on the ground that it had not full immigration and other facilities.

At first the port suffered because it lacked the ordinary immigration inspection and machinery. From now on, however, Los Angeles as a port has all that any other Pacific port has to offer in immigration or other facilities and the new ruling will prevent the diversion of business to other ports.

In time practically all the Chinese and other orientals destined for Mexico and South America will pass through Los Angeles in bond and incidentally much business and many ships that heretofore have held aloof from Los Angeles because of governmental restrictions will now give Los Angeles the same consideration that is given other ports.

ATTACK TRIAL OPENS

The trial of Dr. W. E. Purviance, a chiropractor, charged with attacking Mary S. Schwaim, opened yesterday in Judge Hahn's department of Superior Court. The girl was the first witness. She said she went to Dr. Purviance's office for a treatment. After her testimony had been taken the case was continued until today. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ryan is prosecuting.

Beaver Torn Between Sect and Sweetheart

Fiancee Blames Death on Power of Occult

Quiz to be Turned Over to District Attorney

A night of anguish and a dawn filled with despair when he became convinced that his sweetheart of many years and his religion of only a few months could never agree, drove Theodore G. Beaver, 45 years of age, wealthy manufacturer and land owner, to swallow poison in his room in a downtown hotel early yesterday morning.

An all-day search for a motive for Beaver's suicide by Detective Lieutenants Oaker and Stevens late yesterday afternoon disclosed the fact that Beaver was torn between his desire to finance Ralph De Bit, teacher and founder of the School of Sacred Science, and his love for his sweetheart, Miss Evelyn Pelon, 24 years of age, of 820 South Burlington avenue.

After an evening spent with Miss Pelon and followed by a two-hour conference with De Bit, Beaver went to his hotel and remained in the lobby talking to friends until almost midnight. Then he went to his room on the sixth floor and, according to guests in near-by rooms, walked the floor for hours. Just before dawn he screamed and threw open his door. Other guests called the hotel management and Detective Brooks, hotel detective, rushed to the room.

CRASHES TO FLOOR

"I know I am a coward but you will have to stick by me," declared Beaver when Brooks appeared. Then he drank several glasses of water, locked the door to his room, wheeled on Detective Brooks and slowly winked his eye and crashed to the floor dead. Police detectives and physicians were called but arrived too late to be of any assistance. No notes explaining his act were left by Beaver.

"Those people are to blame for this," was the cry uttered by Miss Pelon when she was notified by the police of the suicide. After making this statement she fainted and was at once placed in the care of a physician. Later in the day Miss Pelon made a long statement to the police.

"I am the only sweetheart he ever had."

This was the simple way in which Miss Pelon explained her relations with the man, who, police declare, was led to suicide by his strange belief in the occult control of human destinies.

Although the man to whom she was engaged was many years her senior, theirs was a true love, she declared. She had known Mr. Beaver since she was a mere girl in sort dresses. At 16, she was Beaver's sweetheart. Their marriage was only a matter of a few distant months, she explained. She had deferred the wedding day until she had convinced all of her friends and Beaver's relatives that she was not marrying him for his money.

ATTENTIONS SHOWERED

Beaver showered her with attentions, his one aim in life was to make her happy, she knew.

"He always told me, 'My little girl shall never want for anything,'" the young woman repeated Beaver's often spoken words as she held a hand over her heart.

An Easter lily, standing in a green flower pot on a small table in the woman's room, gave proof of Beaver's ever thoughtfulness.

Between deep sobs the woman told of the strange influence which had cast its spell over Beaver since he had begun to follow the teachings of Ralph De Bit and the "School of the Sacred Science." Beaver, she said, first attended De Bit's classes last February. He became a deep student of the met-

SOMEBODY STOLE HIS STORE

Dismay, Filling Soul of Clothing Dealer as He Finds Shelves Bare, Later is Turned to Joy

Feeling greatly refreshed by a Sunday spent at the beach with his family Max Cohen early yesterday morning gayly went to his clothing store at 271 South Main street.

But his whistle of satisfaction changed to an exclamation of surprise when he arrived. He looked in the big glass windows and then, thinking he might be mistaken, looked at the number above the door and the sign on the window.

"Yes," said Cohen to himself, "this is my store. It's my sign and the number is 271. But where are my clothing and goods?"

For the shelves of the store were as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. Even the cash register was missing.

Frantically he sought his next-door neighbor, Frank Amarente, a fruit merchant. Frank expressed surprise that Cohen did not know he had moved his store.

"Why," said Frank, "I helped your clerk box up the goods yesterday and we loaded them on a truck. Here's your key that he told me to give you. He told me you were moving to another location."

TROUBLE SCENTED

Now the scene shifts to Pasadena. Officers O'Rourke and Culver saw a truck loaded down with boxes at the freight house. The driver, who said his name was Sidney Zinner, had billed the boxes to Cleveland, O.

The officers questioned Zinner. He is declared to have said he bought the goods in Los Angeles and intended to ship them to Cleveland. Thinking it would not hurt to check up on the load through the local police, the officers called the local department on the telephone. They found, they reported, that Zinner is the missing clerk. His arrest followed. The truck was driven back to 271 South Main street.

HOLD BODIES OF HANGED BANDITS

Prison Officials Await Word from Relatives

Two Executed for Murder of Officers Here

No Trace of Emotion When Pair Mount Gallows

The bodies of William A. Bringhurst and Willard Thompson, who died on the gallows at San Quentin prison yesterday for the murder of two Los Angeles policemen, are being held by prison authorities until relatives advise as to the disposition of the remains. Telegrams were sent to Bringhurst's widow here and to Thompson's sister at Salt Lake City. Unless otherwise directed the bodies will be buried in the prison cemetery.

The two men paid the extreme penalty for the murder December 6, 1921, of Police Officers W. J. Brett and Harry Chester.

The two murderers, impassive and unfaltering, left the death cell at San Quentin at 10:14 a.m. at the same time. Both walked quickly through the short corridor leading into the death chamber. They were accompanied by Warden James Johnston and Julian H. Alco, a Christian Science practitioner.

SILENCE UNBROKEN

Looking straight ahead, the two condemned men walked up the thirteen steps to the double gallows and stood without a tremor while the nooses and black caps were adjusted. They did not break their silence when asked if they wished to make a last statement.

A little more than a minute after they had left the death cell, hidden guards sprung the traps and the two killers dropped together. At 10:37 a.m. both men were pronounced dead by physicians.

In their last hours of life the two men who had vowed to kill each other on sight patched up their differences and walked to their death as friends. Late last night, with the hours of their life slipping by, they shook hands and became friends again. However, they exchanged no greetings when they stepped together from the death cell.

Bringhurst and Thompson were members of a band of five which shot down the officers when the latter attemped to arrest them.

ONE CHEATS GALLOWS

One member of the band, Jess Wendell, sent a bullet through his brain near Pinaveta, Ariz., as a posse of citizens and officers were closing in about him. Two others, Calvin Rowell and James Wheaton, are serving life sentences at San Quentin.

The officers stopped the gunmen near Fifth and South Lorena streets on the night of the murder. One of the officers stepped on the running board of the bandit machine and told the driver to proceed to the police station. The other officer followed in a police machine. The bandits, after driving a few blocks, turned on the officers.

CHARGES IN HART WILL CONTEST RETRACTED

Allegations filed in the contest of the estate of the late Frank J. Hart were retracted yesterday, following a settlement of the case out of court. The contest was brought by two sons, Karl W. and Harold W. Hart, and was directed against the late Mr. Hart's widow, Mrs. Gertrude Hart. Mr. Hart was formerly president of the Southern California Music Company.

WILLIS TRIAL NEXT MONTH

May 19 Set as Date for Hearing Evidence in Case of Widow Accused of Murdering Doctor

Mrs. Margaret Willis was arraigned before Judge Crail yesterday, pleaded "not guilty" to the murder of Dr. Beecher Benjamin Baldwin, and heard the date of trial set for May 19. She was in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Belle De Wolfe and maintained an attitude of calm interest in the court procedure.

In her hands she carried a work on science. She gave her plea in a steady voice, and allowed a slight smile to play about her lips after she heard Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hamner read the indictment wherein she is charged with Dr. Baldwin's murder.

In the same courtroom, on May 26, Horace Greer, erstwhile chauffeur for Mabel Normand, goes on trial for the asserted shooting of Courtland S. Dines. Miss Normand, who is said to have been present during the affair, is an important witness, and when the case was called two weeks ago it was postponed because she was out of the State.

Attorney S. S. Hahn represents both Greer and Mrs. Willis. In setting the date of the woman's trial much reference was made to the Greer case, so that the two would not conflict.

"You can set the Willis case for that same day," he said, "because I have information that Miss Normand doesn't intend to come back."

"I am informed that Miss Normand will be here," said Mr. Hamner, "so we'd better set the Willis case ahead, so that Mr. Hahn can have a breathing space between the two."

Mrs. Willis is accused of having murdered Dr. Baldwin to obtain his automobile. She hid the body in her trunk for two days, she confessed.

SHIP IN RACE WITH DEATH IS DUE HERE

Radio Prescription Sent to Aid Seaman Suffering From Blood Poisoning

The United States Shipping Board liner Invincible, from New Orleans for Kobe, is racing for this port in an attempt to save the life of a member of her crew who is suffering from an aggravated case of blood poisoning. She was expected to arrive shortly before daylight this morning.

Radio prescription for the afflicted seaman was dispatched to the Invincible by Dr. George D. Marvin, surgeon of the Dollar around-the-world liner, President Harrison, on the morning of the 20th inst., after her master had broadcast calls for medical advice.

DR. Robert H. Heterick, surgeon in charge of the United States Public Health Service at this port, announced that every effort would be made to save the man's life as soon is the Invincible drops anchor.

ACCEPTS MONEY FOR FIFTH STREET PAVING

CITY AGREES TO OFFER OF IMPROVEMENT BODY AND ORDERS WORK DONE

With the understanding that the cash payment be accepted in lieu of any and all obligations existing under an outstanding contract, the City Finance Committee yesterday voted to accept $50,000 from the West Fifth-street Improvement Association, and instructed the City Engineer and the Board of Public Works to proceed at once, under force account if necessary, with the widening and paving of West Fifth street past the site of the former Normal School center, recently razed to make way for the new city library.

The matter has been in dispute for months, the city contending that the $50,000 was due for expenses incurred in removing the building and renting of temporary quarters elsewhere. It developed in debate yesterday that the payment offered was sufficient to meet all costs and, on the advice of the city attorney and the city engineer, the money was accepted.

existing width of 100 feet, except to handle a greater volume of traffic with a given amount of delay, congestion and danger; but owing to its position in the street system of the city and the difficulty of securing relief by adequate closely parallel routes it seems to us that the volume of traffic which will seek Wilshire Boulevard would justify an eighty-foot roadway and sidewalks more than ten feet wide purely as a traffic measure.

(3.) A compromise at 150 feet would be wasteful, because it will not give anything substantially different in quality from a 120-foot street. It would mean paying part of the price required for something more and failing to get what you pay for.

To sum up: If Wilshire Boulevard is left 100 feet in width or widened only half-heartedly, the concentration of traffic upon it will in a few years strip it to the bare bones of a roaring traffic-way, which the people will seek because it enables them to get quickly from one point to another, which they will pass through and get away from as rapidly as they can without enthusiasm and without regret. If made 200 feet wide or more, it can become permanently, and without sacrifice of its traffic efficiency, one of the notably impressive and attractive boulevards of the world.

The people can pay their money and take their choice but they cannot both have their cake and eat it.

Respectfully submitted,
FREDERICK LAW OLMSTEAD,
HARLAND BARTHOLOMEW,
CHARLES H. CHENEY.

LECTURE AT MUSEUM ON MEMBERS' NIGHT

Members' night at the Southwest Museum Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock promises to be one of exceptional interest, as Nick Harris, detective and member of the museum, will deliver a lecture on "Why Crime Doesn't Pay," illustrated with the now famous trick trunk used by Charles Chandelea in his attempt to loot the storage vaults of a local concern. Preceding the lecture and playlet, the Zoellner group, consisting of Amandus Zoellner, Joseph Zoellner, Jr., Florence Duvall and Olive Englund, will present a musical program. Mrs. H. R. Sanborn will be in charge of the hospitality committee.

FAIR PLAY BY VOTERS ASKED

ing men employed and business at full speed ahead.

Our business is subject to regulation by the California Railroad Commission, which scrutinizes our expenditures so that we shall operate at the top notch of efficiency and at the lowest possible operation cost so that our gas and electric rates shall be fair to our stockholders and to the consumers. The Railroad Commission, not the company, fixes the rates we charge. This is regulation in the interest of the public, the consumer.

NO BAR ON RATES

If the Power Bureau is successful in taking over our electric properties the Railroad Commission which now stands as a bulwark of protection for the consumers to secure for them the lowest possible rates for utilities service will step aside and the bureau will have an unregulated monopoly of the electric business in Los Angeles. In 1920 the bureau, pleading poverty, brought about a 12½-cent increase in electric rates. All the bureau had to do was to adopt a new schedule of rates and obtain perfunctory approval of a complaisant majority of the City Council, and the deed was done. This will be true if the bureau should condemn our electric properties—the people of Los Angeles will be at the mercy of a political department, selling electricity at any rates it desires. This is the same bureau which illegally spent $12,415.15 of its power revenues for political campaigning last June, and this money has been ordered replaced in the City Treasury by Superior Judge Butler.

The Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation appeals to the spirit of fair play and square dealing which has always been characteristic of the people of Los Angeles and asks that this attempt of the politicians to take over an industry which has for forty years played an important part in the growth and development of our city be blocked. This can be done by voting "No" on Propositions Nos. 9 and 10 at the May 6 election.

POWER BUREAU BREAKS FAITH

mittee" was similarly employed at its offices in the Byrne Building. The chamber had objected to the first batch of campaign literature sent out by the committee in support of the bonds as containing inaccurate information and "mud-slinging." The committee agreed to call in all this literature, destroy it and send out only truthful material. That this promise has not been kept was shown yesterday when a number of citizens received through the mails copies of the original committee circular to which the chamber had objected.

The 3000 employees of the public-service department are all actively at work, "voluntarily," of course, drumming up votes for the power bonds. One taxpayer reported yesterday that a Power Bureau repair truck drove up in front of his house, the crew of men climbed down, at once scattered through the neighborhood, and began ringing door bells, handing out power-committee circulars and asking householders if they were for or against the power bonds. One woman told the Power Bureau employee to "go ahead and do the electrical repair work for which he was being paid by the city and quit doing political work on the city's time."

POINTS OUT LOW WATER LEVEL HERE

Underground Sources Are Near Depletion, Declares Engineer Reagan

BY JAMES W. REAGAN
Chief Engineer, County Flood Control District

A phase of the program for construction of dams and reservoirs throughout Los Angeles county, little understood by a great majority of the voters, is the plan for replenishing present underground sources of water supply.

Few realize that more than 40 per cent of the people in the county today depend on water pumped from wells for both domestic and agricultural purposes. That great valley between the mountains and the sea, of the San Gabriel River, particularly, is fast becoming alarmingly short of an underground supply.

Water from the sheds today, during any heavy runoff, flows chiefly into the sea. The rush of flood waters themselves does not permit percolation into the ground. At times as high as 90 per cent of such water is wasted away into the sea; on an average of 60 per cent is thus wasted.

The only salvation for a future water supply in such districts, and the Long Beach territory is a splendid example of this condition, is construction of dams and reservoirs in the mountain area. There the water can be stored and released only in such a manner as to permit its seepage into these subterranean reservoirs.

Water levels in wells in this county have dropped in some instances as much as 200 feet. The average drop of such levels in the plain region between Los Angeles and Long Beach has been eighty feet. Each year sees the depletion greater than the last. Naturally the winter rains bring this level up somewhat, but never do the wells reach the point where they had been the previous year.

Our work in the flood control district in the past has been not the conservation of these waters but rather construction of permanent channels through which they could reach the sea. We realized we were falling short of a larger purpose, knowing full well that, with the building of dams and reservoirs in the mountains we could not only prevent and eliminate flood danger but that such water, which is most vital to the future prosperity of Los Angeles county, could be saved and stored underground.

This angle of the flood control work, to my mind, is as vital as the prevention of flood itself as under the plan which has been submitted on the May 6 ballot, the ultimate proper conservation of water can be accomplished at the same time we prevent floods.

Construction of the San Gabriel reservoir, which could impound more than 240,000 acre feet of water twice yearly, would bring the water levels up to a point where the fastly growing population could be guaranteed a permanent supply in that district which is tributary to this particular dam and reservoir.

Other reservoirs planned throughout the county naturally, accomplish the same purpose as the San Gabriel reservoir.

aphysics of the new cult. He even insisted on her taking up the study. To please him she consented, and attended a few lectures. Her bookcase was laden with books and manuals.

"I was afraid Mr. Beaver was losing his mind, he was so engrossed in his studies. I pleaded with him to give up the classes," she said.

CULT WINS HIM

"The poor dear, he never seemed so perplexed as he was when he called to see me Friday. It twas plain to me that he was deeply worried. He swore me to an oath. I was never, never to desert him. 'You will stick by me, my little girl, swear to that,' he pleaded. 'Stick by me until death.' I took an oath and he renewed his pledge to me."

"I knew that De Bit was responsible, so I called him on the phone the very next day, that was Saturday. I pleaded with him to make Mr. Beaver quit the classes. Instead, De Bit answered that he would talk to me only in the presence of Mr. Beaver. 'Put your cards on the table where he can see them.' De Bit replied over the telephone.

"Mr. Beaver phoned me that Saturday at about noon—he called up every hour for three hours, and then he came out to see me. He stayed and talked until midnight. Then he came to see me Sunday morning. He stayed away from De Bit's morning service. I thought I had won. But he left me at 8 o'clock, telling me he would attend the evening services. I was losing him again."

Miss Pelon also told of having telephoned R. H. Travers, a close friend of Beaver, relating the dramatic incident of Friday afternoon and begging Travers to do what he could to persuade Beaver from further attending the cult classes.

Mrs. L. G. Sidwell, Miss Pelon's landlady, told of Beaver's attentions and his regular visits. She was aware of the pending marriage. She overheard Miss Pelon when she talked with De Bit on the telephone and she was present when Beaver called last Friday.

Mrs. Sidwell said Miss Pelon had been living in one of her apartments for the past year, she having come to Los Angeles for her health. Beaver followed her West. Until recently she was employed as a book-keeper.

Miss Pelon was asked about a blue coral bead found in a vest pocket of Beaver's clothing.

"Yes, I can tell you about that," she said as the faint trace of a smile played across her face.

"I gave that to him. It was the last thing I ever gave him, but I did it more in the sp' it of a joke than in seriousness. The bead came from a string of beads which my aunt brought back with her from a visit to Constantinople. The beads were supposed to have come from the Sultan and would work a magic charm. They were called the 'Beads of the Evil Eye.' I gave one of them to Mr. Beaver in the hope that it would save him from the evil influence that I felt was being worked over him."

BE DITS GIVE SIDE

Dr. Ione Ingles De Bit, wife of Ralph De Bit, founder of the School of the Sacred Science, and Rabbi William Rice, an instructor and trustee in the school, attempted late yesterday afternoon to explain Beaver's connection with their movement which deals in metaphysics, ontology, occult healing and abstract thinking.

Dr. De Bit, when interviewed in the school offices in a Grand-avenue office building, first stated that her husband could not be seen until some time today. She declared that he was very busy and was not in the school offices and not at home.

"I can tell you all about Mr. Beaver," Dr. De Bit declared. "He first came to our school about six weeks ago, I believe. Mr. De Bit talked to him a number of times and I talked to him also. He was very much interested in our work. The school has purchased a tract of land near Long Beach and is planning to build a school there. Mr. Beaver was going to put some of his personal fortune into this project. There were nine of us going into it. Now there are only eight. Up to date Mr. Beaver has put nothing into the deal. He was talking about it, however. The land which has already been purchased cost $45,000, and with the buildings that we intend to build will cost about $150,000.

"I have known Miss Pelon for some time," continued Dr. De Bit. "She came to our meetings for some time. Then she failed to appear and later Mr. Beaver seemed very much worried. He told Mr. De Bit about his troubles with Miss Pelon and stated that she was very much against him attending our meetings or having anything to do with us.

"Last night Mr. Beaver came to our meeting and after it was over talked to Mr. De Bit for several hours. He told him that Miss Pelon was insisting that he give us up. Mr. De Bit cheered him up some and then he went home. It was a shock when I heard this morning that he had taken his own life. Miss Pelon seems to be very much against us but the truth will prevail over everything. She telephoned to my husband last Saturday morning and made some threats about bringing a suit if we allowed Mr. Beaver to put any money into our school. Mr. De Bit attempted to talk the matter over with her and invited her to call with Mr. Beaver. She refused to call at our office and would have nothing to do with us. She stated that she would make trouble if we did not leave Mr. Beaver alone. He was very much upset when he heard about it."

WILL IS SOUGHT

Police Detectives Stephens and Oaker, who are investigating the strange suicide, stated last night that they would attempt to interview De Bit today and also question Miss Pelon again. Yesterday they were unable to learn if Beaver left a will or if he had given any funds to the De Bit school. A search of his personal effects at the hotel by the police failed to disclose a will of any kind. The search will be continued today.

The De Bit school of advanced thinking came into the limelight here a number of weeks ago when suit was filed in the Superior Courts for the recovery of about $27,000 in cash and property said to have been given and deeded by Mrs. Emma E. Adams, an asserted incompetent, to Mr. De Bit. The complaint, which was filed by Attorneys Stephens & Stephens, was instituted through Lida J. Kinhey, guardian ad litem of Mrs. Adams. Yesterday De Bit stated that all of the money and property had been returned to Mrs. Adams and defended the entire deal by stating that Mrs. Adams was in her right mind when she made the donations.

Today the entire matter of the Beaver suicide and his connection with the De Bit school will be placed before the District Attorney by the investigating police, according to their statements last night.

WAS YOGA LEADER

Ralph De Bit is the founder and former leader of the Christian Yoga cult which had headquarters in Beaux Arts, a village on Lake Washington, Wash. He came to this city and founded his church here after he had been arrested in Seattle on a statutory charge involving Mrs. Dorothy Alden Gerber, wife of Dr. Rudolph Gerber, a San Francisco physician. Before coming to Los Angeles he was acquitted of the charge against him.

A year after the Seattle trial, De Bit married Mrs. Gerber, who was divorced by her husband. Later they separated and a divorce was obtained, according to information, and both remarried some time later. Following the trial and the divorce action in San Francisco, De Bit abandoned his teachings for a time and established an automobile-truck delivery business.

Theodore Beaver was the vice-president of the Buttress Manufacturing Company of this city and also a large shareholder in the Northwest Grain Corporation of Seattle, Wash., as well as the holder of land in Canada. His father lives in Kasson, Minn., with a sister Mrs. Ralph Leuthold. The other sisters, Mrs. Cora Traux, West Lake street, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Mabel Zeimer of Duluth, Minn., are said to be wealthy and prominent. According to the information here, Beaver owned a large amount of property in Minneapolis.

SIGNAL HILL PLANT RAZED

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 21.—Three huge absorbinb towers and the engine room of the Golden State Refinery Company's plant on East Hill street in the heart of the Signal Hill oil field were destroyed and damage said to exceed $35,000 was sustained by the Company today when fumes from a pipe line ignited and spread a sheet of flames about the plant.

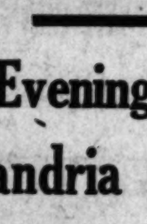
Fire-fighting apparatus from Long Beach responded to a call from the newly incorporated city of Signal Hill and local firemen battled the flames for several hours. Much delay was caused in rushing water to the fire, it was said, because of great distance between the nearest fire hydrant and the blaze. Fire hose had to be laid for a distance of several blocks.

A pipe line leading from absorbing tower No. 3 burst and the escaping fumes, becoming ignited by fire in the boiler room in turn set fire to the towers and the engine room of the plant.

The city of Signal Hill, incorporated recently, is handicapped because of the lack of fire-fighting and other equipment, it was said here today, and must depend on Long Beach for aid in emergencies.

Seeks to Reach Missing Child Through 'Times'

"Dorothy Roberts, please come home. Your mother is heartbroken and grieves for you."



Dorothy Roberts.

The foregoing is a message that A. W. Roberts of Lankershim hopes will reach his daughter Dorothy, 13 years of age, who disappeared from her home March 24, last.

Kay Roberts, a brother of the missing girl, has been walking the streets searching for his sister and appealed to The Times yesterday for aid in finding her. The brother lives at 825 Burlington avenue. His telephone number is 529-30.

Dorothy, described as being large for her age, wearing a blue gingham dress, tan felt hat and a tan camel's hair coat, left her home March 24, ostensibly for school. She was a pupil at the Blessed Sacrament School, Lankershim. She has light brown bobbed hair, blue-gray eyes, weighs about 130 pounds and is about 5 feet 2 inches in height. Her mother is on the verge of nervous prostration.

How Agrilin relieves constipation

IN ONE sense AGRILIN is a new remedy for constipation. But the two products it contains—Mineral Oil and Japanese Sea Moss (Agar-Agar)—are not new. Every physician knows of them, and most physicians prescribe them.

Thousands who have already learned of the merits of mineral oil will be glad to know that the presence of Agar-Agar has made mineral oil even more effective, because it exercises the soft, flabby intestinal muscles.

A drugless remedy

AGRILIN is a snow-white, creamy emulsion, tasteless and odorless. The Agar-Agar corrects the tendency of mineral oil to seepage. But it has one more important function. Agar-Agar has the remarkable property of emulsifying or increasing in bulk. This combination softens waste matter and prevents it from becoming dry and compact. The intestinal muscles are not stimulated by drugs. They are exercised.

Particles of decay and toxins adhering to the walls that do not respond to ordinary laxatives are loosened and passed out. Thus AGRILIN is purely mechanical aid to nature in eliminating waste matter and poisons, leaving the system thoroughly clean. AGRILIN may be given to small children or invalids with absolute safety.

Not merely on the surface

permanent relief is found

DO NOT expect ordinary surface remedies to remove a rash, eczema or itching skin disorder. Not on the outside, but deep down in the under layers of the skin is the real source of the trouble.

Pores clogged with poisonous germs, body cells and tissues swollen and inflamed—these are what must be soothed back to normal.

Yet there is a way that brings almost immediate relief. To cleanse the pores, kill germs and start the skin again acting normally, physicians have for twenty-eight years been prescribing Resinol in their daily practice.

If you have today any eczema, rash or irritation on your skin, apply Resinol Ointment often, it will, in many cases, stop the itching completely. Obtainable at your druggist's today or send for a free trial druggist's Dept. 24, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

AIR FLOWERS IN RADIOLAND

Radio Blossoms Entertain by Song and Story

Information is Combined With Beauty of Program

Uptown Players Please by Noontime Numbers

Radioland last night they talked as flowers.
They told, in a garland of secrets unrevealed,
Each blossom that blooms in their garden bowers—
If such a mystic language revealed.
The delicate lavender heads of drummed fleurs de lis looked from the center of their basket bowing yellow, red and white tulips while roses with the pride of youth in their spreading bloom lost their fragrance to the air. "A Basket of Flowers Just Plucked from the Garden," written and arranged by Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes, a graduate of Stephens College of Music of Missouri. Five winsome young girls ranging in age from 9 to 13 formed the bower and each variety of flower as it was taken from the basket was accompanied by a song that interpreted its hidden meaning. Education mingled with entertainment as instructive readings were given of butterflies and

Yesterday fiesta was celebrated with the luring and haunting music of the Rosete Typical Mexican Orchestra, composed of Jacoba Rosete, leader and salterio, Jose Park, mandolin, Heleodoro Rosete, mandolin, Teofilo Ortiz, guitar, and Rafael Gomez, guitar, and Jose Velasquez, bass viol.
With a spirit and response that was unmistakably the traits of the Mexican, Jacoba Rosete and through dance numbers, ably played love songs and characteristically rendered the notes of Mexico. The studio audience was spellbound by the performance of Rosete, whose eyes never left on his instrument but whose fingers darted over the strings with speedy and surety.

But there is something in a song was demonstrated by Elizabeth Carroll Swan, mezzo-soprano, whose notes carried the melody of Robert Eden's "What's in the Air Today" with the smoothness of the silver white bird as it floats over the shimmering waters. "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" was sung with all the appeal and feelings that live in the compositions of James Bland.
The French diction that was remarkable for its clarity, Mrs. Swan sang "Connais tu le paya?" ("Knowest thou that fair land?") from the opera "Mignon" by Thomas. The note of sadness that crept into Mignon's yearning for her native land found common response in the shading of tone with which Mrs. Swan colored her singing. Edyth Peteesch accompanied at the Knabe.

FILM ORDER NOT FACTOR IN MARKETS

Motion-Picture Studios Assert Conditions Asked Already Apply

The Federal Trade Commission's order against the Eastman Kodak Company and Jules E. Brulatour, its selling agent, will have no material effect on the motion-picture industry, according to the consensus of the local picture industry expressed yesterday. It was explained that the condition on which the commission's order was premised had ceased to exist.

The commission ordered the great American film manufacturing concern and certain other respondents to cease conspiring in restraint of competition in the manufacture and sale of raw film for motion-picture use. The inquiry began about two years ago. Since that time, it was explained, several important competitors of Eastman have entered the field, so that raw film may now be purchased from four or five different sources, some of them European agencies. Also the price of raw film has gone down about 35 per cent. Eastman on the 1st inst., reduced the price from 2 to 1½ cents a foot, the other sellers following suit.

As one independent laboratory man expressed it yesterday, "As nearly as I can figure out the ruling, everything the commission asked for already has been done." In no quarter was there any opinion expressed to the effect that the ruling would alter the price or other conditions of the market.

CORA GUEST DENIES ALIENATION CHARGE

FILES ANSWER TO SUIT OF MRS. NODEE RYAN FOR $50,000 BALM

Denial of the charge that she had caused William Lawrence Ryan to become estranged from his wife, Mrs. Nodee Bianch Ryan, was made yesterday in an answer Cora Guest filed in reply to the suit for $50,000 damages instituted by Mrs. Ryan for asserted alienation of affections.

In her complaint, Mrs. Ryan asserted her husband deserted her and their five children, ranging in age from 12 to 25 years, on January 5, 1918. She said she believed that the defendant had stolen the affection of Ryan some time between 1918 and 1920. Mrs. Ryan stated she did not learn of the asserted theft of Ryan's love until several years after he was said to have left her. The couple were married in 1896, according to the complaint.

PURSE RIFLED ON CAR

A nimble-fingered pickpocket extracted $1200 in jewelry and $95 in cash from the pocketbook of Mrs. Alice L. Larkin of 673 South Shatto Place while she was riding on a street car yesterday, she reported to police.

Charges Mate Got on Spree With Plumber

While she slept in a poorly-ventilated insanitary shack on the lot where their $20,000 home now stands, her husband, Charles Mitchell Clark, occupied an expensive room in one of the leading downtown hotels, Mrs. Elsa Clark stated in a divorce complaint filed yesterday.

After the home was completed, she asserted, her husband refused to give her any money to run it. His invariable reply to a request for funds was: "Men in California are not supposed to support their wives."

In addition to these troubles, she declared, her husband was in the habit of getting drunk with the plumber who installed the plumbing fixtures in their house. Usually these sprees ended in a command from her husband for her to prepare a meal for himself and the convivial plumber, she asserted.

Electric Club Hears Talk on Wedded Bliss

Electric Club members, at a luncheon at the Biltmore yesterday, learned how to be "happy though married." "What I know about women" was the topic.

"Men have been taught for ages that women are their inferiors," said Mrs. Charles. "The Arabs teach that women were made from the tails of monkeys, another race that women were made from the tails of dogs and we are taught that they were made from the rib of man. This is true, however, man is the positive force and women the negative. The negative force, however, is creative.

"Men and women are different physiologically and psychologically. Man is romantic and woman is sensitive. Men achieve and women, the negative force, create. Marriage is a partnership, yet 999 women out of every 1000 do not understand what it is all about. No woman is ever too old for you to tell her you love her. If you don't love her you are a craven coward if you do not tell her."

MAN GETS DECREE

Tells Court Wife Took Sudden Aversion to Him and Left

Everything was lovely in the Kayser family, to all appearances, until a certain morning, William Kayser told Judge Valentine yesterday during a hearing of his suit for divorce from Mary Emma Kayser. That morning she woke him, he declared, with the following cheery greeting:

"Get out of here; I never want to see your face again."

She thereupon packed up their furniture and left, Kayser said.

He was given a divorce.

Forger Denied Probation and Given Sentence

Arthur Morris, formerly employed for a short time by the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Saticoy, was denied an application for probation yesterday by Judge Crail after W. J. Purcell of the American Express Company, made a statement to the court of Morris's asserted activities.

Morris was convicted on three counts of forgery of American Express Company travelers' checks. It was brought out that in August, 1920, he was employed at the Saticoy Bank for five days. He was an accountant. During that time ten American Express checks were stolen, it was shown. Later Morris is said to have cashed several of the checks.

During the trial on March 28, last, the defendant stated that he sold an article to a stranger and received the checks he cashed in return. The court sentenced Morris to San Quentin on each of the three counts for from one to fourteen years, but the terms are to run concurrently.

BOYS ENTER CONTEST

Three Crockett Lads Seek Honors in Meat Story Event

Three boys from Crockett have entered into competition with 11,000 high school girls in the national meat story contest being conducted by the National Livestock and Meat Board of Chicago, an announcement yesterday stated. They are William Kerr, Miles Harne and Franklin Moer. They are eligible because home economics is included in their course of study.

Cash prizes of $2070 are offered for the best story on meat and meat recipes. The first prize is $300. The contest is in charge of Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, home economics specialist. It will end on May 1.

SUIT OVER BOMB IS REPORTED SETTLED

The suit of Mrs. Emma Lange for $10,500 damages as a result of injuries sustained when she was hit on the head by a fragment of a bomb during a fireworks display at Ocean Park, September 8, 1922, has been settled out of court, it was stated yesterday when the case was called in Judge Craig's court. Mrs. Lange sued the Pickering Pleasure Pier Company and the Barr Fiery Circus.

MAN HELD TO ANSWER AS WEAPON CARRIER

C. H. Wickstrom was held to answer yesterday by Justice Chase of Burbank on two counts of carrying concealed weapons, after a previous conviction. It is charged by Deputy Sheriffs Purrier and Wilson, who arrested the defendant, that Wickstrom had a revolver and a blackjack in his possession.

AGED VICTIM'S CONDITION IS GRAVE AS RESULT OF BEING STRUCK

Rev. Thomas Campbell, 76 years of age, a retired minister, was seriously injured yesterday in a traffic accident at the intersection of Sixth and Bixel streets. He was run down by an automobile driven by Mrs. Earl Long of 2416 Budlong avenue.

He was removed to the Receiving Hospital where physicians stated he is suffering from concussion and shock. Because of his age, it was stated, his condition is grave though he is expected to recover.

But in the room police found a large number of books and pamphlets dealing with mysticism and the occult. They believe he became unbalanced by delving too deeply into these subjects.

JAPAN AND MEXICO

As the Japanese overflow their island empire they may find welcome in Mexico, which is a land of opportunity. No section of the world surpasses Mexico in natural resources and no field is more inviting for the thrifty pioneer. We might grieve if the Japanese should colonize the waste places in Mexico and bring them to blossom as the rose, but we would have no valid right to remonstrate.

THE TIES THAT BIND

In a short while it is promised that one may step into a Pullman coach here and ride in unbroken sequence into the City of Mexico. The iron ties which bind us to the republic on the south are to be lengthened and strengthened. There is also the splendid promise which was carried in the news columns of The Times the other day and which gave details of another transcontinental line having its terminus in Los Angeles. In this way our lovely city would become the supreme achievement of the great Rock Island system as it rolls proudly west from Chicago. The wonders that are being accomplished at the harbor in the matter of the extension of world shipping are being duplicated in steel rails for the embellishment of the Plaza.

A MOOT CONVENTION

Northwestern University students held a national convention with a full set of delegates to represent the various States. There were nomination speeches and all the trimmings of a regulation political battle. It resulted in the nomination of Calvin Coolidge on the third ballot. It is significant that the other names showing the greatest strength were Gen. Charles G. Dawes and Gov. Frank O. Lowden. The radical strength all went to Senator La Follette, who was fourth in the running. Out of more than 1000 delegates there was but a handful favoring Hiram Johnson. The students furnished an interesting convention, but the real thing will have the nomination of Coolidge accomplished in much less time.

SAYING AND DOING

William Gibbs McAdoo is meeting his fellow-citizens face to face. In almost every instance he tells them that if he is chosen President he will drive all grafters out of Washington. He also says that there must be a complete revision of all laws relating to the operation of the railroads. But he is far from being definite. Getting all grafters out of government is a large order, for one human being to undertake—even if chartered with vast authority. The citizens may justly be excused for the thought that perchance the candidate is talking through his beanguard. To rid the nation of all its grafters at one stroke is an accomplishment which has been tacitly left to the Angel Gabriel. Neither are the citizens agreed that another rearrangement of the railway laws is essential to our progress. When it comes to a showdown it is felt that the average American would rather confide in the doings of Coolidge than the sayings of McAdoo.

A NEBRASKA TRAGEDY

The museum of the University of Chicago has just rounded up most of the skeleton of a two-horned rhinoceros who is supposed to have ambled over the plains of Nebraska back in the Pliocene period, before J. Sterling Morton was heard of or William Jennings Bryan had learned to peep. It is even suspected that the corpus delicti goes back to the Miocene age—which was 7,000,000 years ago last Michaelmas. The bones were disclosed as a result of delvings in the fossil beds of the Nebraska bad lands. They were on a shelf of limestone at the bottom of a primordial sea. They were more than 1000 feet beneath the present surface and came to light through the sinking of a shaft. It would seem that this specimen of opsiceros bicornis ventured into the State of Nebraska to get a drink several million years ago and was trapped in the quicksands that bordered the inland sea. The sea itself was covered up in the glacial period and the bones of the rhino were finally incased in rock and preserved for a later museum holiday. That the ancient sea covered the vast beast is proven by discovering the skeletons of several massive fish in the same shaft. This rhinoceros must have been a regular pioneer because there have been none of the family on this continent since the Pliocene era, which is three periods back. Anyhow, he died from trying to get a drink in Nebraska.

MUD OR ROSES—WHICH?

Reading the dispatches from the national capital relating to the coming Republican National Convention, it is difficult to believe that time has not, indeed, turned backward; for they are almost a repetition of the reports of the campaign of 1904. Only three-fifths of the delegates have been named and yet Coolidge has enough pledged votes to give him the nomination on the first ballot.

That has not happened since Roosevelt's time. Like Coolidge, Roosevelt came to the Presidency through the death of a Chief Executive; like Coolidge, he gave such a good account of his stewardship that the national convention was only a ratification meeting.

And one recalls 1904 as the heyday of the Republican party, and of the country as well. Russia and Japan were at grips in a war of two continents; but peace and plenty reigned over all the broad expanses where the national emblem was the Stars and Stripes.

Roosevelt's candidacy was contested by a little group of malcontents in the Middle West, and La Follette was their prophet. They were long on denunciation, but they were only false prophets; for they were wholly without honor and without support outside their own State.

The same discontent still smolders in the Middle West. Like that other foot-and-mouth disease of animals, it is difficult to eradicate. But Johnson has not been so clever at capitalizing it as was La Follette. The Roosevelt victories in the Middle West were won only after sharp, bitter campaigns, and his majorities were less than those Coolidge recently received.

During the whole of the period from 1904 to 1924 the Republican party was divided against itself. No one could say with a degree of certainty who would be nominated on the opening day of the 1908 convention. Taft received the nomination in 1912 after the most embittered contest in the history of American politics. The Republicans were so divided in 1916 that they had made no choice when the convention opened. It was not even known definitely whether Hughes would be a candidate. Two hours before Harding was nominated in 1920 he was fourth in the balloting.

And it is illuminating to recall that two of those conventions named winners and two losers. One of the most clearly established facts in contemporary political history is that when the Republicans of the country are united on a candidate before the convention, when the assembling of the delegates is only for a ratification meeting, the choice of the convention is ratified by a record-breaking vote in the November election.

Coolidge's popularity with the people is a mystery to some; but not to those who know the President and the people of the United States. The American people place courage and sincerity first among the virtues of their public servants, and security as a prime necessity to what we term "good times." President Coolidge has given proofs of his courage and sincerity in so self-evident a manner that the people are not to be deceived; and the security of the country under a Republican administration is proverbial.

California is one of the States that has yet to choose its delegates to the Cleveland convention. The situation is unique. Coolidge does not need the support of the California delegation to win; but there was never a time when California was more in need of the support, the good will of the national administration. Coolidge can dispense with our votes; but can we afford to throw them away?

We have trifled for twelve years, politically, have made but ill returns for the favors we have received from Republican administrations. But everyone who knows how dependent we are upon favorable tariffs, due to the great expense of shipping our products to the eastern markets, is also aware that we have been trifling with our own security and prosperity.

President Coolidge is now favoring California as we have never before been favored; for two members of his Cabinet are from this State. In return for this can we afford to send a delegation to Cleveland that would align itself with the opposition, that would denounce the administration which we as individuals admire, that would insult the Republican leader who deserves so much of his party and of the people?

In the May primary we shall decide whether we shall send to Cleveland a delegation of mud-throwers or one that shall carry garlands of flowers.

A KINGDOM FOR SALE

Sagan, a little principality in the Silesian end of old Bohemia, is no longer a going concern. For the last three years the royal accounts have been running in red, and the present ruler is offering it for sale to the highest bidder.

Here is a remnant of feudalism lying in the lap of the twentieth century. The sale includes 500 square miles of territory, castles, churches, manufacturing plants, breweries and 65,000 human beings. Apparently the princes in Sagan have long arms, and the people long ears.

Silesia has not yet emerged from the Middle Ages. The situation is the same as would exist here if the State government at Sacramento were a private concern. We used to hear in the old days that the Southern Pacific owned our State government, just as Tammany Hall owned, and still owns, the government of New York City. But these titles were never officially confirmed. One can own a government over there without being disturbed by the people going to the polls on election day and disputing one's authority.

Sagan is an old principality, dating back to the days when Bohemia was a world power. One of its kings gave the province to the great German general, Wallenstein, in fieu of a cash payment for the service of Wallenstein's mercenaries. That was during the time of the religious wars that ravaged Central Europe in the seventeenth century. Shortly after the Treaty of Vienna was negotiated, in 1815, the title to the principality was found to be invested in the Talleyrand family. Talleyrand was the gifted but wily Prime Minister, alike of Napoleon and the Bourbons. Irrespective of the terms he secured for France, he seems to have made excellent terms for the House of Talleyrand.

But, since the World War, things are not as they used to be in the principality of Sagan. The people resent medieval methods of collecting taxes. They even talk about self-government; and the present Duke of Talleyrand, who also possesses the title "Serene Highness of Sagan," finds that the game isn't worth the candle.

Perhaps his wife has something to do with this decision, for she is Anna Gould. Perhaps she doesn't relish giving up her dividends in American railway stocks to make up the deficits of the treasury of Sagan. Be that as it may, the Duke is now in Paris offering his kingdom for sale.

A little diplomacy will be necessary to clear the title; for, under the Treaty of Versailles, the League of Nations must agree to the sale. But the Duke says, "That is only a mere formality, for the Talleyrand family is sole owner of the domain."

Here is a chance for some of our new California movie or oil millionaires to win a coronet. That title, Serene Highness of Sagan, used as a form of address, is calculated to make the envious sit up and take notice. It would look well on the register of the Biltmore or Ambassador. If some of these desire to experience the thrill of being a king Sagan offers the opportunity. Perhaps the tang of danger will lend zest to the adventure; for in these degenerate days cutting the throats of rulers is a favorite week-end sport in Central Europe.

If the movie and oil magnates are not interested perhaps some purse-proud bootlegger will enjoy the novelty of having a brewery working for him.

THE IMPERIAL SITUATION

The release of the report of C. W. Barton upon the affairs of Imperial Irrigation District has a significance outside of the mere substance of the report and is a hopeful portent of a clearing of the Imperial Valley political situation.

From long residence and close study of public affairs Mr. Barton has gained an understanding of Imperial Valley problems and through disinterested service in responsible places possesses the confidence of the people. In employing him to make inquiry into the affairs of the district and to review the report of the 1923 grand jury, there can be little doubt that directors of Imperial Irrigation District sought to capitalize Mr. Barton's position. They "took a chance," hoping that the obligations of the employment might influence him to color his report favorably to the management of the district. When he refused to do that and made a report frankly dealing with conditions as he found them the directors sought to suppress the report, following a course characteristic of the obtuseness with which they have met every situation and, of course, giving the report an importance in the public mind out of all proportion to its revelations.

In concluding his report Mr. Barton says: "It is the belief that something similar to these findings would be the judgment of almost anyone who might make inquiry into the affairs of the district and who might have courage to speak his mind freely." It is in this that encouragement is to be found to hearten those who have been waiting for Imperial Valley to come to itself and unload the political crowd which has been sowing discord and confusion. The Barton report, taken up from an independent angle, substantially confirms the grand jury report.

Mr. Barton says that his report reflects the opinion of the conservative, responsible business interests of the valley whose prosperity is concerned with the solution of irrigation district problems. The grand jury report reflects the views of the more radical element which, having not so much at stake, is stirred more quickly by abuses and goes to greater extremes in proposing remedies. When radical and conservative become of one mind it is not difficult to foresee an early dismissal of the politicians who have so long played upon prejudice while squandering the substance of California's most fruitful valley.

THE DOUBLE LIFE

It turns out that a woman who has eighteen children has been leading a double life. For a part of each day she left the humble home in which she reared her massive flock and appeared as the wife of a respectable banker in another part of the same city. She had two husbands and two establishments and she might have kept up the duplicity except for the avariciousness of blackmailers. The taxicab drivers who helped in her daily transfer bled her for thousands of dollars, until she could stand it no longer. Now the story is out and the blackmailers are in jail—which is as it should be. But it is evident that the males have no monopoly of this double-life business.

INACCURATE SCHOOL BOOKS

Gov. Louis F. Hart of Washington has set himself a mission when his present term of office expires. He will tackle what to him is one of the most important issues confronting the nation. A great many other people who are not Governors, but just parents wrapped up in the welfare of their children, will no doubt indorse his sentiments.

The doughty Hart intends to wage a relentless war on inaccurate and misleading text-books which, after investigation, he believes to be far too prevalent in our public schools.

If it be true that many of the writers who provide information to our growing children are either careless or ignorant in their methods our schools—which includes our nation in the future—are courting the fate of the ship steering by a faulty compass. The text-book is as important as the teacher. In fact, misleading statements grow in stature, the more competent the brain that assimilates them.

Speaking of his own State, Gov. Hart declares: "Some of the statements I have found in our school books are so preposterous and so absurd as to be almost amusing. It is wrong that the children in our own schools should be expected to depend on such text-books; but when we remember that the same misstatements are carried into the schools in many other States we get a better appreciation of the magnitude of our misguidance."

At the same time Dr. William B. Owen, past president of the National Education Association, has been protesting the coloring propaganda matter that is allowed to bias history as taught in too many public schools. The National Historical Association criticises even those histories that are influenced by too much patriotic zeal. It contends "true criticism of history text-books should be based not upon grounds of patriotism, but only upon grounds of faithfulness to fact."

Inaccurate school books are certainly a danger that every State in the Union must guard against by using the closest expert examination of every sentence written for the mental food of growing brains. Being in print, the record is an open one. Where State authorities fail to correct misstatements the parents and teachers themselves can render the nation a good service by calling public attention to printed errors.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE VILLAGE COUNCIL

The fathers of the village are busy all the time; they're on the trail of pillage, uprooting graft and crime. They have impeached the traitor who runs the village scale; his misdeeds, small and greater, have landed him in jail. They're now investigating the keeper of the pound; they're whooping and orating and pawing up the ground. The uproar louder waxes, each day its new probe brings, and men who pay the taxes are saying bitter things. "No officeholder bothers to do his proper chore, but all the village fathers are out for some one's gore; we hear them idly spoofing and while they rant away, the village jail needs roofing, the peelers lack their pay. The cockleburs are growing upon the public street, while eloquence is flowing where tinhorn statesmen meet. The village pump is needing a handle and a spout, while Aldermen are pleading for warrants for some scout. The alleys all are dirty, the bridge is broken down, and there are ten or thirty bootlegging joints in town; and still the village fathers investigate and roar and not a statesman bothers to do his proper chore." Some day there'll be a rising of those who pay the freight; catastrophe surprising the Bugle will relate. WALT MASON.

"G.B.S." ON CHIMNEYS

[From the Manchester Guardian.]

Mr. Bernard Shaw—apparently in spite of himself, for he lamented that nobody took him seriously—provided a merry quarter of an hour on Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Coal Smoke Abatement Society. Moving a resolution which pledged the meeting, in view of the harmful effects of the coal-smoke nuisance of town dwellers and the damage to property from smoke and fogs, to support the efforts of the society to diminish the evil, Mr. Shaw explained that in order to make life endurable he had to have besides his house in London a house in the country—at Hatfield— which was nothing like so attractive as London ought to be. But in London, he complained, if he went for a walk he found it necessary to wash. "Englishmen," he said, "don't seem to mind that—they love washing themselves, but as an Irishman I dislike it." [Laughter.]

Smoke Evils

Even the length of his plays, of which some people complained, was apparently an indirect result of the smoke evil. At any rate, he told the audience that the greatest part of his plays had been written in the train between King's Cross and Hatfield. Yet such was the condition to which the pall of smoke reduced people that they would rush off to seaside places, horrible holiday resorts, places on the seashore of the most brutal and hideous description—and they called these watering places. Legislation so far had been powerless to stop the smoke nuisance; why, even the municipal authorities were themselves the worst offenders.

Intellectual Darkness

He agreed with the chairman (Lord Newton) that London was comparatively clean. "I have had for my sins," said Mr. Shaw, "to go and make speeches in some centers in a dreadful part of England called the Potteries, yet the people living under this pall, absolutely black as it is, say they are happy and making plenty of money. But what is the use of money?" He recalled lecturing in a large theater, in one part of which no one was sitting. Was it, he asked, that the people were so begrimed that the management were afraid the cushions would be spoiled? But the answer was that the charge was half a crown and that nobody in the Potteries ever paid half a crown for a lecture. "I will give you a picture," said Mr. Shaw, "and the intellectual darkness of the place."

Picture Curative

Excellent ladies liked plenty of smoke; their carpets and curtains would last longer. From his home in the Adelphi (adjoining the society's rooms) Mr. Shaw said he once or twice a year he would go to the Surrey hills and the Crystal Palace—"that feast for the eye and the eye" [laughter]—but he would like to see them every day, though then perhaps (like William Morris, who wanted a cesspool in a beautiful picture) he might not enjoy the view if it were always there.

Scope for Gas Proofs

Mr. Shaw went on to say that a medieval person would have refused to live in a nineteenth-century town. He would have been disgusted with it. London, he admitted, was not a bad place, yet two-thirds of it ought to be knocked down. If our boys in planes and cruisers wanted practice there were whole streets in Bermondsey and other places [laughter]—which he would be pleased to mark out for every artillery officer who got the necessary orders. Mr. Shaw urged that what was wanted was more drastic legislation. He wished somebody would introduce some comprehensive startling bills which would prove, say, that people whose soft coal fires sent out black smoke should be dropped down three shafts [Laughter.] It was no use fining them 5s. or £5 for neglect of duty that might cost them £50.

Not Taken Seriously

"I have been trying to tell the public conscience all my life," Mr. Shaw concluded, "and they all say I am an extremely amusing fellow, nobody takes me seriously. About this smoke-abatement business, they seem a dreadfully serious treat it lightly. A good many of the notices of this meeting in the papers will be jocular. They will find it amusing. What are you to do with such people? I had a notion of making a really remarkable oration—[laughter.]—but there I am confronted with this black cloud of smoke and a blacker pall of ignorance what can I do but plunge into my chair?" [Laughter and applause.]

THE MINES DECISION

[From the Riverside Enterprise]

The decision of Superior Court Judge Butler in the Mines case is of far-reaching importance and will, if sustained by the higher courts, to which appeal is to be made, do much toward confining municipal governments to their proper and legitimate functions.

The suit was brought by W. W. Mines, as a taxpayer, against the Public Service Commission of the city of Los Angeles, on the ground that some $12,000 spent by the commission from the public funds for advertising purposes during the recent bond campaign was an improper and illegal use of such funds, not permissible under the terms of the city charter.

Judge Butler's decision sustains the plaintiff's contention throughout. It is not part of the job of the Public Service Commission to stage and pay for a political campaign from that taxpayer's money in furtherance of its policies, according to the charter. If the citizens of Los Angeles believe otherwise their belief can be embodied in an amendment that will give the Public Service Commission a free hand.

Of course, a howl has gone up from the Power Bureau and its Hearst organ that the decision favors the so-called power trust and leaves the public defenseless against the insidious attacks of enemies of public ownership.

But is there any valid reason why those citizens who are not in favor of the grandiose public ownership program of the city of Los Angeles should help pay the cost of propaganda for it?

The administration at Washington has declared in favor of the Mellon tax-reduction program, but what an outcry would go up if a percentage of the revenues of the Treasury Department were used for propaganda designed to cram that bill through Congress! Yet every argument that is employed to justify the expenditures by public servants of public funds in ballyhooing for power bonds and Boulder Dam is equally applicable to a paid publicity campaign financed from Federal funds for the furtherance of an administration policy.

Bureaucracy grows by what it feeds on. Every eleven wage earners and salary earners in the United States, according to statistics, are now supporting one Federal, State, county or municipal employee, who is a nonproducer. Given a free hand to spend tax money for the extension of political activities and the burden will soon become intolerable.

It is to be hoped that Judge Butler's decision will be sustained.

CONSUL CAN SELECT ALIENS

Concerning the matter of selection, immigration legislators are fond of saying that foreign countries will not permit America to interfere with their internal affairs and that America consequently would not be permitted to select immigrants in the country of source without special treaties.

If the House and Senate Immigration committees will question American consular officers who have been in contact with European emigrants during the past few years they will be amazed to learn how much an American Consul can do so long as he is allowed to do it by the United States government, or even so long as the United States government neglects to see him doing it.

They will also learn that the consuls can do all the selecting that is necessary without the aid of treaties or anything else to deceive the eye.—[Kenneth L. Roberts in the Saturday Evening Post.

$10,000,000 DRIVE FOR BRIDGE BONDS

Commissioners and Engineer Address Meetings

Plea for One of Public Safety Group on Ballot

Bond Issue Is Held in Half by Greed of Power Bureau

Chief Engineer Griffin and President Hardy and Commissioners Hutchings and Delzell of the Board of Public Works are addressing public meetings in support of the $10,000,000 bridge bonds, which will appear on the ballot at the May 6 election as Proposition No. 7. This is one of three bond issues on the ballot which may be classed together as "public safety" bond issues, the others being $1,600,000 fire bonds (Proposition No. 5) and $400,000 fire bonds (Proposition No. 6.)

Both the City Engineer, Board of Public Works and the City Council have for years expended money available from the general funds of the city upon the bridges over the Los Angeles River, Pacoima Wash and Arroyo Seco in repair, the repairs were far from sufficient to do the work. Then came the recent collapse of the Avenue 26 bridge, resulting in the death of one person, and this aroused home to the people of Los Angeles the necessity for a bond issue to carry out the City Engineer's complete program for reconstructing and repairing all its bridges.

FAILURE TO BE FIXED

The program called for an expenditure of practically $12,000,000. Only the Power Bureau's plea demand that all other bond issues should be sacrificed to get power bonds prevented the Council from placing a $2,000,000 bridge bond issue on the ballot. The bridge bonds were limited by the Council to $1,000,000, thus delaying the repairing and reconstructing of eleven important bridges until another $1,000,000 in bonds are voted. The City Council has declared these eleven bridges to be either unsafe or unsightly or both.

The twelve bridges which are to be rebuilt or repaired and made safe with the $1,000,000 asked for on May 6 election and the estimated cost of the work required are as follows:

Avenue 26 bridge	$400,000
Second Street Viaduct	600,000
Total	$1,000,000
Figueroa Street bridge	175,000
Main Street bridge	125,000
Macy Street bridge	150,000
Aliso Street bridge	200,000
Mission Road bridge	85,000
Avenue 43 bridge	100,000
Avenue 52 bridge	45,000
Avenue 20 bridge	45,000
Other bridges	45,000

WORK SACRIFICED

Engineer Griffin has declared that the repair and reconstruction of these twelve bridges is of immediate necessity, and has already been taken by the Council to provide for the repair of the Avenue No. 26 bridge to be financed from advances from the general funds of the City. Bond money is available for the viaduct bridges for which bonds were provided under the $1,000,000 bond issue and which will provide for the $21,000,000 bonds are as follows:

[illegible]	$40,000
[illegible]	45,000
[illegible]	25,000
[illegible]	15,000
[illegible]	20,000
[illegible]	100,000
[illegible]	65,000
[illegible]	75,000
[illegible]	150,000
[illegible]	18,000
Total	$513,000
[illegible]	$450,000
[illegible]	$1,500,000

Veterans Not to Parade on Memorial Day

Memorial Day this year will see thousands of veterans through Los Angeles streets. Instead, a review will be conducted within the confines of the Coliseum.

One hundred dollars, double the amount in former years, was voted by the Finance Committee of the City Council yesterday toward defraying the expenses of the united committee in charge. An appropriation has been given by the Board of Supervisors.

Seventy-five thousand children, the Committee was told, will take part in the exercises, and the intention of those in charge is to make Memorial Day one on which increasing emphasis will be exerted to imbue the youth of the city with the principles and the ideals of American Constitution.

WANDERING FUGITIVE CHARGE IS DROPPED

The case against Lena, Rose [illegible] charged with sheltering a fugitive from justice, was dismissed yesterday by Justice Wood. It was asserted to have given money to W. H. Attorneys for the woman argued that she did not know she was wanted by the police.

SUPERVISOR FOR WATER BOND ISSUE

Support of San Gabriel Chambers is Urged by P. F. Cogswell

A strong plea for support of the water conservation and flood-control bonds as they appear on the May 6 ballot was made yesterday by County Supervisor P. F. Cogswell before directors of the San Gabriel Association of Chambers of Commerce. Twenty cities were represented at a luncheon in the Broadway Department Store.

"There is only one hope for the future water supply of more than half Los Angeles county, and that is the construction of dams and reservoirs as embodied in the $35,000,000 plan on the ballot," said Cogswell. "Flood waters and the normal precipitation must be stored in the watersheds and released so it can replenish the underground reservoirs which are now fast becoming depleted.

"The artesian area of the county alone has diminished from 177 square miles to but twenty-eight square miles; water levels in the wells have dropped in some instances as much as 150 and even 200 feet. These levels can be raised if dams and reservoirs are built to perform such a function."

The San Gabriel association already had gone on record as emphatically favoring the bond issue. Rex B. Kennedy of Whittier, president of the association, presided at the meeting. Charles Bayer of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce told of steps being taken throughout the county in a campaign on behalf of the conservation bonds.

PERMANENT-WAVE BALM TRIAL OPENS

Beauty Shop Being Sued by Patron for $11,000 as Asserted Damages

Two versions of what occurred when Mrs. Janie Pollock went into a beauty shop to get a "permanent wave" were told in Judge Luttrell's court yesterday where Mrs. Pollock's suit for $11,000 asserted damages against Della Wold and MacDonald's Hairdressing Parlor went on trial.

In her complaint Mrs. Pollock said that she went into the defendants' place of business April 27, 1923, to have a "permanent wave" effect put into her tresses. The defendants were declared to have been negligent and careless in the administration of the treatment and Mrs. Pollock said she suffered burns and lacerations which resulted in a permanent disfiguration of her scalp.

The defendants answered that if Mrs. Pollock suffered any injuries it was due to her own actions. Mrs. Pollock was asserted to have become nervous when the electric tubes were applied to her locks and to have jumped up and down, pulling large strands of hair from her scalp. When employees of the place became aware of her conduct, the answer stated, they removed the appliances and refused to continue with the treatment. The defendants contended they were not to blame for any infection to the plaintiff's scalp that might have resulted from the treatment.

WRANA BOUND OVER FOR GRAND JURORS

MUST FACE INQUIRY FOR ASSERTED RECEIPT OF OBSCENE MATTER

United States Commissioner Long yesterday bound Ralph O. Wrana, president of Wrana, King & Co., over to the Federal grand jury on a charge of knowingly receiving obscene matter through the mails. Wrana gave $2000 bond. The arrest was made by Deputy United States Marshal Finn and Postoffice Inspector Lowe.

According to the officers, Wrana has been doing business as a consulting chemist with laboratories at 805 East Third street. Information leading to his arrest came from an employee, who reported that his employer was receiving pictures and reading matter unfit to be sent through the mails.

GLOOM IN "SMILES"

Producers of Play are Named in Complaint for Wages

Despite its name, "The Smiles of 1924" has a measure of gloom mixed in with it, according to Fid Johnston, one of the principal players in the show, when he filed a wage complaint yesterday against the producers for $140 he says is due him.

Johnston mentions De Recat and Bostick of an amusement service company, and Jack Sullivan, husband of Annette Kellerman, as those who hired him and who have not paid.

According to the complaint Johnson played with "The Smiles of 1924" a week in Los Angeles, as well as two days in San Bernardino and Pasadena. He was paid $20 on account, he says.

Deputy Labor Commissioner Tibbet, who is handling the case, said a letter sent to the producers failed to settle the claim. A hearing on the complaint has been set for May 1.

Last week Cowdrey was held on a charge of robbery on four counts. He was arrested with several others following an attempted hold-up of the Leighton Cafeteria. Deputy Sheriff Bell was the principal witness yesterday. The case was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Heinecke.

GREAT AREA OF CITY AID TO CROOKS

Police Force Handicapped Till Citizens Vote Bonds for Equipment

BY AUGUST VOLLMER
Chief of Police

With an area of approximately 411 square miles, with an enormous increase in vehicular traffic congested within a business and financial center that is reached by only a very few main thoroughfares, and with a high individual average of wealth displayed by its citizens, Los Angeles presents one of the most difficult police problems to be found anywhere on this continent.

Criminals are attracted here by the general wealth of the citizens and the tourists and by the notorious fact that the police are handicapped in attempting to protect a population of more than a million and cover an enormous area with stations and equipment created for a city of one-third the present size. The criminals know more about the location of our police stations, and they know more about our general police problem, than does the average householder. They like the present conditions and so they come here in droves.

And aside from the great inconvenience to the average citizen who meets with difficulties when he attempts to drive his automobile through the astonishingly congested business section, there is the far more serious safety problem. This is not a problem of avoiding injury to the pedestrian or the automobile driver, but it is a problem to be solved in providing protection against burglars, bandits and murderers who sometimes feel they can commit a crime of violence with impunity, relying on congested traffic, the improper location—or lack of location of police stations—and the generall yantiquated police equipment, to prevent their capture.

By your vote for more police stations and better equipment you can help foil the criminals.

Support Plea by Backers of Charity Fete

Every effort is being put forth by those in charge to make a great success of the Billitoppers Revue, which will be given for the benefit of the Children's Hospital Thursday evening at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Donald Crisp is directing the affair.

An appeal is being made to the general public to make reservations as early as possible, as it is necessary that the entire house be sold out if the charity event is to get a goodly sum for deserving and helpless little folk.

Entire proceeds from the benefit will go to the hospital. The institution last year cared for 33,000 sick and suffering children, through its various departments, and of this number more than 2500 were cared for in the hospital beds. Eighty-eight and four-tenths per cent of the cases are charity.

On the Billitoppers Revue program are ten all-star acts besides a number of surprise features. Among the stars scheduled to appear are Will Rogers, Felix Adler and Frances Ross, Irene Rich; a Lasky contribution, "A Night in Spain," Edna Gunner Peterson; the Carlo Concert Children; the Cowie Juvenile Pipe Band; Marion Morgan Dancers, and Montague Glass' comedy, "Omit Flowers."

JUDGE CITES NEED OF SERVING UNSELFISHLY

ADDRESSES DRIVE WORKERS FOR LOCAL BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB

There was never a time in the history of the world when there was the need of unselfish service that there is right now, Judge Paul Burke of the Superior Court told 100 workers in the Los Angeles Business Girls' Club drive for $50,000 last night at the Alexandria Hotel.

"The work being done by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Los Angeles and the Business Girls' Club, which it sponsors, is particularly needed in this community," he stated. "Because of the climatic and other advantages, many girls are attracted here who need the fostering care under well-directed nonsectarian auspices of those who are trained to render special assistance to young girls in working out their problems, by acting as big sisters to them."

Mrs. Willoughby Rodman and Gertrude Comstock also spoke at the meeting, which was presided over by Miss Orfa Jean Shontz, president of the Los Angeles Business and Professional Women's Club.

GOLDWYN PLANS FOR EXTENSIVE PROGRAM

Samuel Goldwyn will arrive in Los Angeles today from New York to launch his most extensive producing program since his advent to the ranks of independent producers more than a year ago. In addition to engaging George Sydney to succeed the late Barney Bernard in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," Mr. Goldwyn closed several important negotiations while in New York affecting his future producing and distributing plans. With the producer's arrival the machinery for increased productions under his trademark at the United Studios will be set in motion. "Tarnish," a George Fitzmaurice production in which May McAvoy will appear, and "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," under the direction of Al Green, both First National pictures, will be the first two pictures under the new schedule on which work will be started immediately.

GOING TO OAKLAND

A large group of delegates and business men from Los Angeles is expected to attend the eleventh annual convention of the California Retail Fuel Dealers' Association at Oakland Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is estimated that more than 300 delegates and visitors from the State will attend. Prominent speakers will address the convention.

Los Angeles.—"Before my retirement I was for 28 years a druggist and during that period sold many thousand bottles of Dr. Pierce's remedies. I could always feel perfectly safe in recommending a medicine put up by Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., and it is a pleasure for me to state that during all the years I sold medicine I never had a single complaint regarding Dr. Pierce's remedies, but have had hundreds of people tell me how much good they have derived from them. I had, and still have so much confidence in these medicines that when I need a tonic I take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' which clears my system of all unfavorable symptoms giving me a tone and feeling of perfect health.

Of Interest to Women

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Among delightful affairs of the week was the buffet supper Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Shirley C. Ward at their home on West Twenty-first street, at which the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Katherine Ward, to Robert Bruce Carr, Jr., son of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Carr of Berkeley, was announced. The announcement was a surprise even to the intimate friends, as there had not been the slightest hint before, so well had Miss Ward kept her secret. Both Miss Ward and Mr. Carr are graduates of the University of California and Mr. Ward is a close friend and fraternity brother of Robertson Ward, brother of the bride-elect, while Miss Margaret Carr, sister of the bridegroom-elect, is the intimate chum and sorority sister of Miss Ward. The wedding will take place on May 9 at the home of Miss Ward's parents, Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Cantwell officiating, in the presence of relatives. The ceremony will be read at high noon. Miss Margaret Carr will come down on May 5 for a visit at the Ward home. Robertson Ward's engagement to Miss Elizabeth C. Terry of Berkeley was announced recently, and Miss Terry arrived from the north last evening and will be the honor guest at a smart tea with which Mrs. Ward and the Misses Katherine and Beatrice Ward are entertaining tomorrow afternoon at the Los Angeles Country Club.

When the ice cream and cake were served Sunday evening the latter held a tiny envelope with the wedding date and signed by Miss Ward and Mr. Carr. Secrets of Hair Dressing Art

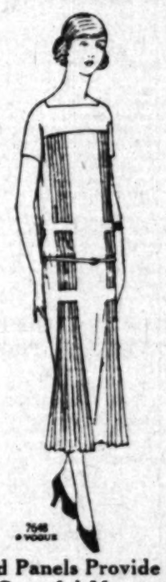
Here is a way to bring out all the lustrous softness your hair possesses. It is a method known and treasured by many beauty specialists and women famous for lovely hair. It is a simple matter of using the right shampoo. It is not advisable to use a makeshift but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready.

After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp glows with the health that insures hair growth.—[Advertisement.

Daily Fashion Hints From VOGUE



Pleated Panels Provide Graceful Movement

Pleats in every conceivable variety are being used more than ever this spring, and one finds them in every type of dress. Often they serve to introduce a welcoming and becoming note of softness and relief to an otherwise too severe line.

No. 7648 is such a frock. This very youthful design is a straight, one-piece model made of crepe de Chine in white or the lovely pastel shades. The brief sleeves are cut in one with the kimono yoke. Pleated panels that are attached to the yoke with the dress proper and slipped through the slashes in front hang free, providing a graceful movement. The narrow belt completes the dress—though it would be quite as smart without this.

COAST PRESIDENT TO PLAN FOR MEETING IN FRESNO IN MAY

Don Francisco, president of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs, will speak this noon at the luncheon before the weekly business meeting of the Advertising Club of Los Angeles.

Mr. Francisco will discuss the twenty-first annual convention of the Coast Advertising Clubs, to be held in Fresno, May 25 to 28. The theme of this year's convention will be "What Co-operative Advertising Can do to Sell the Pacific Coast and Its Products."

Instead of a five-day convention as in the past, the sessions will be limited to four days. A new department for national and foreign trade advertisers has been established. Mr. Francisco, who is general manager of the Los Angeles Times, and manager of the Lord & Thomas advertising agency, will go to Fresno early to complete plans for the convention. Following the Fresno meeting, Mr. Francisco will go to San Francisco to confer with the committeemen from the northern territory.

Charlotte Treadway, Tucker and Gayne Whitney of the cast of "Shore Leave," now at the Morosco Theater, accompanied by their director, Augustin Glassen, will be guests at the Rotary Club luncheon today. The club has also bought out the theater for next Monday night, and the members will make a personal appearance after the performance. Visitors welcome to both affairs.

BOTTLED CARBONATED DRINKS

If you are in a place where there may be a doubtful or dangerous water supply, or if you are going to such a place this summer, take along some good grade of bottled carbonated soft drinks.

In a series of studies on carbonated beverages which were bottled by reliable houses, it was found that these carbonated drinks were quite free from bacteria. I got this data from a report by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research in the February number of the American Journal of Public Health. The work done by this institute shows that it was the carbonation and not merely the pressure effect which had to do with the sterilization of the carbonated waters. A little something of the mode of study may be interesting to you.

Different sets of bottles of both the non-carbonated and the carbonated ginger ale were innoculated with germs of typhoid and the colon germs. These samples were stored at room temperature and, later, bacterial counts were made. In the non-carbonated ginger ale, it was found that the disease germs had rapidly multiplied to the extent of becoming highly dangerous. In the carbonated ginger ale, however, the germs had been killed and the beverages were practically sterile.

It was found that while the sterilization is due to the carbon dioxide, or carbonation, the higher the pressure the sooner the bacteria were killed. The pressure that was used in the experiments was seventy pounds, and that is the pressure used in the bottling of certain high-class carbonated drinks. These research workers say that seventy pounds is a practical pressure and should be used by all bottlers of soft drinks, as an additional safeguard to the public.

They also call attention to the fact that the bottler should not rely wholly on the carbonation to insure the sanitary condition of his products. For if contaminated waters were used and happened to be insufficiently carbonated, the result would be a dangerous beverage; and even if high carbonation were used, the beverage might be dangerous if it were consumed immediately after bottling.

DIRTY MONEY

Cheer up, Dearios! We don't have to worry about getting disease from handling money, for the possibility of infection from dirty bills and coins is not very great, according to the bacteriologic investigations of Hildlich. That's comforting, isn't it?

Apparently there is something in the composition of the printed bill that acts unfavorably to bacterial life. Bank tellers and others who have to handle considerable soiled money, apparently are not more prone to early graves than others. Whether these germ-destroying qualities of paper money are due to the ink or some other component of the bills, has not been determined. Metals have a germicidal action, so that the coins, also, are not dangerous.

Someone has facetiously said that only lovers should kiss on the lips because the rising temperature resulting sterilizes the germs. The accumulation of a few bills and coins might have somewhat the same effect as a lover's kiss on a lot of us.

Of course, we don't want to be foolhardy now about making money. We mustn't think we can handle money that has just been handled by someone suffering from some infectious disease, without a certain degree of danger. Best to keep our fingers out of our mouths and nose and wash our hands before taking food—not only after handling money, but on all occasions.

Girl Reported Missing; Police Join in Search

Police were searching yesterday for Miss Mollie Pollack, 17 years of age, of 1045 East Forty-ninth street, who was reported missing by her stepmother, Mrs. Anna Pollack. According to Mrs. Pollack's report to the police, her stepdaughter was last seen in the company of a girl friend Sunday morning en route to a cemetery.

Following the visit to the cemetery the girl left her friend, the report stated, to visit two artists at the Melrose Hotel, where she was supposed to have posed for them as a gypsy girl.

Miss Pollack is 5 feet 4 inches in height, 120 pounds in weight, has gray eyes and bobbed auburn hair, and when last seen was wearing a gray coat, black hat lined with pink material and black satin slippers.

ROUGH TREATMENT BY POLICE CHARGED

LONG BEACH ROBBER SUSPECT SAYS OFFICERS SEVERE IN "THIRD DEGREE"

Charges that he had been roughly handled by several members of the Long Beach police force in an attempt to obtain a confession from him were made yesterday in Judge Alvarado's court by John J. Mullen, who was being tried on a charge of robbery. Mullen denied that he had any part in the robbery of C. H. Scobie of the beach city, of which he was accused. Scobie was said to have been held up October 21, 1923, and robbed of $4.

Mullen testified that he was arrested with a companion, taken to the Long Beach police station and there subjected to a severe "third degree" at the hands of officers. The latter removed his clothing and handled him so roughly that black and blue marks were left on his body for days afterward, Mullen said. The case is expected to go to the jury today.

OIL MAN CONFRONTS CHILDREN IN COURT

LYNES ALIMONY CONTEST IS CONTINUED BY REASON OF SICKNESS

John Lynes, wealthy oil man, yesterday confronted his two children in Superior Court, where he appeared in response to his wife's action for alimony pending his suit for divorce from her. His children are Robert, 4 years of age, and Helen, 2.

Lynes charged his wife, Mrs. Anna Lynes, with cruelty, asserting, among other things, that once when he went to her residence on business after their separation in 1921, she had him arrested as a prowler.

Judge Summerfield heard part of the alimony contest several weeks ago. The case was continued when it came up on his calendar yesterday on account of his sickness. It was set for hearing next Monday.

WIFE BLAMES GROCER FOR FRIENDLY VISITS

Walter Duke, grocer, used to take an hour to deliver an order to certain customers, Mrs. Reinette de Haven Duke declared in a divorce complaint filed yesterday. He also was enthusiastic in demonstrating his approval of some of his wife's girl friends, making a practice of greeting them with kisses, she asserted.

THE LAST WORD.

BY ALMA WHITAKER

TAKING OURSELVES SERIOUSLY

Most of us are tempted to take ourselves seriously. It is a tiresome attitude and is not apt to add to our social attractions. Yet we may as well admit that most of the people we know who are "leaders," who are prominent in the public eye, who have wormed their way into positions of authority take themselves very seriously ford to be already. Desist, fair ladies, and let me take calm stock of myself."

In my profession there are those of us who quite seriously consider their "stuff" as "creative work." They love that expression and so long as they can hold that idea their zeal is unbounded. You simply could not convince the dears that they are not essential entities in the world of letters. To tease them, to belittle their literary outpourings is to lacerate their very souls.

And in motion-picture circles they are apt to take themselves very seriously indeed. Just a rare soul here and there can stand aside and laugh at himself once in a way. But in a general way, whether it be a press agent or whether it is a great director or a mammoth producer, they all feel the stirrings of the demigod within them and regard any flippancy toward them as stark sacrilege.

All the same, the really great can generally stand a joke on themselves. But perhaps they had to take themselves desperately seriously in the beginning to achieve their success. That, perhaps, is why so many people who are "getting on" are not exactly social favorites. When criticism or ridicule touches them they are apt to flatter themselves that it is jealousy. But there is a naughty human temptation to tease and poke fun at a self-assured demigod. They invite it so engagingly all along the line.

Of course, when they have finally won through and achieved success in their chosen line they command our respect anyway. And if the struggle has also modified their ego, if they have broadened in proportion to their success, they can sometimes take a breathing spell to smile in, to stand outside themselves and, for a glittering instant now and then, see themselves as other see them. It is then that their friends can grapple them to their hearts and rejoice with them. And it isn't necessarily lion hunting, but friendly appreciation.

But we miss so much by taking ourselves too seriously. We create to many unnecessary heartaches for ourselves, and alienate such a lot of sympathy. In fact, we are just tiresome boors, and people can't help realizing it. So they either laugh at us and get no end of a kick out of leading us on to vaster silliness and ego exposure, or else dodge us whenever possible.

Hence, it is quite difficult to be both successful—and beloved. And there isn't an iota of joy in the success without friends to rejoice with us.

You see, taking ourselves seriously hardly ever leaves us any time for outside interests, generous sympathies, for "mutual" friendship. We exact so much of our friends—the friendship has to be all on their side. We take, but seldom give. Hence, we may have aloof admirers, we may have tolerant, patient, generous friends, but we don't exactly attract loving friends.

It isn't just a matter of conceit. Conceited people can be very popular—providing they can laugh at themselves and provided they have anything to be conceited about.

Just take two of the leading directors in filmdom. Both are at the very top of their profession, both are intensely admired—but one is loved and one is not. I should say that the one that is loved is infinitely the more conceited of the two, but he has that saving grace of seeming not to take himself seriously. No one makes more caustic jokes about him than he does himself. He will pause in the midst of some ebullient boast and grin. "Excuse me. I seem to be doing my demigod act," he will laugh. "Some one change the conversation quick, while they have the chance."

But the other one never senses his "demigod" act," is haughtily and sumptuously immune from self-criticism—so the laugh comes behind his back, against him, not with him.

Perhaps is doesn't really matter. Except that the difference is that without success our first man would still be popular and beloved and our second man has nothing in the world but his success.

I once heard a beloved celebrity say to a crowd of women who were complimenting him: "For heaven's sake, don't flatter me any more. You will turn my head. I am quite as conceited as I can afford to be already. Desist, fair ladies, and let me take calm stock of myself."

On the other hand I know a celebrity, who toured this coast, who took himself so desperately seriously that he began by warning the newspaper people that his art was probably over their heads, and ended up by writing to their editors in furious indignation because the reporters had "joshed" him and failed to take him with proper seriousness. That every effectually made him ridiculous—and broke his heart. Yet he had art, he was clever—clever in everything but smiling at himself. And one understood so well why he complained bitterly that his genius was unappreciated. His genius was appreciated, but his personality was not.

So, you see, it is rather a bitter thing to be "successful" if one takes one's self too seriously. And since we are all striving for success, since many thousands of people are paying professional "success" teachers, taking correspondence courses, attending classes, or struggling along with fearful industry on their own account, it is a good thing for us to stand aside and analyze these little human weaknesses of ours—and especially and particularly this one of taking ourselves too seriously.

Police Look for Incendiaries in Two Home Fires

Two fires, both believed to have been of incendiary origin, were under investigation yesterday by Capt. Enos, head of the fire precention bureau, and Letestive Lieutenant Bruttig of the police arson squad.

The first fire, which broke out early yesterday, caused about $500 damage to an unoccupied house at 1463 Sawn Place. This house, police believe, was touched off by some boys in the neighborhood. The house is owned by Mrs. D. Barnhard.

A crazed incendiary is believed to be responsible for the second fire, which completely destroyed the home of J. J. Noakes at 9101 South Figueroa street. The loss was estimated at $4600. Mr. Noakes and his family were away at the time of the blaze.

Two Injured, One Seriously, in Plant Blast

Two men were scalded when a boiler exploded in the Hammond Lumber Company plant at 2210 Alameda street yesterday morning.

Albert Field, 26 years of age, of 1500 Freeman avenue, suffered burns of the face, arms and body.

William Cheffers, 32, of 119 South Miles avenue, Huntington Park, suffered burns of the face, neck and arms. Both were taken to the Receiving Hospital.

Field, according to Police Surgeon Dorn, was in a critical condition.

SAILOR CONFESSES HIGH SEAS ASSAULT

John W. Neill, a British sailor, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of assault on the high seas and was sentenced by Federal Judge James to serve six months in the Orange County Jail. He will be deported at the expiration of his sentence. Federal officers announced. Neill was arrested when a passenger on a ship entering Los Angeles Harbor reported the sailor had attempted to rob him.

Theater Usher Accuses Mate of "Frame-up"

Charges that her husband sent a man to her apartment, followed him there, and then sued her for divorce, naming the other man in his suit, are made by Ruth Storll in her suit for divorce from Walter Storll.

Mrs. Storll is an usher in a downtown motion-picture theater, it developed at a hearing before Judge Shaw of her petition for temporary alimony. Judge Shaw declined to award her support pending trial of her suit, finding that she was supporting herself and had lived with Storll only a few days after their marriage.

When her husband learned she was going to contest his suit, he dismissed it, she asserted, whereupon she entered her suit, charging he had attempted to "frame" her. He countered with a cross-suit, asserting that she had admitted entertaining other men during his absence.

PRAISE FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Kiwanis President Tells Register League That They Are More Active in Balloting

"A comparative analysis would show that women voters are more active than men in exercising the franchise," Clyde C. Showmaker, president of the Kiwanis Club, declared yesterday at a luncheon of the Hundred Per Cent Register and Vote League, at Hotel Clark. The meeting was in preparation for the campaign to encourage balloting, the league having accomplished much in getting voters out to register.

Most of the speakers were women, and all pleaded for full registration and voting regardless of political advantage.

FORMER SPIRIT PRAISED

"In 1910 when women got the vote, there was much amusement over the assertion that Democratic women drove Republican women to the polls, and Republican women took Democratic women to the polls," said Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, the first woman delegate to the Republican National Convention. "But," she added, "I wish we had more of that spirit now."

Mrs. Mollie Bloom Flagg, secretary of the Federation of Voters, told of the work of the women's clubs of the State in encouraging exercise of suffrage. Mrs. Mary Foy, formerly delegate to the Democratic National Convention, told of her experiences in getting the vote out, and urged nonpartisan action, and Mrs. Esther Lea, secretary of the Democratic County Central Committee, joined in urging as complete a vote and registration as possible.

W. E. Evans, vice-chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, pointed out that a full vote is important in the fight for legislative and Congressional reapportionment, in the fight for proper representation for Southern California. "Our vote has not been as complete as it has been relatively in the north," he said. "A good registration and vote will show our strength and go far in Southern California's fight for better representation in the Legislature in Congress."

FUNDS NEEDED

Edward Owen, secretary of the Register-and-Vote League, said the campaign to get the vote out has been outlined, and that funds will be needed to carry it on. An assisting finance committee was formulated.

Harry Barrett of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce told of the register-and-vote movement in Hollywood, which was organized prior to formation of the city-wide league. The movement, he said, was conducted successfully in the registration by getting at the voters through school children, with co-operation of city schools. He said the Hollywood organization would carry on a similar fight to get the vote out, except that this will be done through the medium of the churches and the Boy Scout organizations.

LOSES PLEA TO PREVENT EXECUTION

Counsel for Wolfgang is Denied Motion to Vacate Death Sentence

Final efforts to postpone or stop the hanging on Friday at San Quentin of Isaac Wolfgang, known as the "milk bottle" slayer, convicted of first-degree murder for the killing of Police Officer Oliver Dinsmore in Boyle Heights, were started yesterday by the filing in Judge Reeve's court of a motion to vacate the judgment of the trial court and to set aside the resentence of the defendant.

The court denied the motion on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, stating that Wolfgang is now in San Quentin and within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court of Marin county.

Attorney Spagnoli announced last night that a petition for a writ of supersedeas will be filed today in the State Supreme Court. The constitutionality of the new law which allows a judge to sentence a prisoner convicted of a capital crime without the prisoner actually being in court will be attacked, the attorney said. If the Supreme Court of the State denied this writ the appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error, he announced.

It was held by the defense attorney that when Wolfgang was resentenced on February 2, last, after his appeal was denied by the District Court of Appeal, the reimposition of sentence was not legal for the reason that the defendant was not present in court, but was in San Quentin. It was also held that the defendant was not sane on that date.

DROP NOTED IN WEEK-END BURGLARIES

Only Three of Major Importance Reported to Police

A remarkable decrease in the number of week-end burglaries was noticed in reports filed at Central Police Station Saturday and Sunday, according to Police Statistician Knoles. Police authorities attribute the decrease to the prevalence of the foot-and-mouth disease. Due to the quarantine restrictions and the warnings to motorists to refrain from week-end trips, thousands of Angelenos remained in their homes Saturday and Sunday evenings. About 75 per cent of the larger burglaries, according to police records, are committed on these nights, while residents are absent.

Besides a score or more of petty thefts, the following were the only large burglaries reported:

Miss Bertha Asker reported that her apartment at 137 North Gleaf avenue, was entered into and furs valued at $1200.

Entering the home of Tyler at 1681 by breaking a dow and then burglars obtained Mr. Tyler's report jewelry and clothing $500.

GOLD BRICK LEASE SALE IS EXPOSED

Plaintiff in Suit Finds She Has Been Victim of Agent's Trick

What Judge Fleming termed an "apparently new form of bunko game" was brought to light yesterday in his court during the trial of a suit for the recovery of $900 brought by Katherine M. Ashland against Alice M. Landers, operator of a rooming-house at 1022 Ingraham street.

In her complaint the plaintiff charged that she had paid the sum sued for to a man representing himself as A. L. Lee, who purported to be the agent of the defendant, for a transfer of the lease on the rooming-house.

Mrs. Ashland said she called at the address in answer to an advertisement and that Lee presented her with an agent's card and showed her through the premises. She introduced in evidence a purported assignment of lease on the property.

The defendant answered that Lee was never her agent nor had he ever been given the defendant's permission to transfer the lease to Mrs. Ashland. Lee, the defendant said, appeared at the house in February, 1923, and rented a room for a few days. He was said to have told the defendant that he could sell the place, and Miss Landers said she told him she would sell if he could produce a buyer in two days. He failed to do so, she said, and she then told him she would not permit him to negotiate any transfer of the premises.

Lee was said to have disappeared several days afterward and has not been heard of since by either the plaintiff or defendant. In view of the evidence Judge Fleming ruled in favor of the defendant and stated that Mrs. Ashland apparently was the victim of Lee. The defendant was cleared of any responsibility or blame for the loss suffered by Mrs. Ashland.

Mrs. W. B. Gray Dies at Home of Daughter Here

Mrs. Weedon B. Gray, widow of the late Weedon B. Gray of Louisville, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William J. Chichester, 1017 South Wilton Place. Mrs. Gray had lived here for fifteen years, coming here shortly after her husband's death. She was formerly Katherine McFarlane and a member of an old Southern family.

Funeral services will be conducted today at 4:30 p.m. from Mrs. Chichester's home. The body will be taken to Louisville for burial.

Mrs. Gray leaves besides Mrs. Chichester, a daughter, Mrs. Charles Jeffras, a son, Angereau Gray, vice-president of the Louisville Trust Company; two sisters, Mrs. William P. Barber of Los Angeles and Mrs. Samuel Parker of New York, and a brother, James McFarlane of Indianapolis.

THERESA GILLE WILL REMAIN WITH MOTHER

Ten-year-old Theresa Marie Louise Gille, who was given into the custody of her mother, Claudia Hagberg, nee Claudia Gille, by the Second District Court of Appeal recently on a writ of habeas corpus, may remain there, according to the State Supreme Court yesterday. A petition for a hearing on the case, filed by William S. Jenkins and Edna Jenkins, former custodians of the child, was denied. Theresa was given into the care of the Jenkinses, it was disclosed. The mother asked to have her child returned to her. She had married in the meantime, she told the court, and both herself and her husband wanted the child. Evidence was presented to show that Theresa, during the time she lived with the Jenkinses, had grown more fond of them than of her own parent.

"I used to let them play on the front lawn during the day," said Mr. Gannon, who is a cameraman at one of the motion-picture studios. "I had no idea that anyone could be so cruel as to take a mother from her pups. But evidently there is one such person in Los Angeles, for Fan Tan, their mother, disappeared three weeks ago and the chain by which she was tied was left unbroken."

The pups are being raised on the bottle by Miss Bernice O'Neil, who is working in a picture that Mr. Gannon is photographing. She has consented to be their "adopted mother" until Fan Tan can be found. Despite their plaintive howls and whimpers, the babies appear to be suffering no harm from the loss of their mother. They appear to be normal in every respect and have husky lungs for dogs of their size.

GIVES JOLT TO SUIT OF EX-CONVICT

Demurrers of Bovee Sustained in $50,000 Damage Action

Details of a murder trial that was conducted in Sierra county in 1915 and which resulted in Natala Meravigiia, a well-known figure in the mining districts of the mountain country, being convicted of manslaughter, will not be aired in the local Superior Court, according to a decision made yesterday by Judge Collier.

The ruling was made in connection with the hearing of a demurrer to the suit brought by Meravigiia against J. F. Bovee, said to be a former saloon operator of Allegheny, Sierra county, for $100,000 asserted damages.

In his complaint Meravigiia set up two asserted causes of action against Bovee, in each of which he asked for judgment of $50,000. The first part of the bill stated that the plaintiff had killed Ettore Salvadore, a mine worker, in self-defense. Because of asserted testimony Bovee was said to have given at the trial of Meravigiia on a murder charge, the plaintiff said he was found guilty of manslaughter and served more than six years in Folsom penitentiary.

Judge Collier, however, held that this matter had been settled by the jury that heard the case, and sustained the defendant's demurrer without leave for the plaintiff to amend his bill of complaint in this particular.

The court also sustained the demurrer to the second asserted cause of action, but gave Meravigiia ten days in which to amend this part of his action. In the second part of his complaint Meravigiia charged that Bovee had slandered his name following the killing of Salvarode.

R.L.S. NOT MOROSE

His Illness Caused Flip of Irritability But he Was Not Petulant

In recent years people have surprised me by asking, usually in a lowered voice: "Wasn't Stevenson very morose? Did he not have violent outbreaks of temper when it was unendurable to live with him? Was that life in Vailima as idyllic as it has been represented to us?"

Like all slanders there is a germ of truth in this. There were times when Stevenson was terribly on edge with nerves; when he would fly into a passion over nothing; when jaded and weary he would give way to fits of irritability that were hard indeed to bear.

But it must be remembered that he was one of the most unselfish, lofty-minded and generous of men; there was no pettiness in him—nothing ignoble or mean. He was no petulant sick man raging at his family because one of his comforts had been overlooked. Rather was it the other way. He cared nothing for risk or danger, and went into it with an appalling unconcern.

Of all things he hated most were anxious efforts to guard his health or make him comfortable. Once I tried to put a mattress on the bare boards he slept on. It was like disturbing a tiger! The mattress almost went out the window. Such passions were not without their humor, and afterward Stevenson, was often as ready to laugh over them as we.

How could any hold the least resentment against such a sorely tried and heroic man, whose repentances were as impulsive as his outbreaks?

No, the sad part of life in Vailima was the consciousness of that great, striving heart in so frail a body, the sight of that wistful face, watching us at tennis, which after but a single game had ended—for him—in a hemorrhage; the anguish which underlay that invincible optimism, and which at rare moments would become tragically apparent; the sense of the terrible unequal struggle; the ineffable pity swelling in one's breast until it became almost insupportable.

That was the shadow of Vailima.—[Lloyd Osborne in Scribner's Magazine.

STRAWBERRY JAM

M. E. W. of Long Beach is a daily reader of our recipes and asks that we publish a recipe for strawberry jam.

Wash, pick and thoroughly dry four pounds of firm ripe strawberries. Place in a preserving kettle eight cupfuls of sugar, four cupfuls of water and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar; bring to a boil and boil until a little dropped from the tip of a teaspoon into cold water can be rolled into a small ball; take the kettle to the side of the stove, add the berries, cover and let stand one hour off of the fire. Bring to a boil, skim well, simmer five minutes, turn into jars, cover tight and store in a cool, dark place.

PRESERVED STRAWBERRIES

Select even sized, firm strawberries that are red but not quite ripe; pick, wash and dry thoroughly; pack in jars, not too tight, and make the syrup. Place six cupfuls of sugar in a saucepan, add three cupfuls of water and boil until it will spin a fine thread when a little is dropped from the tip of a spoon; carefully fill the bottles with the hot syrup, seal, set in a pan, do not let the jars touch, add cold water until one-quarter way from the top of the jars; bring to a boil, boil seven minutes, no longer; remove the pan to the side of the fire and let cool gradually; when thoroughly cold lift out the jars, dry well and store in a cool, dark place.

CREAM PUFF SHELLS

R. A. K., Los Angeles, writes that she and her husband enjoy the daily menus and recipes and asks that we give a recipe for cream puff shells.

Place in a saucepan half a cupful of butter, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of boiling water; bring to a boil, remove the pan from the stove and add, all at one time, one cupful of sifted flour and beat hard for four minutes; add three unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and beat four minutes after the addition of each egg. Drop from the tip of a spoon onto buttered baking pans, three inches apart, and bake in a moderate oven twenty-five minutes, turn off the heat and bake ten minutes. Do not open the door while baking.

CIOPINO

T. S., San Jose, has asked several instructors of cooking how to make the "Clopino" that is served in the Italian restaurants of San Francisco. She has never had a satisfactory recipe given her and asks that we supply one.

Heat half a cupful of olive oil in a deep saucepan, add two finely chopped onions, one chopped clove of garlic, two branches of parsley and one chopped stalk of celery; stir and fry until a golden yellow; add a No. 2½ can of tomatoes and a cupful of sharp cider or one cupful of white wine, and boil slowly for thirty minutes; add half a pound of halibut cut in large pieces and freed of all skin and bones, half a pound of boned and skinned rock bass, half a pound of boned and skinned barracuda, half a pound of boned and skinned yellowtail, half a pound of small white clams scrubbed clean, and the meat from a boiled crab; season highly with paprika and salt; simmer until the fish is cooked. Place large slices of toasted French bread in a deep platter and pour over the Clopino.

COTTAGE CHEESE

F. G. L., Los Angeles, asks that we give a recipe for making cottage cheese.

Place two quarts of thick sour milk in a clean saucepan, set in a pan of hot water, not boiling, and let stand at a temperature of 180 deg. F. for one hour or until the curd separates from the whey and seems firm. Turn carefully into a cheese cloth bag and hang in a shady place to drip for four or five hours. Turn into a bowl and mix in lightly half a cupful of cream and a little salt.

SCRAPPEL

D. V., Hollywood, wants to make about four pounds of scrappel and asks that we give the recipe.

Place in a two-quart saucepan two tablespoonfuls of lard, one chopped onion, one and a half pounds of chopped pork and a cracked marrow bone; stir and fry until the onion is cooked, add two quarts of water and cook until the meat is tender; cool, skim off the fat, remove the bone, add enough water to make six cups, stir in one and a half cups of yellow cornmeal, one teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of fresh ground black pepper; stir and cook one hour. Pour into a buttered loaf cake tin and cool. Cut in slices and fry a nice brown on both sides in hot bacon or pork fat.

Peel, slice and cut in strips the size of a match enough yellow turnips to be evenly covered by two cupfuls of vinegar; add one-quarter of a clove of crushed garlic, two teaspoonfuls of salt, a few grains of Cayenne pepper and one teaspoonful of ginger; let stand twenty-four hours, drain serve in lettuce cups.

ORANGE OMELET

J. M. L., Los Angeles, wants a recipe for an orange omelet that will serve two.

Beat the yolks of three eggs thoroughly and beat into them the grated rind of one orange, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of orange juice; beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and fold into them carefully the yolk mixture. Heat one tablespoonful of butter in a small omelet pan, pour in the mixture, stir from the bottom and sides until half cooked, set the pan in the oven until the mixture is set and slip half out onto a hot platter, fold over, sprinkle with powdered sugar and score the top with a hot poker.

ARTICHOKE FRITTERS

O. S., Pasadena, requests a recipe for artichoke fritters as served by one of the Italian restaurants in Pittsburg.

Make a batter by beating the yolk of one egg with two tablespoonfuls of milk, one tablespoonful of olive oil and two tablespoonfuls of sifted flour; beat well, add one tablespoon of strained orange juice and let stand six hours; just before using add the beaten whites of two eggs. Cut eight, young tender artichokes into slices lengthwise, remove the tough outer leaves, cut off the ends, remove the chokes and fry a nice brown in hot olive oil.

DEVILED CHOPS

G. F. S., Los Angeles, wants to know how to prepare English lamb chops deviled.

Rub two tablespoonfuls of butter to a cream and rub into it one teaspoonful of English mustard, one teaspoonful of French mustard, one teaspoonful of hot chutney, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, a few drops of onion juice and a seasoning of salt and Cayenne papper. Rub this mixture into English mutton or lamb chops and broil them; place the cooked chops on a hot platter, heat the remaining sauce and pour over.

MARK CHAOS IN GERMANY CLEARING UP

Berlin Manufacturer Here Sees Renten Money Value; Backs Dawes Report

The German government now is reducing the plethora of paper marks with which Teutonic commercial activities have been clogged for a long time, says K. Lindhorst, manufacturer of Berlin, now at the Alexandria.

"The populace is being relieved of its paper money in exchange for the new renten mark in the ratio of 1,000,000,000 to one," said Mr. Lindhorst. "The renten mark, which has been in circulation about six months is worth almost a quarter in American money, has real value, being secured by mortgages covering virtually all the tangible property in Germany. The new currency has been of aid in stabilizing business conditions. If France finally approves the Dawes report, prospects are good for a general and early clearing up of the chaotic European situation."

Mr. Lindhorse is one of the members of a firm distributing embroideries and tapestries.

"We do not have a factory, our goods being made in the homes in different parts of Germany," he explained. "The women in more than 5000 homes are engaged in turning out this work. We supply the material and handle the distribution."

The work demands a high degree of artistic skill and the persons engaged in it usually have been in training since childhood, he said. In places entire villages devote themselves to this class of handicraft, Mr. Lindhorst added.

Markets for the finished product exist all over the world, the visitor continued. Distributing points being maintained by a firm in London, Buenos Aires and New York. Mr. Lindhorst stated that the demand for this class of goods exceeds the supply in this country.

Goldman, insurance salesman, who were arrested yesterday by Federal officials on a commissoiner's warrant. The two gave $5000 bond each before Commissioner Long to insure their appearance for a hearing before the commissioner May 15.

Donahue was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Finn and Postoffice Inspector Smith at Donahue's office, 315 A. G. Bartlett Building. Goldman, whose office is in the Arcade Building, was taken in custody when he appeared at the Federal Building with his counsel.

SOLD OIL UNITS

Summary action was taken to hold the defendants after an investigation of the affairs of the U. S. Finance Company, which Donahue and Goldman organized last year as a common-law trust for the sale of oil units. The company operated as fiscal agents for the C. C. Stall Oil Association until last September, when, according to Postoffice Inspector Smith and Maurice P. Norcop, assistant to the Attorney-General, it was dissolved.

Information leading to an investigation of the company first was turned over to the State Corporation Commissioner by the C. C. Stall Oil Association following asserted irregularities by the U. S. Finance Company in the sale of oil units. According to the Federal officials this information showed that Donahue and Goldman failed to account for several thousand dollars obtained from the sale of units and that consequently many purchasers of units failed to obtain certificates issued by the C. C. Stall Oil Associaiton.

Certificates were issued by the C. C. Stall Oil Association through the U. S. Finance Company as money from the sale of units was turned over to the association. An effort made by the Corporation Commissioner's office to prosecute Donahue and Goldman in the State courts on a charge of embezzlement failed, according to the Federal officials.

$60,000 INVOLVED

Goldman's bond was signed by J. A. Ritchie and J. M. George. Donahue's bond was signed by Marshall N. Jones and Esther A. Martin.

At the Corporation Commissioner's office it was declared the brokers had obtained about $60,000 from the sale of units for which they failed to account. The facts came to light, it was said, when subscribers who had paid the U. S. Finance Company in full for units failed to receive them and complained to the C. C. Stall Oil Association. The oil association, it was said, did not have a record of such subscriptions having been made.

SERVICE OF CHAUFFEUR SACRIFICED

Ex-Wife of Al St. John Yields Point in Plea for Alimony

To enable her former husband, Al St. John, motion-picture comedian, to recuperate from his financial misfortunes, Mrs. Lillian St. John has agreed to get along without the services of her chauffeur, whose salary the comedian has been paying.

The sacrifice of the chauffeur for her ex-husband's financial good was agreed to by Mrs. St. John out of court. The agreement was presented to Judge Clock of the Superior Court yesterday for approval, which it received.

St. John recently filed a motion in Superior Court asking that the amount of the alimony he is paying his former wife be reduced because his income has fallen off and he has been out of work for some time. At the time the decree was granted to Mrs. St. John, the comedian was ordered to pay her $137.50 a week and also pay the salary of her chauffeur.

CLUB ENTERTAINED BY NEBLETT TRIO

The Leona Neblett trio entertained the Ebell Club yesterday afternoon with a splendid program. The trio consists of Leona Neblett, violin; Miss Shaffner, soprano, and Raymond McFeesters, pianist. The numbers were well selected and in every instance met with a pleasing reception. Miss Neblett played some new selections, among them being a minuet by Hochstein, Berceuse by Aulin and Indian Snake Dance by Burleigh. The minuet, rendered with exquisite taste, was enthusiastically received. The artist was at her best, scoring a distinct success.

Miss Shaffner was in rare voice. Her "'Tis April and Love Time" soon achieved its way to the thrilling point and she was compelled to sing it a second time.

Mr. McFeeters's interpretation of the White Peacock by Griffies was a scholarly bit of repression and was met with acclaim. He soon installed himself into the hearts of his auditors by his tonal nuances and proved himself to be one of our best local pianists. The auditorium was filled to repletion. The recital was declared an unqualified success in every way.

MRS. BLAIR ARRAIGNED

Heavy Bond for Woman Involved in McCartney Case

Mrs. Fay Blair was arraigned yesterday before Justice Baird on a charge of conspiracy to produce false evidence in connection with the asserted attack committed on Mrs. Grant McCartney.

Mrs. Blair's husband, Sidney Blair, also is held in connection with the case. Justice Baird set Friday as the date for the hearing. Bail was fixed at $10,000.

COMRADES MOURN KITTLE

Many Friends and Some Erstwhile Enemies Join in Tribute to Man of Eventful Career

A motley file of mourners yesterday passed the purple casket of Hubert Kittle, professional daredevil who committed suicide several days ago rather than face imprisonment in a penitentiary.

Chiefly, they were the ones who had been his friends in life, but among them were many who had been his enemies until the day of his death when their enmity ceased.

SERVICE SIMPLE

The funeral service, a simple one at the Wilshire undertaking parlors, 717 West Washington street, was conducted solely by his closest friends who had known him as a youthful train bandit, a motorcycle racer, parachute jumper, deep-sea diver, aviator and police officer. From each of these lines of daredevilry came representatives to pay their final tributes.

Al Jennings and Emmett Dalton, notorious in their youth as train bandits, were both there. Veteran motorcycle racers were there. Men who had served on the sea with Kittle were there. A few aviators were present. Others, evaders of law and whose faces are familiar in police identification bureaus, attended the services. Captain of Detectives Home and many detectives and police officers were there. Attorneys, old women and young girls, and Deputy Sheriff Hotz, the man who arrested Kittle for disposing of loot taken in a bank robbery, were there. They were all friends of Kittle.

OFFICER IN CHARGE

Walter Blue, former detective sergeant who had known Kittle for years, had charge of the service. Rev. Glenn McWilliams, whose church is on the downtown curbstone and to whom Kittle often went for a word of cheer, delivered the funeral oration — "Judge not too harshly."

The pallbearers were his friends, from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of which Kittle was a member. They were O. L. McConnell, J. F. Wilson, E. D. Kettering, J. A. Noonan, J. J. Dugan and F. W. McMinn.

And there, also, were his three best friends—the three who had stuck to him through all his misfortunes—the young widom, Mrs. "Dot" Kittle, and the two small sons, Robley and Hubert, Jr.

BOYS BUILD MODEL HOME

East Ninth Street School Pupils Erect Bungalow With All Modern Improvements

(Illustration on Picture Page)

When Better Homes Week dawns bright and clear on May 11, 100 exponents of the art of homemaking will be ready to exhibit their proud handiwork. Out at the East Ninth-street School, the boys, in the fourth and fifth and sixth grades are constructing a model bungalow with all modern improvements.

Not only that, but it is being built in accordance with the city ordinances as laid down by the city building department, with a concrete foundation and concrete pillars.

One hundred girls are going to fall heir to model husbands some time in the future for the boys working on the bungalow are learning, also, all the art of housekeeping. Although the bungalow is the smallest possible, under the direction of Mrs. Carrie Johnson, the boys have built in a breakfast nook, a cooler with tiny shelves and a screen on top, and an ironing board which is positively the world's smallest.

In the den is a built-in desk with hinges and drawers. There is also a dressing-room and a bed which is a "now you see it now you don't" affair. The book cases are all ready for books and the folding door works. Mrs. Johnson who is in charge of the Sloyd work at the school is overseeing the whole production. She has planned a place for a sewing machine right by the window and in every way the arrangement shows the conveniences which are the dream of every girl for her home. And the boys are planning it! That bungalow is quite the finest thing in the city to them. They have each planned that they will build their own homes when they grow up.

Back of the idea of a model bungalow and of Better Homes week, is a phychology which has been worked in by Mrs. Johnson. She has made the work on that bungalow the goal for everything out at the East Ninth-street school.

BOYS MAY SEAL DOOM OF FATHER

Lads Tell Their Story of Killing That May Cause Parent to Hang

The code of honor learned by Thomas Valdez, 12 years of age, and his small brother, Antonio Valdez, Jr., 10, while playing with their American companions, brought them into Judge Reeve's department of Superior Court yesterday to tell a story which may send their father to the gallows.

The two boys, their clothes somewhat tattered but their faces shining from a precourt scrubbing, were the chief prosecution witnesses yesterday against their father, Antonio Valdez, who is charged with the murder of Espiridion Grigalva.

Thomas manfully took the stand and described in detail the killing scene. He said he saw his father enter the room in which Grigalva was sitting. His father had a revolver in his hand, the boy said, but all he could see of the weapon was the barrel. The next thing he saw, he said, was the flame leaping from the mouth of the barrel.

The boy, vigorously cross-examined, failed to deviate in a single instance from his testimony. He finally was dismissed.

Antonio then took the stand and told virtually the same story. He also was present in the room at the time of the killing, he said, and also saw the gun in his father's hand.

Valdez, according to the prosecution, shot and killed Grigalva in the belief that the latter was on intimate terms with his wife. The slaying occurred on February 20, last.

Lineman Killed by Touching High Tension Carrier

G. R. Perry, 33 years of age, a lineman employed by the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, was electrocuted by contact with a high-tension wire yesterday afternoon at Seventieth street and Hooper avenue. Use of a pulmoter and injections of adrenalin failed to revive the man.

Perry was working on a pole when his bare hand touched the wire. His safety belt saved a fall to the ground, but he was believed to have been almost instantly killed. He lives at 733 Hartford street.

AGED AUTO VICTIM DEAD OF INJURIES

Mrs. Jennie Wilcox, 80 years of age, of 729 South Harvard Boulevard, died yesterday at Clara Barton Hospital from injuries received on the 15th inst. when she was struck by an automobile. The accident took place at Eighth street and Harvard Boulevard and the car that struck her was driven, according to police report, by Charles Sims of 1245 West Seventy-eighth street. Her body was taken to Bresee Brothers' undertaking rooms.

VOTE FUND FOR INJURED

In settlement of claims resulting from a collision at Fifth street and Broadway several weeks ago, between police department and fire department motor vehicles, the finance committee of the City Council yesterday voted to recommend the appropriation of $2341, covering injuries and losses suffered by seven citizens.

NEW CASES OF PLAGUE REPORTED

San Bernardino County Hogs Affected; Two More Herds of Cows Hit

The foot-and-mouth disease was yesterday reported to have broken out in San Bernardino county, the infection being found in a herd of 1000 head of hogs four miles from Colton. In addition, two more cases were reported for Los Angeles county, one being in a herd of fifty-eight head of dairy cattle at Van Nuys, and the other being a herd of fifty head of cows in the Lamanda Park section.

Information has been received from the Supervisors of Ventura county that no motor travel will be allowed to pass the Ventura county line unless for very urgent business reasons. This will be effective until the quarantine is lifted. Other counties are maintaining disinfection squads which will disinfect every car leaving this county.

Packing-houses were opened for business yesterday under strict Federal and State supervision. All live stock received at these plants must be slaughtered within forty-eight hours. Shipments can go through the stockyards or direct to packers, but in all cases antemortem inspection is required. Shipments of live stock will be subject to issuance of permit before being accepted by the railroads. No live stock will be permitted to move except that going to the packing-plants of Los Angeles and Vernon.

Wife Files for Decree Against Director Rosen

Lena Rosen yesterday filed suit for divorce against Phillip E. Rosen, motion-picture director, who recently completed the film, "Abraham Lincoln" for Warner Brothers.

She charges extreme cruelty. She asserts that he remained away from home repeatedly until the early morning hours and was intimate with a number of other women. She also charges that he threatened to put her in an asylum.

At the present time, Mrs. Rosen says, her husband is earning $1000 a week. She asks for $400 a week alimony and the custody of their three small daughters. The couple were married February 8, 1913, in New York and separated this month.

CHIEF FILES COMPLAINT

Tells Labor Commissioner Two Pay Checks Were No Good

The Oaks Tavern Corporation, an eating-place at 361 South Hill street, was made defendant yesterday in a wage complaint signed by Paul Fisher in which he charges that two $30 checks given him as part payment for his services as chef have been returned by the bank marked insufficient funds.

According to the charges filed with Deputy Labor Commissioner Tibbet, Fisher worked two weeks at the Oaks Tavern and is entitled to $120. Half the amount was paid by check, but the chef declares he has been unable to collect the money.

Commissioner Tibbet has notified Frank Reiter, president, and W. B. Wilson, treasurer of the corporation, to appear before him on May 29, when the case will be heard.

FINE ORPHEUM BILL

SARAH PADDEN LURES IN NEW CHARACTER

By Grace Kingsley.

They sell you a whole troupe of good acts and actors down at the Orpheum this week. And it is Vaudeville Artists' Week, as well, so you have a chance to pay a bonus, as they take up a collection at every meeting, and the congregation dug deep yesterday. However, you get an extra dance from Frank Farnum, who stayed in town just to help out, and you get another peek at Sarah Padden in her landscaped coat.

Sarah Padden is with us again in a new act called "The Accusation," and those who don't know how to take it had better not.

It is without form, but not void. Even if you are hurled dizzily from melodrama to comedy and then chucked suddenly into a sophisticated moment, you will find Miss Padden a source of joy. Hardly anybody in the world but Miss Padden could get away with it. Yet, at that, the playlet is a lot more like life than most playlets, and it has some bright little epigrams, too. In it, Miss Padden succeeds in making that stock stage character, the neglected wife, amusing, for which, if nothing else, she should be given a full set of laurels with the dew still on them. Miss Padden, however, couldn't play Juliet without kidding. The star appears for the first time, so far as I remember, in bobbed hair and beautiful clothes, so that Brer Meyer, who is the landmark of the front row, turned around to whisper excitedly: "Who is she?" This artist is mistress of a rugged humor and a rugged emotionalism which are compelling.

You must come early if you are not to miss Joseph Diskay, who, though a noted Hungarian tenor, is very easy to take, in fact, he stopped the show yesterday with his beautiful voice.

The great Joss Jazz is duly kowtowed to once more in the offering of Messrs. Abe Lyman and his California Orchestra. These toe-ticklers, including the comic saxophonist and sliding trombonist, not to mention Abe himself and his trick drum-sticks—meant literally, since we see nothing of Abe's legs, as he only makes other folks dance—deliver some good popular tunes and hypnotize the house.

A snappy little warbler of comedy character songs is Mary Haynes, whose arm is in a sling from an automobile accident, but whose talents aren't. Her beauty-shop song about the customers, including the old man who wanted his beard bobbed, is her best number, and wins the interest, usurious interest, on her investment. She is, in other words, a knockout.

We used to call them "living pictures." Now they call them "Reverse." At any rate the album whose leaves are turned by Ray C. Wynne, presenting two lovely unclothed young ladies in various poses, is very lovely. The young ladies do, as a matter of fact, literally exemplify the expression "turned leaves."

Ernest Hiatt's comedy is pretty long on the tooth; in fact Joe Miller has released all his jokes. Clinton Sisters open in a novel dancing act, "Cartooning in Dancelland," which you shouldn't miss, and Joe E. Brown remains over to coax another lot of laughs in "Arrest Me," which follows the spirit if not the exact letter of O. Henry's tale.

Ruby de Remer is Wed

Among the arrivals from Europe on Saturday, according to telegraphic word from New York received yesterday, were Ruby de Remer, and her new husband, Ben Throop, millionaire from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The pair were wed in Paris a fortnight ago. They have been engaged for about three years.

The bride declared that she intended to remain in pictures, however, and that her next release would be "The Rugged Messenger." She appeared in Rex Ingram's picture, "The Arab," while abroad.

TURPIN WILL DO TWO BURLESQUES

Mack Sennett announces two new Ben Turpin burlesques to go into production in the near future.

The first will be a travesty on "Romeo and Juliet," with Natalie Kingston playing the role of the ill-fated heroine. Ben's Romeo is expected to give the critics and Shakespeare lovers something to think about.

Following "Romeo and Juliet," a burlesque on Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks" will go into production with Ben in the role of Paul, and Madeline Hurlock as The Lady. The comedy will be called "Two and a Half Weeks."

"BABBITT" FINISHED AT WARNER STUDIO

The film Mr. Babbitt is no more. The picturization of the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Babbitt," with Willard Louis in the title role, was completed last week.

Louis spent Easter Sunday at home preparing his wardrobe for the current Ernst Lubitsch picture which is now in production at the Warner Brothers studio.

The actor in playing a principal part in the director's new story, which is as yet untitled. Others in the cast are May McAvoy, Pauline Frederick and Lew Cody.

GOLDBURG HEADING FOR PACIFIC COAST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 21.—Jesse J. Goldburg, president of the Independent Pictures Corporation, left last night for Los Angeles, there personally to supervise the first two society stunt melodramas starring Helen Holmes, to be produced under the direction of J. P. McGowan. While on the coast Goldburg will also arrange for an additional producing unit to make another series of westerns to be released in the fall.

"HUNCHBACK" STILL ON TALLY SCREEN

The Universal picturization of Victor Hugo's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" continues to pack Tally's Theater.

Lon Chaney, Patsy Ruth Miller, Ernest Torrence, Winifred Bryson, Raymond Hatton and the other stars who play important characterizations, visited the theater on Sunday, and are expected to attend other presentations this week.

Interpreting Shakespearean Drama

Usual Amount of Variety on Pantages Bill

Throw any peppy conglomeration of pretty girls, fair music, and a male singer or two together and you have a baby musical revue, suitable for vaudeville. One of these is heading the new bill at Pantages this week. It is the Andre Sherri Revue, which moves right along at a merry clip with Max Hoffman, Jr., some good-looking chorus girls, and a clever little dancer as the chief attractions. The songs they sing are not altogether new, but the act is staged in a brisk manner and is on the whole, pleasing.

Offhand you would never think that Chinese jazz could even remotely resemble music as we know it. Chinese music straight is bad enough. Pepped up it would be terrific. So you are rather surprised when Lee Ting Foo presents his ten Chinese jazz boys in musical selections. But the secret lies in the fact that they play American music and not Chinese tunes. The ten players employ stringed instruments of every shape and variety. One young player in particular is very proficient, his nimble fingers moving so fast that the eye can hardly follow.

Carl McCullough is a young comedian who sings and talks, and who finishes his act by accomplishing the seemingly impossible. That is, he sings "Yes, We Have No Bananas," and makes the audience like it—and he sings it not once, but half a dozen times, and then is called back for more. And the secret of that feat is that he gives it in imitation of the way various famed artists of dramatic and comedy stage would probably offer it. He does it well, too.

Little Yoshi and company open the bill with an exhibition of speed and grace. His closing number takes place on the top of a slender ten-foot pole, where he does acrobatic feats and dances, although there is scarcely resting place for one foot.

Edna Northlane and Jack Ward sing and dance. Miss Northlane also gives impersonations of Mae Murray and Mary Pickford. As imitations, they are fairly good. The four Tellerons close the bill with some trick stuff on huge balls, where they balance themselves and one another rather deftly.

On the screen program "The Fair Cheat," with Dorothy Mackaill, Wilfred Lytell and Edmund Breese is featured.

FIVE ONE-ACT PLAYS

Writers' Club to Present Program Friday and Saturday

Five one-act plays will be given by the Writers' Club next Friday and Saturday evenings. The sketches were written by members of the club and other well-known authors.

"When Caesar Ran a Newspaper," by Waldemar Young and William Jacobs, will have in its cast Mr. Young, Raymond Hatton, and Julanne Johnston.

"The Experiment," adapted by Charles E. Whittaker from the French by De Lorde and Binet, will be presented by a cast of well-known players to be announced later. Emile Chautard will stage this play.

"The Dragon's Claw," by Grant Carpenter, staged by Fred J. Butler, will have Warner Oland, Warner Baxter, Gladys Hulette and Edward Poll in the cast.

Olive Pape, June Elvidge, Roland Bottomley, David Butler and Lucy Brown will be seen in "Another Way Out," by Lawrence Langner.

MARRIAGE AND LIFE COMEDY INSPIRATION

There are so many angles to married life that it would indeed be remarkable if it did not present many opportunities for the funmaker. That is one of the reasons for the success that is being achieved by "Why Men Leave Home," produced by John M. Stahl, which is now the feature at the Alhambra Theater.

The author, Avery Hopwood, is one of the most successful writers of today, but in none of his other plays has he struck such a rich vein of humor. With a young married couple and the man's stenographer as the central figures he has woven a tale that is a gem of humor, and Stahl has converted it into a photoplay that evokes continuous shrieks of laughter from the audiences.

The leading players are Lewis Stone, Helene Chadwick and Alma Bennett, aided by Mary Carr, Hedda Hopper, William V. Mong, Sidney Bracy, Lila Leslie, E. H. Calvert and Howard Truesdell.

All Kinds of Acts Make Up Current Bill

Variety is the keynote of the program at the Hillstreet this week. Not only are there several good vaudeville acts deserving mention, but there are some added attractions not listed in the entertainment. That is the celebration of "Actors' Week" by spirited screen propaganda and collection-plate offerings.

Nevertheless, it is rather difficult to select the headliner this week, inasmuch as every act has about the same quantity and quality of amusement. Ernest R. Ball, who has made quite a hit writing songs, probably wins the gold button in offerings of his song sensations. Besides reviewing his composition he manages to introduce his aspiring "sheik" son. Mr. Ball mixes a little wit with personality in his little offering.

Murray and Oakland, after a brief rest from Broadway, are back with some nonsensicalities burlesquing opera singers of long ago. Their takeoff on the Spanish fandango and the bashful male vocalist is more than amusing. Of course, we should give Alma Neilson and her aggregation of dancers, instrumentalists and singers some credit for their part on the bill. Some very clever dances are introduced, including some difficult contortion stunts.

Robert Reilly, supported by Little Larry and Mollie Kennedy, presents a few character portrayals in the skit, "An Irish Romance." Special attention is given to a little lad in the playlet who has considerable ability as a comedian. The Remos company, featuring midgets and grown-ups in athletic and balancing performances, gives something new in the way of fun.

Last, but not least, is the roller-skating act of Mack and La Rue. Though their stunts are not exactly original, they have their exciting moments. On the screen program is "Ladies to Board," with Tom Mix in the lead.

Last Concert by Zoellners Interesting

Organizations which not only offer programs of musical merit, but which also pioneer in new fields, offering to a discriminating public new combinations, little heard music or music which is new and therefore indicative of musical progress, especially deserve commendation.

The Zoellner Quartet, by adding to each concert an assisting artist of merit, have not only presented their audiences with string ensembles, in which field they have long been recognized as authorities, but have played works for various musical combinations. And at their concert last night they offered another composition of modern trend, unique in instrumentation and novel in concept, the quintet in D major for flute and string quartet by Brant-Buys, with Jay Plowe assisting.

An addition to the Brant-Buys number, Miss Antoinette Zoellner and Amandus Zoellner, violinist, and Joseph Zoellner, the violoncellist of the quartet at the piano, performed the Sonata for two violins and piano by Handel. The first offering was Schubert's Quartet in D Minor, a posthumous work, creditably played.

The Brant-Buys Quintet was the composition which really gave evidence of the actual importance which the Zoellner Quartet is to Los Angeles, for not only is the number one of beauty and of merit, but its presence on the program was significant of real musical progress.

The Handel Sonata was played with dignity and breadth; particularly mentionable was the Andante and Largo movements.

In order that theatergoers may view the late Eleanora Duse in "Ashes," the only picture in which she has ever appeared, Manager L. E. Lund of Clune's Broadway Theater announces that he will run this film today and tomorrow only.

Realizing that the entire city is sorrowing because of the passing of the artist Mr. Lund decided to give those desiring to look upon the art of the actress for perhaps the last time an opportunity to view her in this, her only contribution to the screen.

PLAYDOM

MANTELL AS "LEAR"

ACTOR FINE IN BARD'S FINEST TRAGEDY

By Edwin Schallert

The finest recollections of the season of Shakespearean plays, which Robert B. Mantell has been giving at the Mason, will probably surround his performance of "King Lear," which was presented last night. This play is offered only once during the engagement, except for an excerpt that will be included in a mixed program tomorrow evening on the Shakespearean anniversary. Lear is undoubtedly his best role in the present, for in it he fulfills to the best his matured powers as an actor.

"Lear" should logically have drawn one of the best attendances during the series of performances. Instead, it only attracted a small representation of theatergoers, though these made up in their enthusiasm for lack of numbers.

Mantell dominated practically the entire production, though in several instances the supporting principals filled their roles very capably.

Lear is a role of long and difficult speeches. There is a shimmer of words through which the meaning comes very subtly. The culmination is the night scene in the storm on the heath, wherein the mentally-broken king, the jester and Edgar feigning madness literally turn everything topsy-turvy in their dialogue. This was not as effectual as it might have been owing to a fault which I noted once before, the lack of clarity in diction.

Mantell's best moments were his denunciations of his daughters, Goneril and Regan. Here he approached a traditional but forceful dramatic height. He was also splendid in the second scene on the heath, where he indulges in curious philosophical meanderings that have such weird and ironic appeal.

"Lear" is probably the most striking study in contrasts that Shakespeare ever conceived. The mood of laughter and the mood of bleakest tragedy are ever close together, and there is nothing bitterer than the theme of ingratitude that inspires so much of the development of the drama.

Best in quality was the support offered by Agnes Elliot Scott, A. C. Henderson and William Podmore. Miss Elliott, in particular, attained a superior impression as Goneril.

I liked Miss Hamper as Cordelia, but could not see the wisdom of having her double as the Fool. She is not suited especially to the whimsy of this portrayal.

Mr. Henderson gave an evenly sustained performance as the Earl of Kent while Mr. Podmore was very amusing as the impertinent young steward of the house of Goneril.

Henry Buckler as the Earl of Gloster was also reserved and effective. Louis Leon Hall hardly caught the feeling of the storm scene, but elsewhere did some creditable work. Theresa Colburn was mentionable as Regan. Vaughn Deering was only fair as Edmund.

All things considered, Mr. Mantell was the chief source of interest through his interpretation of broken and aged monarch. Pitiful he appeared in his beard and hair of flowing white, effective was the poignancy with which he imbued the characterization.

The remainder of the engagement will be occupied for the most part with repetitions of previous plays.

Grunn Opera Succeeds in Its Premiere

Hundreds of musical programs are given in every great city every year, but few of them are significant of any real progress or development. Homer Grunn, Los Angeles composer, presented last evening in Chickering Hall; under the Music Teachers' Association auspices, his comic opera, "In Woman's Reign."

The opera, the first by Mr. Grunn and composed to book and lyrics by William Hooper Howell, will be good for at least the next century — and perhaps when its central idea becomes ancient history, it will have a revival. The action takes place in the year 2024 A. D., when the ladies have full sway on matters of importance—such as affairs of the heart.

Briefly, the plot centers around the idea that man, being relegated by that time to manual labor only, must be either married or affianced by the time he is 21. Should he fail in this matter, he is to be awarded by lottery with others of his class to any woman holding the winning number. The action centers around an unfortunate young man who, having found himself in this predicament, has been awarded to a girl of many blemishes.

The music is bright, thoroughly American, runs along at a happy tempo, and sparkles generally. There are some snappy lines and clever situations. Several ballets, duets, trios, quartets and solos add greatly to the humor.

Lester Hugo Castle as Prof. Insight, court psychologist, was responsible for much humor. Georgia Stark, Alma Stetzler and Earl Meeker took prominent parts. There were about fifteen people in the well-chosen cast.

BURRO IS ADDED TO ACTOR'S MENAGERIE

Wallace MacDonald has added another pet to his fast-growing menagerie. MacDonald and his wife, Doris May, have an estate in Laurel Canyon. They have three dogs—two police dogs and an Airedale—a couple of stray kittens and a goat. The newest member of the family is a burro.

The tiny donkey was used during the filming of Fred Niblo's production, "Thy Name Is Woman," now playing at the Mission Theater, in which MacDonald appears as a dashing young Spanish officer. The animal seemed to take a special liking to Wallie, and the actor finally took it home. Doris May, who doesn't object to dogs and cats and canary birds and goldfish and that sort of thing, demurred. So finally the newest menagerie's member was carted off to the Hollywood Orphans' Home.

HUGE CACHE OF DOPE IS SEIZED

Trio Charged With $20,000 Weekly Rum Trade

Drug Store Found Said to be Worth $75,000

Seizure of $75,000 worth of asserted liquor and drugs followed the arrest yesterday of three men declared to be members of a large bootleg ring which did a business of $20,000 a week. The men were arrested in front of a business establishment on Broadway when, it is charged, they were about to deliver several bottles of liquor to a customer. The men arrested are W. M. King, G. B. Cavanaugh and Frank V. Mahoney. They were taken by Federal prohibition forces.

The liquor and drugs were in two large packing cases and a large barrel, the officers said, in the Pacific Electric car barns at Pasadena, where they had remained a week awaiting a claimant.

EVIDENCE FILLS TRUCK

The cases and barrel filled a truck. They had been consigned originally, officers said, to "Andrew Anderson, Altadena," declared to be a fictitious name, in care of the Mt. Lowe station. There is no agent at the Mt. Lowe station and the goods are left there at consignor's risk. After the goods had been several days at Mt. Lowe without being called for, they were taken to the car barns. Officers said the shipment came from San Francisco and contained opium and cocaine as well as liquor.

The arrests, according to Agent in Charge O'Leary, followed an investigation of more than a month which was instituted following complaints of officials of several large stores that liquor deliveries were being made inside their establishments.

CLEW TO METHODS

King was arrested in an expensive automobile parked outside of the store. Cavanaugh and Mahoney were taken inside the store, in possession, according to agents, of a package containing twelve bottles of genuine Scotch whisky.

Searching the automobile, the agents report they found two express waybills on "household goods."

Reports reaching the officers that the trio had been conducting an individual drink business from their automobile were verified, according to officers, by the discovery of a set of gold collapsible drinking cups in the car. This set of cups is said to be worth at least $300. A supply of glasses and bottle openeds also was found, the officers reported.

In possession of the men, the officers reported they found several score of cancelled checks. It is believed that these were given in payment for liquor. Totaling the amounts of the checks in the periods they were issued, the officers said, they estimate the volume of business done by the trio at between $10,000 and $20,000 a week.

OTHERS SOUGHT

Other records said to have been kept by the men are in the keeping of the agents and it is expected associates of the trio will be apprehended, Agent O'Leary announced.

Mahoney had been posing as a real estate agent, according to O'Leary. He and Cavanaugh were arrested at Alhambra recently and were out on bail in Federal Court at the time of their arrest, O'Leary said.

The trio will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Long today. They were held in jail when they were unable to put up $1000 bail each.

Contract Let for Cornwall School Annex

The Cornwall street school will have a new annex of eleven rooms September 1, next. Contracts were awarded by the Board of Education last night to John B. Dawson, whose bid of $56,150 was the lowest received. The contract for plumbing, heating and ventilating went to Stoneman & Walker, who bid $10,556.

Charles H Emmons, director of Near East Relief for this district, appeared before the board and was granted permission to circulate tags among the school children reminding them of bundle day, May 10, next. Cast-off clothing and shoes are needed by the thousands of destitute men, women and children in Macedonia and Greece, Mr Emmons told the board, as well as by other Christian people who are being aided by the Near East Relief workers.

Use of the auditorium of the Central Junior High School next Friday evening was granted the Business and Professional Women's Club. The meeting is a part of the work of the club in raising a fund of $50,000 to buy a home for the less-than-minimum-wage-girls.

ENCAMPMENT DELAYED

The twenty first annual encampment of the Department of California, United Spanish War Veterans, which was to have been conducted at Chico from May 12 to 14, inclusive, has been indefinitely postponed because of the hoof-and-mouth quarantine. The action in postponing the encampment was taken at the request of State agricultural officials.

RELEASED ON WRIT

Margaret Nelson, held at the County Jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old sailor, was released yesterday by Judge Hardy of Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus sued out by her attorney, C. S. Hahn. The sailor in the case was not named.

MANY CONTESTS FOR THIS WEEK

Schools of Vicinity Ready for Oratorical Meets

Competition in Los Angeles High is Intense

Constitution Event Praised by Principals

Preparations for the final series of district meets in the National Oratorical Contest were resumed by the schools of Southern California yesterday after a week's vacation over the Easter holidays.

While a majority of the districts have already selected their representatives to the big group meetings, which begin on May 2, a sufficient number of district contests remain to be conducted this week to make it one of the most interesting periods in the process of choosing candidates for the semi-finals.

The first of the district meets this week will be those at Visalia and Imperial today. At Visalia the eleven high schools of Tulare county will participate. Tulare has the distinction of being the only county in this section with a 100 per cent representation of its schools in the contest. The eleven candidates are reported to be very evenly matched.

EXCITEMENT HIGH

Tomorrow the districts centering in South Pasadena and Los Angeles High School will select their champions. Special interest attaches to the contest at Los Angeles High. At this institution 2400 orations were prepared by entrants in the contest and members of the faculty have found it a problem to make a selection of the winner. Ties have occurred in several of the preliminary tests and as a result rivalries have sprung up which have served to keep the entire student body in a fever of excitement as to the final result.

Friday will be the biggest day of all in the number of district meets. More than a dozen districts will choose their representatives on that date. They include the city of San Diego, Orange county, Inyo county, Ventura county, Redondo, Venice and Santa Monica, Inglewood, Monrovia, Covina, Franklin High School, Los Angeles; San Fernando Valley, Lincoln High, Los Angeles; Roosevelt and Part-Time High Schools, all the junior high schools and all the girls' private schools.

PRINCIPALS APPROVE

According to Prof. A. F. Blanks, contest director for Southern California, the Constitutional contest movement is one that has met with the unqualified approval of all the high school principals of the State. Prof. Blanks returned yesterday from a meeting at Santa Cruz, attended by 600 principals from every part of California.

"It seemed to be the consensus of the meeting that the Constitutional contest should be made an annual event at the accredited schools, with closer affiliations with the principals' association in the future," said Prof. Blanks. "A number of the principals stated that in case a similar contest is conducted next year they would like to know of that fact early in the school year in order to have more time for preparation."

GREAT PLANS FOR CONTEST IN BURBANK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, April 21.—Great plans are being made for the entertainment of a large crowd at the High School auditorium Friday night on the occasion of the elimination contest for this district in the National Oratorical Contest. San Fernando, Van Nuys, Lancaster and Owensmouth are expected to send large delegations to encourage the entrants of those schools and Burbank will likewise send an enthusiastic representation to encourage the local candidate in his effort to participate in the final contest at Los Angeles in May. Music by school orchestras and glee clubs will add to the interest of the program.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS' TREATMENT DELAYED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, April 21.—Twenty-four hours after they were in an automobile smash near Oceanside, Miss Lillie Wisdom, 29 years of age, 205 East Twelfth street, Huntington Beach, and Mrs. Amanda Portz, 60, Route One, Huntington Beach, were taken to the hospital here suffering from serious injuries. They told hospital attendants it was an automobile accident but declined to add further details. Miss Wisdom received injuries to her shoulder, lacerations, and bruises while her companion's hurts consist of a broken shoulder and head cuts and bruises.

MAN STRUCK BY CAR IS CLOSE TO DEATH

A man identified by papers on his person as Rafael Ceina, 33 years of age, was probably fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by Wayman Barefield, 1495 East Thirty-fifth street. The victim was taken to the Receiving Hospital by Barefield. Police Surgeons said he may die. The accident occurred at Thirty-third street and Griffith avenue.

GLORIA DEVELOPING LITERARY AMBITIONS

Gloria Swanson, vamp De Luxe and exponent of the silken drama, is turning literary.

Word comes from New York that Miss Swanson's Riverside Drive apartment is the scene of many brilliant affairs to which budding poets as well as recognized literary lights are bidden.

Delighted with the new atmosphere, Miss Swanson is said to be going into her new fad with energy. She has engaged the services of an expert adviser and is also planning to write the titles for her future pictures.

The little star is appearing in "A Society Scandal," at Grauman's Rialto in a role that is particularly congenial, that of leader of smart social set.

GUMP TRIO ARE GOING SHOPPING

Andy, Chester and Min Plan Three-Day Tour of Downtown Stores

Next Tuesday has been set for the launching of the gala "Andy Gump Shopping Tour."

Andy, Chester and Min are going on a three-day shopping tour starting Tuesday. They are going to visit all the smart shops in the downtown section of Los Angeles and The Times will give a full schedule of their daily tours.

Whimsical Andy needs new shoes, a new suit and so many new things, and Min, bless her heart, she needs a new bonnet, frocks and loads of things. You can just imagine what Chester needs from the way he tears around.

The Andy Gump party will visit radio shops, music stores, furniture stores, cafes and other places of business to make purchases.

Their tour will give the public an opportunity to go shopping with the Gump family and see just what they look like. You are invited to bring the little ones and have them meet the family.

The "Andy Gump Shopping Tour" is being arranged by The Times and the California Theater, where the latest Andy Gump comedy, "What's the Use?" will be shown for a limited engagement starting Saturday.

Andy Gump is portrayed on the screen by Joe Murphy, who is the perfect likeness to the famous "Times" comic page character; Min is played by Fay Tincher; while Chester is portrayed by Jackie Morgan.

Keep an eye on The Times "Andy Gump Shopping Tour." It is going to be a lot of fun.

Rites Conducted for Pioneer of Tulare County

DINUBA, April 21.—Funeral services were conducted this afternoon from Dopkins Undertaking Parlors for John Alexander Kimble, 90 years of age, one of the oldest residents of this section of Tulare county. Mr. Kimble died at his home Friday evening. He came with his family to Traver in 1852 from New York State, and was associated with S. K. Greene in the planing mill business. The two men also manufactured many of the windmills which formerly dotted this section of the valley and furnished water power for many people. Mr. Kimble later became a rancher in the Moreland district but had been retired for a number of years.

He leaves three children: Mrs. Mary L. Chapman and Frank A. Kimble of Dinuba, and W. L. Kimble of Cottage Grove, Or.

FUNERAL FOR WOMAN ON VISIT TO DAUGHTER

ORANGE COVE, April 21.—Mrs. Frances Dixon Fitzgerald, 77 years of age, Independence, Or., who died Friday while visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Way, near here, was buried this afternoon in Reedley cemetery, funeral services being conducted from Dopkins Parlors in Dinuba. Mrs. Fitzgerald had been visiting at the home of her daughter for the past three months. She is survived by eight children: Charles L. of Hawthorne, Edward J. of St. Cloud, Minn., Claude H. of Los Angeles, Mrs. Maude E. Way of Orange Cove, Mrs. Leona Peltzke of Demopolis, Ala.; Henry L. Fitzgerald of Charles City, Iowa; Marry C. of Powers, Or., and Leonard C. of Independence, Or.

FLY DELAYS A TREATY

Pest Causes United States to Bar Spanish Grapes

The fragility of the thread on which amity between governments sometimes hangs is revealed in a unique and striking way by the friction that exists at present between the United State and Spain.

It was all caused—or almost all—by the Mediterranean fly, one of a myriad of the genus that infests fruits and plants. Last January the United States, by order of the department of Agriculture, put an embargo on the importation of Malaga grapes from Spain because it was found that grape was infested by this fly and was a menace to American fruit.

Since then the ravages of the fly have played considerable havoc with the diplomatic machinery of the two countries. A protest has just been filed by Spain with the State Department, and meantime there is a hitch in the negotiations for a commercial treaty between the two countries.

It has a very serious angle in that commercial activities between the two nations are now being conducted on a temporary modus vivendi basis, the old treaty having expired some time ago. The American Ambassador in Madrid has been instructed to ask further continuation of the existing arrangement, although meantime virtually all the powers have concluded favorable commercial treaties with Spain.

The Spanish government is openly hinting that American imports may not receive most favored nation treatment unless this country assumes a different attitude toward Spanish fruit, particularly grapes. Relations are far from cordial, it is clear, and back of it all is the Mediterranean fly.—[New York Sun.

DON'T SHED TUSKS

Among the Indian or Asiatic elephants only the male has the tusks, but they are found on both the male and female of the African species. Sometimes these tusks weigh from 150 to 200 pounds.

The tusks of the elephants are merely projections of the incisors of the upper jaw and are never shed, although they are sometimes broken off. In other words, the tusks are part of the elephant's teeth. However, the milk teeth, which precede the tusks, come out at an early age.

The tusks of the elephant supply the ivory which is so highly esteemed the world over for ornamental purposes.—[Detroit News.

CONTRALTO TONIGHT

Jeanne Gordon Presents Program at Philharmonic Auditorium

No more sensational rise to fame in the artistic world has been recorded in recent years than that of Jeanne Gordon, the contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, to be heard at the Auditorium this evening.

Daughter of an honored member of the Canadian Parliament, graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, from which she was graduated at 16 with the degree of associate, her father's objection to a public career and her own early marriage, postponed her immediate debut upon the stage.

It was not until the outbreak of the war, when her husband joined the United States Navy and was stationed in New York, that Miss Gordon seriously studied for the operatic stage. Her debut was made with the Creatore Opera Company in New Orleans in the French Theater. There she joined the Scotti company. From this organization she graduated to the Metropolitan, where she has been a valued and featured member for five seasons.

Her program tonight will include in addition to the famous Werther arias, "Clair de Lune" (Szule,) "Les Filles de Cadiz" (Delibes,) "Reviens" (Hyde,) "Ich Golle Nicht" (Schumann,) "Plaisir d'Amour" (Martini,) "The Looking Glass" (Walter Damrosch,) "By a Lonely Forest Pathway" (Griffes,) "My Love is a Muleteer" (de Nogero,) "Fanchotte (Blair Clark) and "Awakening" (Golde.)

ELLIS CLUB OFFERS CONCERT TOMORROW

The spring concert of the Ellis Club will be held tomorrow evening in Philharmonic Auditorium. This concert will be presented under the leadership of Dr. J. B. Poulin.

Fred McPherson, a former member of the Ellis Club, will be the soloist. Mr. McPherson has just returned to Los Angeles after having had several successful seasons in opera and concert appearances in eastern music centers. He will sing the solo part in two ensemble numbers, "Danny Deever" and in "The Farewell of Hiawatha," by Arthur Foote. His solo numbers will be "Take All of Me" (Stickles) and Tschikowsky's "Pilgrim's Song"

The choral numbers will include "The Call of The Spring (Bartholomew,) with tenor solo by Harold Proctor; "Morning Hymn" (Henschel;) "Sylvia" (Oley Speaks;) "Gentle Friend Pierrot" (R. Leoncavallo;) "The Dawn," (William G. Hammond,) with orchestra accompaniment: "Danny Deever;" "Land of Hope and Glory" (Elgar,) with accompaniment by Philharmonic Orchestra.

Mrs. M. Hennion-Robinson will be the piano accompanist.

HELENE CHADWICK PICKS FIRST STORY

After reading dozens of books and novels, Helene Chadwick has finally selected "Of Her Own Free Will," a novel by Ethel Dell, as her initial starring vehicle for Hodkinson. Arrangements have been closed for the use of the Biograph studio in the Bronx, New York, where Miss Chadwick's productions will be made.

Miss Chadwick has just completed her performance in "Loves of Women" for Whitman Bennett and will start her own production the first of May. Paul Scardon will direct.

PLANTED
FIG GARDENS
NO PAYMENTS DOWN
I, J. C. Forkner, owner of the J. C. Forkner Fig Gardens, Inc., hereby offers to 100 families a most remarkable proposition.
I have planted and sold 10,000 acres of fig gardens; I have spent $6,000,000; during the last two years in development, there are 2500 happy families living on these same acres now. I want 100 more families.
I have decided to sell 1000 acres of planted fig gardens, ready for bearing into bearing, on the following conditions:
You may move upon 5 or 10 acres, adjoining the city of Fresno, and build a home and farm the land; will give you ten years in which to pay.
THE CROPS WILL PAY FOR THE LAND
Roads, ditches, highways, electric lines are built; townsites on the land being developed; best water right in State; canning factory already built, church, schools and $5,000,000 lumber mill, employing 1000 men, on tract; only 15 minutes from center of Fresno.
Right in the land and have developed these fig gardens myself; that is why I offer to you; one cannot fail for I will help him to success.
For details, see my personal representative, or, you can address personally all, write to address below, telling frankly what your circumstances are and what you plan to do.
A 5-minute interview with my personal representative will relieve you of any doubt as to the sincerity of this proposition.

COOLIDGE GIVEN BOOST BY CLUB

Kern County Republicans United for President

Confidence in Nomination Firmly Expressed

Los Angeles Men Address Dinner Meeting

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, April 21.—More than a score of members of the Kern County Coolidge Republican Club gathered in the blue room of the Tegeler Hotel this noon for a luncheon and business meeting. Plans were made for conducting the Coolidge-for-President campaign in Kern county. Outside speakers explained arrangements made in other sections of the State.

Included among the visiting speakers were Ralph Arnold, Los Angeles Republican; Franklin Lowney and Lewis H. Smith. George M. Swindell, publisher of the Bakersfield Echo, also was one of the speakers. The gathering was presided over by W. H. Cooley, president of the Coolidge Club in Kern county.

All of the speakers expressed the belief that Coolidge already is sure to be elected and that he will carry California by a large majority.

"Our purpose now should be to make his nomination unanimous," said Mr. Arnold. "One reason that President Coolidge is assured of a big vote in California is because California needs him."

"Although his nomination is assured, the Coolidge clubs should not be abandoned. This is rather the time to develop a good strong organization of Republicans in California."

Other speakers echoed Mr. Arnold's opinions.

"Never has any administration been so favorable to California as the present," said Mr. Smith.

The machine was dragged for more than 100 yards, the occupants being thrown along the track. Smith suffered a fractured skull. The others were seriously, but not fatally hurt.

REDLANDS STORES ROBBED

Less Than $500 Obtained in Burglaries of Two Large Establishments

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, April 21.—Two of the largest stores in the city, Leipsich's and the Harris Dry Goods and Ready-to-Wear, were burglarized last night with less than $500 in cash being taken from the two places. The thieves apparently were after cash only. They passed up checks and expensive goods.

The Leipsich store was entered through a workroom on the second floor of the Leipsich Building. The burglars "jimmied" three doors to reach the mezzanine floor of the store where the offices are located. There they tore the combination from a safe cabinet and got about $75 in cash. There were ten leather bags filled with checks and money that the burglars did not bother. It is thought they were frightened away.

Operatives from the Sheriff's office at San Bernardino took photographs of finger prints and examined heel-prints found back of the Harris store.

"The thieves knew conditions perfectly and worked so as to give no indication to police making the rounds that anything was wrong.

COMMITTEE TO AID PORT DRIVE PLAN

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA ANA, April 21.—To cooperate with the Orange county Board of Supervisors in an advisory capacity in determining the advisability of calling an election for the issuance of $1,500,000 to be spent on further improvement of Orange county Harbor at Newport Beach, Thomas B. Talbert, chairman of the Supervisors' Board, today gave out the names of a committee of fifty citizens from representative Orange county towns.

Talbert also stated that the committee would be instructed to ascertain all facts connected with the harbor, outline a plan for future financing, determine upon the logical time to call the proposed bond election, determine if such a step is advisable, outline and publish the benefits which the county would derive from the further improvement of the port. The committee, he added, would also look into the matter of the amount of frontage and acreage on the bay the county could acquire.

Hospital Says Orange Legion Charge Untrue

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA ANA, April 21.—Denying there is basis for an investigation of the County Hospital here, as demanded by the Orange County Council of the American Legion, following asserted conduct during treatment of a veteran sent there, Dr. Harry Zalser, superintendent, today made light of Legion charges and declared an inquiry would substantiate his stand.

Z. B. West, Jr., Santa Ana attorney; W. B. Webb, Jr., Anaheim, and J. W. Mitchell, Huntington Beach, however, were prepared to go before the Board of Supervisors meeting here tomorrow and ask for such an investigation, under instruction of the Legion Council.

Complaint of conduct of affairs as they understood existed at the hospital aroused the ire of the Legionnaires, it was asserted, when it was said the veteran in question was denied admittance, but later, when pressure was brought to bear, was allowed to enter.

Then, according to a Legion investigator, a special nurse was denied the patient, on the ground that such procedure was against the rule and that a few days later the patient was ordered "removed at once."

The various committee appointments followed.

ATEN WILL KEEP POST ON BOARD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, April 21. — Efforts to induce Ira Aten to resign as director of Imperial irrigation district from the Electro division were checked today by the circulation of petitions among his friends urging that he remain on the board. Aten, who was ousted recently by his fellow-directors from the office of chairman of the board following his refusal to resign, announced that he probably would resign from the board. Today he had changed his mind.

A written resignation was presented to Aten by Assemblyman George Davis with a request to sign it, but Aten declined, asserting that he had decided to remain as a director until his term expires next February.

There appears to be a well-defined movement under way among voters to force the resignations of one or more members of the District Board of Directors as a protest against asserted domination of the district's affairs by Director Mark Rose. It was asserted here that Mack Trentham, director from Imperial division, also will be requested to resign as a part of a general plan of shake-up among the district directors. Fellow-directors are openly opposed to Aten's retirement from the board at this time.

"I had intended to retire from the District Board of Directors," declared Aten, "because I was elected on a platform of economy and efficiency in irrigation district affairs. I have been defeated in carrying out an economic program. However, my friends are insisting that I remain on the board for the present, and I probably shall until the end of my term in February."

It was pointed out here that Aten's resignation at this time would cause the appointment of his successor by the Board of Supervisors. The Rose faction is fearful that a new director might be appointed who is even more opposed to Rose's policies than Aten. This is said to be the reason for desiring him to remain a director.

Will S. Fawcett, president of the Imperial Water Company No. 1, and L. C. Lee are among those already suggested to succeed Aten in the event of his resignation from the board.

WATER BATTLE IN COURT SEEN

Rincon Valley Landowners Ask for Injunction

Assert Creek to be Pumped to Carpinteria Area

Underground Stream Draining Plans Are Charged

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VENTURA, April 21.—Bitterly contested legal battle over rights to water from Rincon Creek and underlying lands contiguous to the creek is indicated in a complaint in a suit on file today in Superior Court in which D. A. Carton and C. D. Hubbard are named as defendants by Terey C. Abbot, Carrie J. Dimmick, Mabel M. Dimmick and C. B. Bates.

According to the complaint, Carton and Hubbard have installed pumps, pipe lines and other appurtenances for pumping and piping subterranean water underlying the Rincon Valley lands to irrigate lands lying in the Carpinteria Valley in Santa Barbara county and they ask that the defendants be enjoined from taking any water other than is sufficient to irrigate their lands lying in the Rincon Valley which the plaintiffs say aggregate fifteen acres.

The plaintiffs ask that they be given judgment entitling them to the full flow of Rincon Creek and its tributaries and the subterranean streams expects for an amount sufficient to water the fifteen acres owned by the defendants in the valley, and that the defendants be forever enjoined from diverting any water outside the valley.

POLICE SEE LATIN FEUD IN PASADENA

Prominent Mexican, Found Stabbed and Beaten, Keeps Silent

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, April 21.—Belief that a feud between Mexican factions exists in this city was expressed by the Pasadena police today following the discovery of the body of Joe Firman, prominent in the Mexican colony, who was stabbed, badly beaten and left unconscious on the Union Pacific Railroad tracks.

After treatment at the Emergency Hospital Firman refused to talk of the feud and said that an American beat him with a club, robbed him of $80 and left him in the state he was found.

The police discredit his story and believe that a further outbreak of the ill-feeling will soon be evidenced. Last week, the police declare, Firman was attacked in a pool hall of which he is the proprietor and was brutally stabbed. Taken to the local court he refused to name his assailant and was fined $100. Louis Silvas, known as the "mayor" of the Mexican settlement, paid the fine.

Firman was found at a late hour last night by Officers Hayden and Cheek. He was covered with blood, his head was badly beaten and one eye was nearly destroyed.

Detectives are working on the case and double police patrols have been put on duty in the Mexican part of the city.

EASTER PRAYER COSTS TWO $50

Arrested in Quarantined Canyon; Say Creed Requires Seclusion

[By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.]

PASADENA, April 21.—The first arrests of asserted violators of the foot-and-mouth quarantine were made here yesterday, it was disclosed today when two men were fined $50 each in the Pasadena justice court.

E. S. Eby, 1276 North Sierra Bonita avenue, and Walter O'Hara, 2209 North Holliston avenue, were arrested in Mallard's Canyon by Charles G. Dunwoody, special quarantine officer. At the time of their arrests the men were kneeling in prayer.

In Justice Kenneth Newell's court today the pair pleaded guilty to being in the canyon and were fined $50 each with an alternative of spending twenty days in jail. They told the justice that they went to Mallard's Canyon to observe Easter Day prayer. According to their creed, they must be in a secluded spot to worship on such an occasion.

YEGGS MISS EASTERTIDE DONATIONS

Ransack Parish House But Priest Had Banked Annual Offering

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, April 21.—Police are searching for two men who early yesterday morning robbed the parish house of Santa Clara Church. The two men were looking for Easter contributions, which were believed to have been placed in the safe at the parish house. Fortunately, Father James O'Neil deposited the money from Easter services in the bank and the safe was empty. Father O'Neil said today that the parish house and the church have been robbed so many times that he takes no chances and deposits money in the bank every day after services.

The burglars entered the house by a side window, opened the side door and placed the key in the lock on the outside to make exit easy. They ransacked the office, took some canceled checks out of the safe, then went to the housekeeper's room, where they turned things about. They took a comb and a purse belonging to the housekeeper, in which there was $8. They were working in the housekeeper's room when she awoke. The glare of a flashlight in her face startled her, and she screamed, scaring the burglars away from the house and neighborhood.

Fruit Shippers of [illegible] Indorse Project

High Demurrage Rates to Be Charged in East

Plan Would Apply Only to Three Fall Months

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, April 21.—Fruit shippers today unanimously indorsed a plan for the facilitation of refrigerator car movements during the Fall, the plan having been presented by N. J. Ostrom, chairman of the car service division of the American Railway Association, with offices in Washington, D. C.

The plan, which was practically indorsed by shippers of the San Joaquin and Sacramento district, provides for a heavy penalty for delay in unloading refrigerator cars during the fruit season. According to the plan, the first forty-eight hours would be free, as at present, the next twenty-four hours would be chargeable at the regular demurrage rates of $1, the third day, an additional charge of $10 would be made, increasing daily at the rate of $5 a day, with a total charge of $25 a day. Penalty would be reached, it is said, at the rate until the car was released.

This plan, Ostrom added, said Gormley said, by reason of the fact that many companies now use the refrigerator cars as storage plants at a cost of $1 a day. This means, he said, that many thousands of cars are held on the track in the East in unloading or waiting to load when they should be on the way back to California.

"There were 10,000 more refrigerator cars in service in 1923 than in 1922," Gormley said, "and approximately 5000 more have been ordered. Approximately 40 per cent of the refrigerator cars were delayed in unloading three days or longer and sometimes were held as high as forty-two days so that the shortage we had last year was due to this and not to the lack of cars."

Gormley, in explaining the plan, said that it would be applied only during August, September, October and that it had not been completed yet nor would it be completed till his return from the East. He is at present obtaining the viewpoints of the various shippers.
